THE BEE.

[illegible] and City Paper,
[illegible] BY J. BAYON.
[illegible] ORLEANS:
WEDNESDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 16, 1835.

The Eastern [illegible] Mobile, did not arrive till very late [illegible] late to have the papers distributed. [illegible] a Mobile journal, by hand, of Monday [illegible] contains nothing new; and were informed by [illegible], that they hourly expected the President's [illegible] there.

Yesterday [illegible] was sent from this office to Mobile, [illegible] as soon as possible a copy of the [illegible] message; so that we shall be enabled to [illegible] the public the gratifying intelligence [illegible] relations which are to continue between [illegible] and France.

Miss Russell, [illegible] again this evening and we [illegible] greater advantage than on Monday—as she [illegible] labored under a heavy cold; and may justly be supposed to be diffident on her debut. She deserves, and should receive kind encouragement.

Mademoiselle Celeste continues to attract good houses; the receipts on the first night of her appearance, were about 2,250 dollars. [illegible] her [illegible] last evening; and [illegible] well [illegible] in "The French Spy," we should have liked her [illegible] and [illegible] appearance. [illegible] Work, deserved the applause [illegible] Mademoiselle in the Ballet, was all our [illegible]

Barber [illegible]—Need we call the attention of amateurs to the representation of this celebrated opera this evening at the French theatre? We can assure them that they will be gratified if they attend. Those who may have witnessed it last season will find its representation [illegible] respects [illegible] the preface. The machinery [illegible] arranged, the decorations appear [illegible] are improved [illegible]

Madame S[illegible] personate the princess; and in the [illegible] and [illegible] accompanied by the harp.—Mademoiselle [illegible] warble sweetly as usual; and Bailly [illegible] diabolical manner to perfection. We can [illegible] Heymann; for we regret to [illegible] like him in any respect. His voice [illegible] artificial, yet he has not the art to hide [illegible] falsettos: nor can he always sing in tune. [illegible] is very great between him and [illegible] the former has an artificial voice under [illegible] science of music—while the latter has an [illegible] powerful voice naturally, which he is very [illegible] improve; and which he can [illegible] Heymann's course if not [illegible] of his gesticulations, which [illegible] by him: so that he often appears to [illegible] stage—altho we have heard [illegible] rather polite.—This contrast [illegible] to him by his [illegible] desired to address [illegible] nor threaten [illegible] manner. Still he is [illegible] for many of his songs [illegible] with his inefficient voice.

In conclusion [illegible] we should not forget the [illegible] very best in the country [illegible] number [illegible] efficiency.

[illegible] from Spain.

By [illegible] that arrived yesterday from Havana, we [illegible] the packet of the 1st November last, [illegible] bringing the intelligence [illegible] Carlists [illegible] had been completely routed in a [illegible] battle with the queen's army [illegible] Cordova; and that the pretender had to seek [illegible] Catalonia, the only province where he is now [illegible].

This will soon terminate the [illegible] strifes that [illegible] under the administration of [illegible], it is [illegible] that fine country [illegible] to take [illegible] among the prominent nations of Europe. He has now financial resources at command; he has had a meeting of the Cortes [illegible] he has projected various plans for internal improvement, and he has used every means to extend and increase the facilities of commerce.

Proposals have been made by a committee of the city council to the [illegible] of the gaslight bank, to light a certain portion of the city; and to pay the sum of 25 dollars per lamp—the amount formerly charged by Mr Caldwell for lighting chartres. Yet the singular to say that the the charter of the company compels them to adopt a contract with the corporation, at the lowest terms, for lighting all the incorporated parts of the city, yet the bank's commission gasworks refuse any terms less than 25 dollars [illegible]; and to light such parts as they please to designate.

At this rate the company must construct gasworks of its own, and light the city—which eventually would be much cheaper than such a contract; besides that the coke and tar of the coal would be productive. Then the corporation can prevent the gaslight company from cutting up the streets.

CITY COUNCIL.

Extra Session, Monday Evening, Dec 14.

Present—Messrs J Culbertson, Recorder, Schmidt, McFarlane, Labatut, Thomas, Pichot, Gaiennie, Berry and Baldwin.

That part of the mayor's letter which was left unread at the last session was about to be noticed, when Mr Schmidt said that from his experience in the [illegible] and from the general principle that laid heretofore adopted, he believed the veto of the mayor could not be acted on inasmuch as last sitting [illegible] time the letter was received, ought to have been [illegible] for its action.

Mr Gaiennie said he could not agree with the gentleman from the 1st ward. It was true that the letter was received last sitting but had all of it been acted on? it could not be said that the veto was actually before the council, because it had never been read.

Mr Labatut said that he should move to persist. Seven or eight [illegible] now elapsed, and nothing had been done on this important point Last year he had the honor of being on the committee on building, and with every [illegible] on the part assisted by the joint efforts of those who were with him, he had never been able to complete their undertaking. [illegible] members were now on this committee, and from the knowledge he had of their [illegible] was confident [illegible] would be guided by the same impulse as he [illegible] a sincere desire to see the prison [illegible] a work useful in itself and essential to the preservation of public order.

Mr Schmidt said that notwithstanding that he concurred with his colleague on the high importance of the work in question, and although he was equally desirous for its completion, [illegible] changed he thought in which [illegible] on the veto. By the charter 5 days were granted to the mayor to approve or disapprove of any resolution sent him by the council; at the expiration of which time it was to be returned, and if [illegible] of the members of that body concurred to [illegible] became a law. In this case however such [illegible] been done. The council had not acted on the [illegible] during the prescribed time, and he did not see [illegible] they could unless they departed from that law [illegible] was given them for their government. He admitted that his construction might be erroneous: but it was based on the decisions heretofore given in this very same body. The question is not new; it had been [illegible] before. (Here the hon gentleman read the law) [illegible] said he the conditions under which it becomes a law shall be such as are here laid down; this [illegible] not been observed and he knew of but one way [illegible] he thought the most correct) to obviate the difficulty. Where a message embraced several points and part of them only were acted on during the sitting [illegible] proceeded, the balance of resolutions that may [illegible] vetoed should be re-enacted; this he thought the proper course and the only one consistent with the law laid down.

Mr Pichot said he had entered rather late, but not [illegible] to answer the gentleman. Regretting as I do the vote said he, I still regret more the dangerous and [illegible] interpretation of the law which has just been given by my hon colleague of the 1st ward. (Here he read the law and adverted to that part which requires two thirds of the members present to persist.) The law says six present—present at what? at the reading of that upon which we were called to act. Is there one member of good sense present or absent who would declare it as his opinion that a document can be said to be present before the council when they are officially ignorant of its contents? I should consider not [illegible] other point—it has been said that 5 days was the prescribed time to persist in any veto; this was true—but he would ask what was the date of the mayor's letter? was it not dated two days before it was received? Suppose for example from the want of quorum or any thing else we adjourned for 10 days; would it be gravely told us that we could not act on a veto of the mayor which may have been received during the 5 days?—in [illegible] I do not look upon it as having been received before it is actually before the council. The law is not elastic, it is imperative; and doctrines like those advanced by the gentleman from the 1st ward have a tendency to render them the reverse. Pray sir did we not vote on all the secretary read? and certainly all that he did not read was not before us. I do not wish to take up the time of the council, but when I hear a law so miserably tortured, I cannot sit silently in my chair.

Mr Thomas said he would address but a few questions to the council. Suppose said he no quorum existed at the reception of the mayor's message, and such continued the case for fifteen days after—would or could it be urged that on this account we could act upon any resolutions that might have been vetoed?—The mayor is allowed five days, if he fulfils his duty in the observance of this law; the people are not to suffer by the want of a quorum. It is now many years since I have had the honor to sit in this chamber, and I [illegible] is the first time I ever heard of such a construction placed on the law as by my worthy colleague from the 3rd ward (Pichot.)

Mr [illegible] said he would say but few words. Suppose said he the council was to pass sixty or seventy resolutions, and they were all to be vetoed—would the council be obliged to discuss each at the same sitting? If they would be, it would consume not only that night, but the whole of next day and the following night also. During five years he had had the honor of being a member of the council, and during that period it had often happened that there was no quorum. many [illegible], and it was to his perfect recollection [illegible]

[illegible] certainly [illegible]

Mr [illegible] said another reflection had occurred to him. [illegible] the doctrine of the gentleman from the 1st ward [illegible] adopted, no resolution could be determined [illegible] freedom of discussion or the fairness of scrutiny. It [illegible] happen that the reading of the mayor's message [illegible] occupy the whole sitting, as had been the case, [illegible] yet some points, from the lateness of the hour, [illegible] discussed. These latter then would of necessity be thrown aside entirely. Every member had a [illegible] to read the message before he took his seat, [illegible] point should strike his eye that affected his interest, and upon which he would discuss; and at a [illegible] calculation allowing each member one hour [illegible] to speak, each session would be prolonged [illegible] o'clock. This was absurd in the extreme, [illegible] continue to persist.

Mr [illegible] said that he was a little startled at the [illegible] of the gentleman from the 4th ward. Did he not know that they had voluntarily refused to act on the [illegible] of the mayor's message. It had been before [illegible] and if they determined by adjournment to leave [illegible] it unacted on they had willingly surrendered [illegible] right. He thought that the general [illegible] interpreting laws when not ambiguous was as to [illegible] consequences; he recollected that in 1833 the same ground that he now assumed was taken by Mr Canon, and it was then decided in the way he now advocates. As to the remark upon sixty or seventy resolutions, this would be an extraordinary case. Yet if they acted on his doctrine the council would submit to the inconvenience of a re[illegible] of those resolutions left undealt with.

The question was divided on motion of Mr Thomas; and the yeas and nays were called for to ascertain whether the message could be considered. When it appeared that Messrs Labatut, Gaiennie, Pichot, Thomas and Mc-Farlane, voted in the affirmative; and Messrs Schmidt, Berry and Baldwin, in the negative: 5 yeas—3 hays.

On the question to persist, notwithstanding the veto, Mr Pichot said it was an imperative duty now to act on the subject of prisons: as a proof of the insecurity of the present one he need only advert to the fact, that [illegible] had escaped in open daylight; I see [illegible] why we cannot proceed; it is to my [illegible] knowledge that when Mr Mercier represented the 6th ward, he contracted for lime for this purpose, and no obstacle was offered. As to quoting law I shall never do it, unless where the executive will take the trouble to cite the whole of the law he refers to, and not a particular section.

The motion to persist was carried.

Mr Pichot presented a resolution—that whenever the mayor inserted an advertisement on account of the corporation he should notify the council of its date.—Adopted.

The 9th article informed the council that [illegible] market was rented to Mr J Viosca for $[illegible] vegetable market to L de la Rosa for $[illegible] St Mary's market to J Brand for $15,050. [illegible] 1 leased for $130 per month; and no 2 [illegible] month.

The 9th article was relative to the appointment of commissioners, when the following ballots took place:—

F Allard, commissary [illegible] ward, re-elected unanimously.

J A [illegible], for 2nd ward, elected 7 to 2.

Neuville Durel, 8th ward, unanimously.

[illegible], rejected.—St Villemer, unanimously.

Henry Richardson for that part of [illegible] ward near the river, unanimously.

N C Tobin rejected 7 to 2.

Pierre Aubray, inspector for upper liberties, [illegible] 8 to 1.

J B Giquel, for lower liberties, elected 7 [illegible]

Mr Pichot introduced the following preamble and resolution:—

Whereas, that though the council may be convinced that no power is granted to the executive to be its instructor, and to declare to it that they have passed illegal ordinances, the council cannot refrain from making known its opinion on the lesson they have received. Therefore

Resolved, That the mayor be thanked for the advice and lesson he has given the council: but that he be at the same time requested in future to abstain from the like, until they are expressly required.

Mr Thomas said he did [illegible] see the intention of the mayor to lessen the [illegible] he had written [illegible] in a conciliatory [illegible] We are independent of the mayor and he [illegible] that he knows. Yet I believe it would be [illegible] for both that a feeling of reciprocity should [illegible]. Unfortunately and with sorrow do I say it, I [illegible] exists a feeling of hostility to the mayor among [illegible] of the members. I may be mistaken and for [illegible] general good I hope I am. There are many [illegible] mayor is right, and sometimes he is wrong; but I do not think hostility will correct it. Sir, I am impelled by the force of truth [illegible] the remarks I have made.

Mr Gaiennie said that it had been urged that we were hostile to the mayor. I deny [illegible] I deny it in the most [illegible] terms, [illegible] self but for the rest of [illegible] members. [illegible] often differed with the council was apparent, and he often differed with the mayor was also true, for he thought his financial policy by far too narrow.

Mr Thomas said that he had not asserted that there was actual hostility existing; he [illegible] only expressed his fears that such was the case.

Mr Pichot said that it really was a curious opinion to entertain that the council was hostile to the mayor [illegible] a difference of opinion hostility? Is it because [illegible] views on the administration of the city affairs [illegible] from his, that we are to be accused of hostility towards him? The gentleman has not spoken to the point. [illegible] brought forward that [illegible] of the mayor's message [illegible] which this resolution took its rise, and fairly [illegible] it, he would have seen that we have been [illegible] that we have been charged with having [illegible] illegal ordinances. [illegible] will of right admit [illegible] no right to dictate his course—[illegible] in justice he must also grant that he has no right [illegible] us. It ill becomes the free representatives [illegible] the people to be dictated to by one whose power, though distinct, is not superior to their own. Were we, sir, to submit, we should not only sacrifice our individual independence but the independence of our constituents. To this I never can consent; and I have too high an opinion of my colleagues to suppose for a moment any thing else than they will sustain me in my present [illegible]

Mr Thomas [illegible] no doubt existed on the intention of the [illegible] that intention could not be [illegible] he would [illegible] oppose his intention any thing [illegible]

The resolution was put to the council and adopted.

The following letter was [illegible] from the mayor:

Mayoralty [illegible], Dec [illegible] 1835.

To the president and members of the council.

Gentlemen—Conformably to what I have [illegible] honor to show you in my last letter concerning [illegible] gada street, I am obliged to return [illegible] passed on the 7th inst on the same subject not that I have any particular objection to the resolutions themselves, but that they are on [illegible]

I do not well see the [illegible] of the incorporation in the lower part of the city, [illegible] by you: the objections that I have previously made on the project of incorporation so [illegible] as adopted by the council, retain all the force of my mind; and apply with greater force to [illegible] of the banlieu, whose actual state does not [illegible] improvement: for not only will the corporation be [illegible] compensated by taxes imposed on that part, [illegible] a loss in expense for maintaining the streets and public road, the levee and pavements, that these [illegible] themselves will be useless to that part where the [illegible] of commerce has not created communications. I am therefore compelled, gentlemen, to return you that resolution also.

With respect, I have the honor to be, etc,

D PRIEUR, Mayor.

P. S. I transmit you a letter of Mr L B Macarty concerning the incorporation of the lower banlieu.

D. P.

Mr Gaiennie moved to persist. Said he I have two to answer—Dr [illegible] and B Mc Carty—first on his vote; the second for his money. It is not the first time that he has been opposed to the vote of the mayor, nor will it be the last, if justice in his opinion requires. The mayor assigns as one of his reasons, that it will not pay tax sufficient to cover the expense; that the extension of commerce is not sufficient. Extension of commerce not sufficient! This to me is something new, and were I not fearful of being again accused of hostility I would add something that might be severe. Does the mayor speak truth, when he says that the expense will be greater than the interest to be derived—let facts speak for themselves. We have been told that [illegible] only thirty-eight persons; when the [illegible]—a vast, a very great difference. [illegible] no interest this number would not have [illegible]. I feel that I am equal with Mr Mc Carty, though he has an annual rent of [illegible] and in firmness I believe [illegible] his superior. [illegible] it may the revenue which Mr Mc Carty derives from renting the levee in front of his land—[illegible] dollar per foot per month is just as well in [illegible] of the corporation as in the pocket of Mr Mc Carty.

Mr Thomas called for the petition to [illegible] number of signatures. They proved to be [illegible] as stated by Mr Gaiennie. The gentleman [illegible] objections, but he could not distinctly hear what he said.

Mr Gaiennie replied by stating that it was wonderful how the last gentleman who spoke had changed his opinion. He [illegible] not for his part charge this change as having been produced by Mr McCarty having [illegible] the patient of the gentleman—neither would he say that because Mr Mc Carty had invited that gentleman to dine with him on a fowl, dressed "aux truffes," that such a wonderful change had been wrought. Oh, no!—he did not attribute to the gentleman such motives, because I myself have dined with him. I have received pecuniary assistance from him; but have spoken the next day in my official capacity against his positions; and I judge the gentleman as charitably as I would be judged myself.

Mr Thomas said that he could not possibly believe that because he might have eaten an "aile aux truffes" with Mr McCarty, that any gentleman would accuse him of paving his interests in his public capacity. True it was he was a personal friend of Mr McCarty, yet nothing could guide him in his vote but a sense of justice. The question to persist was put and lost.

The council adjourned till Friday next.

Mem.—[illegible] last report, the reason that Dr McFarland gave for his vote should have been thus stated. "I voted in favor of the amendment, because I do not believe [illegible] it is the province, nor even the prerogative of the city council to legislate either for the convenience or employment of any particular individual, or of any particular section; but for the general benefit of the entire community.

For the Bee.

Mr Editor—I will tell you an anecdote. A public character in a large city addicted to opprobrious terms called on a very worthy man with the intention of reproaching him for a supposed [illegible]. Not finding him at home however he wrote on the door with his pencil, 'Ass, scoundrel, fool.' The following day meeting [illegible] said he of the fool [illegible] called at your house yesterday, to —' [illegible] now it' was the reply, 'I saw you left your card at my door.' I observe sir you have been accused of [illegible] the bread out of Cuddy's mouth—another, whose bread he is probably eating, might with more truth complain of a robbery. The conductor of a public journal has but one course to pursue in his literary criticisms—to deal out justice with clean hands, without any partial inclinings; as soon as criticism assumes that cast it becomes Of odious word, a puff. It appears to the public that you have done Mr Cuddy no wrong. It appears to me individu-

To the Editor of the Bee,
Passo Cavallo, Nov [illegible]

Sir—I regret to inform you of the loss of the Hannah Elizabeth, Capt Chain, master, late from New Orleans. She was driven ashore on the 19th inst by the Mexican cruiser Bravo. The following particulars may be interesting to you.

When the news arrived at Matagorda, that an American vessel was pursued by a Mexican man of war, the whole village was up in arms. About twenty of its citizens, including the members of the committee of safety and vigilance, immediately volunteered their services and embarked in a schooner which was lying in port, determined to exert every nerve in behalf of the chase; well knowing the fate which awaited her and her passengers, in the event of their being overhauled.

They proceeded with all possible celerity to the Passo Cavallo; Capt Wm A Hurd, whose previous services in the cause of Texas, and well tried courage and abilities, had procured him the esteem and confidence of the volunteers, was chosen commander of the expedition, and there was a general disposition on board to make an attempt upon the Bravo, should they be so fortunate as to fall in with a thing so slippery; but she was not to be seen. The Hannah Elizabeth was descried alone near the point of the peninsula, a desolate and illfated wreck in the midst of the breakers. The sight was well suited to arouse the spirit of the volunteers; and it may readily be conceived that their ardour was but little diminished on being apprised of so welcome intelligence, as that the second lieutenant of the Bravo with a prize crew was on board. They disembarked and forming in order on they marched with a rapid and steady step. They soon presented themselves on the beach within a cable's length of the wreck, and in less than half an hour were aboard, and the Mexican lieutenant and twelve men under his command were made prisoners at discretion.

It would be superfluous to say any thing in praise of the volunteers or their commanders capt Hurd and judge S Rhoads Fisher. The result would have been the same had the whole crew of the Bravo been aboard of the wreck. A more miserable set of wretches than those who are engaged as seamen in the Mexican navy, could hardly be raked out of the very refuse of the earth; but they are honorable men; they are all, all honorable men! I will give you a proof of it presently.

Don Jose Victor Matteos, 2d lieut of the Bravo, in reply to the questions of judge Fisher and capt Hurd, informed them that capt Chain, nine passengers and three sailors were on their way to Matamoras in the said cruiser; he had intended sending the rest of the passengers aboard of the Bravo, amounting to five or six in number, but he lost his launch during the night of the 13th; he was compelled therefore to retain them on the Hannah Elizabeth, and the Bravo not choosing to wait any longer for them set sail for Matamoras. He also informed them that the Bravo sailed about a month and a half since from Vera Cruz, with orders to capture all vessels going to or from the ports of Texas.

Now for the laws of nations and the chivalrous character of the Mexican navy. There were about fifteen passengers on board the Hannah Elizabeth and several of them men of fortune as well as respectability: their trunks were ordered upon deck—the passengers or as many as could be sent a[illegible] ordered off to the Bravo—all their baggage left [illegible] the edification of the prize crew I suppose [illegible] as during the night, all the trunks were [illegible] what other [illegible] you [illegible] toys as watches, jewelery, gold [illegible] other [illegible] as happened to please the fastidious taste of those [illegible] gentry! An affidavit of this fact was made [illegible] one of the passengers Mr T Porter of Nashville) and transmitted to the provisional government of Texas.

Furthermore, the boarding officer in his solicitude to secure the prize, [illegible] forgot to inquire for the schooner's manifest, [illegible] though not the least resistance was made by [illegible] and passengers were politely passed off to the Bravo [illegible] it was known that there was a [illegible] contraband [illegible] on board. Glorious privilege of the Mexican navy, to act in accordance with international law [illegible] when it suits them not to act as pirates.

Don M[illegible] his light fingered [illegible] to be [illegible] Felipe de Austin; the [illegible] been brought [illegible] and disposed of at [illegible]

The [illegible] of this vessel as she lay [illegible] among the angry breakers, was melancholy [illegible] the scene. I certainly cannot blame [illegible] attempting to make [illegible] escape, though [illegible] pusillanimity is [illegible] no defence [illegible] to make an effectual one; for [illegible] whether he had contraband goods on [illegible] if she was bound as [illegible] liable to be seized [illegible] only fighting [illegible] part of that federal constitution which every citizen of the province has solemnly sworn to obey—fighting not as rebels but in maintenance of those principles which had been guaranteed to them by the general congress of Mexico, she would certainly be justified in resorting to a system of reprisal, she ought to do it as the [illegible] of protecting her coast.

COMMERCIAL LIBRARY.

We are requested [illegible] the following report made by a committee from the Board of Directors of the Commercial Library, to the annual meeting [illegible].

In appearing before you for the third time, to render the [illegible] of the [illegible] of this institution, we do so with [illegible] foreboding of the future prospects of the Library.—The lack of interest which [illegible] former report of the Board, has led to this [illegible] and that the doors of the Library [illegible] closed, not from the support derived [illegible] members, but from the uncertain [illegible] from whom we have no other claim [illegible] those of being mutually interested in the welfare of our city.

To our Landlord, Thomas Banks, Esq., we are under the deepest obligations,—to him we are indebted for the removal of the Library from the old rooms to its present central situation, and for the more substantial donation of a year's rent; with which, and the donations of a few merchants, who felt interest enough in its welfare, the Library has been enabled to reach its present period of existence, with a small surplus fund in the Treasury.

The additions of valuable works have been but very few—the [illegible] works of higher character has been [illegible] that, in justice to the wishes of a majority of the members, we have been compelled to apply our limited means to the purchase of books of that kind, to the exclusion of others of a more solid nature.

The Reading Room, or more properly the Newspaper department, has occupied the attention of the Board [illegible] creative, and of course [illegible] to the [illegible] being fully sensible that [illegible] no [illegible] of moment could be made [illegible] Bibliothecial department. We infer from these facts, that there is not sufficient literary enterprize in our community to create a Library for public benefit, and if this be admitted, it is the opinion of the Board that the Society must look elsewhere for the "means" upon which to work, than from the subscriptions of members. The fund derived from this source would be [illegible] well to keep the institution afloat, after [illegible] properly established; but it is idle to hope for any endowment from means so small.

Your Board see no other resource than to empower the Board of direction to apply to our Legislature for aid, at the approaching session, when they have no doubt that the knowledge of that body would place the society [illegible] which would enable the Board to increase the value and respectability of the Library to such an extent as will be a benefit and credit to the city.

It was the report of a northern lady some years since, after her return from an unsuccessful attempt to establish a circulating library in this city, that they needed no books. We sincerely hope that the times have changed, that we are not too proud or too selfish to patronize literature, and we hope, too, that the public spirit of our citizens is not at so low an ebb, as to suffer their own Library to expire from neglect; it cannot be. We would remind them of our motto, that "Liberty is our birthright, 'tis only by the diffusion of knowledge that we secure it to posterity," [illegible] reflect on this, and if they value the institutions of their fathers, they must support it.

We appeal to the professional gentlemen of [illegible] scarcely any of them take an interest in the [illegible] the society; many know not of its existence, [illegible] we think it should have most powerful claims [illegible] of information, and reference as a magazine of knowledge, which is continually augmenting. "Tall oaks from little Acorns grow," and small beginnings have laid the foundations of all the great Libraries in the world, so we hope that one small effort has produced a neuclus around which shall be gathered all that is curious, all that is useful, and all that can interest the scholar, the politician, the antiquarian or the merchant.

When your Board entered upon their duties; they had formed great expectations, and did intend making additions and improvements, but disappointment was their companion from the beginning; at every turn, an exhausted treasury warned them to stop, or precipitate the institution into ruin. Under these circumstances, your committee would suggest the necessity of urging the claims of the Library upon every one within the scope of the influence of its members, and patiently await the issue.

A few words might be said as to the utility of the Library. "If any there are who are doubtful of its merits, and who affirm that it has not accomplished its aim, let them bear in mind the constant struggles it has sustained with poverty, which has yearly threatened its destruction.

This a fact not to be denied, that the aberrations from virtue which formerly were so frequent among the young men of our city, have of late years almost entirely disappeared from among us. That the character of the young men of New Orleans has acquired a higher tone, and that they have, as a body, acquired more respect and more influence during the last four years, than they have hitherto enjoyed.

It may be presumption to ascribe this influence to the Commercial Library; but we think that the opening a place of resort for the evening, where the mind can be rationally amused and instructed, withdrawing it from the seductions of dissipation and vice, we say that the inference may be drawn.

The report of the Librarian appended to this, will show the number of volumes on the shelves, being a large increase on the last years report.

The Treasurer's report also appended, gives a detailed statement of our fiscal concerns for the year, all of which is respectfully submitted.

The Librarian's report was then read, by which it appears that the number of volumes in the library is 4,277, of which, 1400 are in the French language—that there are taken at the Library 70 newspapers, thirty-three magazines and periodicals, and that the number of subscribers is 272. The report of the Treasurer was then read, showing a balance on hand of four hundred and three dollars and ninety cents.

JAS. EVANS, Secretary.

An engineer is now employed in surveying a route for a railroad from Natchez to Woodville, with a view of extending it to the eastern counties.

[illegible] have [illegible] and dispassionate observers, [illegible] lately over most of the Southern, [illegible] and Western portions of our vast republic. They received from all they saw and heard, an impression decidedly favorable to the best hopes of [illegible] the most sanguine respecting the stability of our republican system and present Union. The great works of internal communication, either accomplished or projected, have not only produced, an incalculable increase of physical prosperity, and lucrative enterprise, but animated the most distant population with a lively interest in a durable connection with the Atlantic states, a greater confidence in the utility of the common national government, and a stronger fondness for the democratic institutions under constitutional law. The disorders that have been commited, though lamentable, were the work of a very small part only of the people, and in regions widely apart; and our travellers found that the true public sense and voice were against them almost every where as in our sea-board cities in which they were begun. Regular judicature has not lost its authority in any essential degree; and good example and sound doctrine in the Old states would materially serve to maintain that authority in the New.

In a nation so numerous, scattered over a surface so vast, possessing a personal liberty and independence unexampled in the annals of civilization, energetic, locomotive, self-directed,—strong excitement and consequent irregularities were to be expected occasionally and in particular quarters and circumstances. On the whole, however, legal and social spirit and order, and even religious restraint and subornation prevail in most of the communities; and the increase and diffusion of property are fixed to preserve the sentiments, ties and habits which form the basis of all durable polity.

We would not mix party politics with this interesting subject, universal as it is in one aspect; but we cannot refrain from adding that the chief hazards and worst omens for the Union and Constitution are supposed to lie in the administration of the general government, whether by congress, or the executive branch. It is indispensable that the functionaries of the people, at Washington, be capable of taking "a large view of the wide spread and infinitely diversified combinations of men and affairs" in our immense republican empire—that they should be 'men of deep understanding, fond of patriotism, open sincerity, and clear honor.' If wisdom and truth prevail in the general government, a[illegible] with foreign nations can be preserved, the [illegible] may see all his most splendid visions realized in a boundless popular felicity and power. The integrity of the Constitution is all in all. Let this be truly maintained, and the patriot may chant the old hymn prepared in honor of the restoration of a similar covenant.

"Let the heart of the rulers be glad, for the people are happy! May the light of the covenant be a lantern to the feet of the judges; for by this shall they separate truth from falsehood. O Justice be glad, for by this light all thy judgments shall be decreed with wisdom; nor shall any man say thou has erred. The fields are covered with golden harvests; the hills clothed with sheep, the woods sing with gladness. Plenty laughs in the vallies: Industry, Commerce, Liberty, and Concord dance hand in hand through the cities."

Drunkenness—In one gin-shop in Manchester not fewer than 2,000 persons, chiefly females, enter each Saturday evening from 5 till 12 o'clock. There enter weekly into 14 of the principal gin-shops of London, 142,453 men, 108,593 women, and 18,391 children, making a total each week of 269,437 for only 14 shops. The number of places for the sale of distilled spirits in London exceeds that of bakers, butchers and fishmongers, added together.—Parliamentary Evidence.

A French provincial journal contains the following ludicrous advertisement:—' 1,500 francs reward to whoever will restore to Madame Destables, of the department of Ardennes, her lost husband, who strayed from his home on the 14th of May, 1833. The money will be paid in cash, or by a trait on a banker, on delivery.'

A discovery has been recently made near Bordeaux of ancient tombs, which probably date from the time of Marcus Aurelius or that of Clovis. In these tombs were seeds in perfect preservation, some of which being sown, have produced flowers and fruit.

It is announced that the family of General Lafayette are occupied in forming a collection of his correspondence and his speeches, which will shortly be published.

The contracts have been made for the whole of the first division of the Mississippi and Pearl River railroad, and the work will go into operation immediately.

MOUNT HOPE COLLEGE.

THIS college is empowered by charter, to admit its students to any degree in the arts and sciences usually conferred by collegiate institutions. The classes are arranged to which on examination, students can be admitted.

The course of instruction is very ample, embracing ancient and modern languages; Mathematics, pure and mixed; the Humanities; Chemistry; Mineralogy; Natural and Moral Philosophy; Metaphysics; Botany, &c. &c., in all of which the student will be guided to search after sound and substantial information.

Lectures are delivered in the various branches of Natural Philosophy and Natural History; illustrated by experiments.

The college is about one mile N. W. of the city of Baltimore. It has an elevated and romantic situation. The salubrity of its location is unrivalled.

The grounds attached to the institution are extensive, and furnish ample room for the recreation, and, should it be desired, for the manual labor of the students. Gymnastic exercises are likewise attended to, though not forced upon them.

The utmost attention is paid to the morals and manners of the students. Those whose parents reside in the city, are required to spend Sunday with their parents—those from abroad, such places of public worship as their parents may direct. All sectarianism is carefully avoided.

The government is mild but firm. Should a student manifest an utter hostility to all expostulation, and persist in a violation of the rules of propriety, he will be expelled.

The personal health and comfort of the students, will occupy the undivided attention of the family of the president. In cases of sickness, they will have the same watchful care that would be paid to his own household. Their intercourse with the city is strictly guarded.

The maximum price for board and tuition, per annum, is	$200 00
Modern languages, each	20 00
Vocal and instrumental music, and drawing, at the lowest rates.
Stationery	2 00
Books, &c. at the booksellers' prices.
Each student furnishes his own room, unless it is otherwise desired,—in that case, a charge is made, of	10 00
Washing will amount to about	10 00
Library, (which sum is appropriated for the college library)	3 00

[illegible] of which is required to be paid in advance. Reference can be made to James M. Reynolds, esq. New Orleans; and Horace Carpenter, esq. of Port Gibson, Miss.

The officers are—

A PRESIDENT.

A professor of the ancient languages and Belles lettres.
A professor of the mathematics.
A professor of the French language.
A professor of the Spanish language.
A professor of drawing; and
A professor of instrumental music.

For the seven years since the institution has been in existence, there has been but one case of serious sickness, and that did not originate at the place.

O. W. TREADWELL,
President Mount Hope College.

* The French and Spanish languages are not considered as extra.

Sale of Valuable Lots.

WILL be sold at Hewlett's Exchange coffee house, on Thursday, 24th December, at 12 PM 190 Valuable Lots:

situated in faubourg Bouligny, and now the residence of Mr John M Bach. This property is the most valuable that has been for some time offered for sale, and is not only worthy the attention of those who wish to live retired with their families, but of those who wish to invest money and to be certain of a great profit, and is only sold as the proprietor's business compels him to reside in town.

These lots are all under fence, very elevated, and in high culture, and surrounded by a great many fine pecan, live oak, peach and orange trees. They are close to the river, and also to the railroad, and desirable for persons of any business or trade, as the upper country boats land there in great numbers; besides for a dairy or garden, the pasture being superior.

The buildings are all new and of the best cypress, having been planned by the proprietor on his mill, and arranged so as to be comfortable for any person.

Also, 14 batture lots, from 300 to 400 feet in depth, and still increasing. Adjoining, these lots there is a brick yard erected to go by steam, and also a steam saw mill. Some of these batture lots front Carrollton railroad on Napoleon st.

The terms will be very advantageous: one-fifth cash and the balance at 12, 18, 24 and 36 months; the notes to be drawn and endorsed to the satisfaction of the vendor, with mortgage until final payment.

Persons desirous of visiting the premises will find the vendor's agent there, who will show them said premises.

The plan will be exhibited at the Exchange Coffee house one week previous to the sale.

Acts of sale to be passed at the expense of the purchasers, before Theodore Seghers, notary public dec 11

BY B. BOUNY.

WILL be sold on Thursday 17th inst, at 12 o'clock, at Hewlett's Exchange,

2 handsome LOTS of GROUND, extremely well situated on the right bank of the river Mississippi, 1 of which lies opposite to the Ferry, and the other at one square from the river: the first one is well known, and its situation renders it very suitable for the establishing of a Coffee or Boarding house—there being on it a large house, together with dependencies, the dimensions are given on the plans exhibited at the above said Exchange house.

Terms—1 and 2 years credit; for notes endorsed at satisfaction and mortgage until final payment. The acts of sale to be passed before C. Pollock, notary public, at the expenses of the purchasers.

N. B. Such persons wishing to make purchases are desired to examine said property. dec 10—7

BY M. BARNETT Sr.

WILL be sold on Thursday the 17th inst. at 12 o'clock, at Hewlett's Exchange, without reserve, 85 valuable lots situated in the city of Carrollton, only one square from the rail road, and two squares from the Carrollton hotel. Terms—one fourth cash, the balance 6, 12 and 18 months credit without endorsers. Act of sale before Wm Boswell esq, at the expense of the purchasers.

The plan will be exhibited at the exchange on the 16th inst. dec 15

THE subscriber respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has lately returned from Europe with an elegant assortment of French and English goods, composed of rich jewelry and fancy articles of all descriptions, selected by himself with the greatest care, and to the inspection of which he begs leave to invite the attention of the ladies and gentlemen of New Orleans. He has likewise constantly on hand all descriptions of fine jewelry of the latest models of American manufactures.

He also takes pleasure in informing his customers and others, that he has engaged two excellent watchmakers, just arrived from Paris, and is therefore prepared to execute all kinds of work in the watchmaking line, with promptitude and he hopes to the satisfaction of every one. C. REDON, dec 14—6 66 Chartres st, corner of Bienville.

FOR SALE, or would be Exchanged for City Property.—A Valuable Sugar or Cotton PLANTATION, together with all the buildings and improvements thereon, situated at the English Turn, about a league below N. Orleans, on the left bank of the Mississippi, bounded on the lower side by land belonging to Mr. A. Lanaux and on the other side by that of M. Thomas A. Morgan, measuring 17 3-4 arpents front to the river Mississippi, by 40 arpents in depth, part [illegible] ing 6 arpents in [illegible] tract contains 40 superficial arpents, more or less.

The improvements consist of two comfortable dwelling houses, a sugar house 65 feet square, cattle mill, negro cabin, and a large fine distillery with two large copper stills, capable it is believed of distilling 70,[illegible] gallons of rum annually.

This property was formerly owned and occupied by Dr. Forsyth; the land is supposed to be equal to any in the state; 100 arpents are cleared, and the residue composed of good wood lands.

Persons disposed to purchase are invited to examine the premises, a plan of which can be seen on application to Maurice Casnon, as also the terms, which will be agreeable. dec 11—10
