PUBLIC LECTURE

☞ [illegible] a public gratuitous lecture [illegible] this evening at the St Charles Hotel [illegible] Ladies and Gentlemen of New Orleans [illegible] Dr H comes to us well recommended [illegible] Mobile papers, and appears to be [illegible] well versed in the science which he [illegible]

Can there be anything more absurd and incongruous [illegible] Prieurists. Professing to [illegible] very atmosphere of unpolluted Democracy, they [illegible] be more whiggish than the whigs [illegible] Though the Federalists are perfectly satisfied [illegible] Mr Roman's profession of faith, they are [illegible] Mr Roman has not exhibited [illegible] exposition of political [illegible] and should not re[illegible] party. Congress, May 28.

In the Senate three hundred private bills were received [illegible] A communication was received from the Post Master General stating in answer to a resolution [illegible] Senate, that no orders had been issued [illegible] notes for postage, [illegible] Postmasters had received the [illegible] which had redeemed with spe[illegible] The Senate resumed the consideration of [illegible] as amended, viz:

Resolved, That it shall not be lawful for the Secretary of the Treasury to make or to continue in force any [illegible] which shall create any difference between the different branches of the revenue, as to the money [illegible] of payment in which debts or dues [illegible] United States may be paid.

The question pending was on the amendment offered by Mr Morris, requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to receive only the notes authorized by law to be paid out to public creditors, that such notes should be presented [illegible] to the respective banks for payment, which should be deposited in special deposits and remain till withdrawn by order of the Secretary—that the notes of no banks issuing bills under five dollars should be received, nor of any bank not within [illegible] miles of the place where the notes should be offered in payment. The debate continued on this amendment.

In the House, Mr Russell proposed a resolution repealing so much of the deposit act that prohibits the reception of notes of banks that issue those of a less denomination than five dollars. It lies over for a day.

A motion was adopted calling on the President for all further information on the subject of the admission of Texas.

Various memorials were presented, among others one from Massachusetts asking the rescission of Mr Patton's resolution. Laid on the table.

The House afterwards resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole, and resumed the consideration of the bill making appropriations for Indian Hostilities.

Amusing episodes will sometimes occur to throw a gleam of variety into the monotonous career of an Editor's life. A hearty laugh at the grave absurdities of some of our brethren of the quill will occasionally relieve us from the tedious perusal of whole columns of common place. Now what must we think of the Toronto Patriot, whom we find greatly disposed to make one half the United States an appendage to the British crown, and to dissolve the Union that may exist in the other half. But hear what the Loyalist hims[elf] says:

"To prevent future squabbling about the northeastern boundary, we must have the state of Maine, the people having the privilege to go or stay. To prevent future General Scotts from foolish quibbling about waters, all the waters, and all the islands in the rivers and lakes must be ours. To prevent any future Governor Masons from quietly suffering the public arsenals to be robbed for the purpose of arming banditti, and from contributing from his own private means, money and rifles to said banditti, Michigan must be given up to the Queen of Great Britain; who will generously make it a refuge and a dwelling place for the Indians, who will at all times be her faithful allies, and at her calls be ready to shoulder the rifle and wild the tomahawk in defence of her crown and dignity; and finally, to give assurance to all Europe of future exemption from the pernicious effects of the hypocritical bawlings of sinister demagogues about liberty and equality, universal suffrage and the ballot, and put an end to a national swindling on the grand scale, the Union must be dissolved."

RISUM TENEATIS?—Is it not excellent? Modest gentleman! He only wants the States of Maine and Michigan, all the waters, and all the islands of the rivers and lakes for his youthful Queen. We agree with the Evening Post in dare-saying "that our readers go to sleep every night, without dreaming that they shall see in the morning Sir George Arthur's proclamation for the dissolution of the American Union." We certainly feel considerably terrified at the minacious and determined language of the Toronto Patriot, and we unquestionably are of opinion, that Government should immediately order strong detachments of troops along the frontier line to guard against the prospect of approaching invasion. We may otherwise have the whole of this fair territory wrested from us by the contumacious patriotism of the Canadian loyalists.

☞ We learn that the general government has purchased 296 acres of land on the Arkansas river for the sum of $15,000. It is on the site of Fort Smith, having a front of 100 yards on the Arkansas river, immediately below the Choctaw line. It is the intention of government to construct strong works at this point, and Capt Thomas of United States artillery has been selected as the superintendant.

STEAMBOAT SUNK.—The Little Rock Gazette of the 23d [illegible] states, that "they are informed by a gentleman from Sevier county, that a steamboat (name not recollected) laden with public stores for the U. S. troops at Fort Towson, was sunk in Red river, a week or two since, when only one or two hundred yards of the public landing of that post.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.—The Philadelphia Gazette states that "the schr. Cato, of Kingston, Mass, Capt Bacon, sailed from Charleston on the 2d of February, for Norfolk, and soon after was capsized; the lanyards being cut away, the masts went by the board, when she righted, and on the 8th she was fallen in with by a vessel bound to Russia, and the crew taken off and carried to Europe. A letter has been received in Boston, giving an account of the wreck and the rescue of the crew, who were long since given up by their friends as lost."

THE RAVELS.—During the trip of this remarkable family to the south, they realized the very large amount of $50,000. They are now performing at Niblo's Garden, New York. After their engagement they return permanently to France.

The Currency.

The following was the vote in the Senate on the motion to strike out the provision in Mr Clay's resolution requiring the notes of specie paying banks to be received by the government:

Yeas—Messrs Allen, Benton, Brown, Buchanan, Calhoun, Clay of Alabama, Cuthbert, Fulton, Grundy, Hubbard, King, Linn, Lumpkin, Lyon, Morris, Mouton, Nicholas, Niles, Norvell, Pierce, Robinson, Sevier, Smith of Conn. Strange, Trotter, Williams, Wright, Young—28.

Cold in Boston.

On the 25th May it was so cold in Boston that fires were indispensable to comfort. It is supposed that the great body of ice off Halifax, affects the temperature [illegible] Cold springs appear to prevail every where—in New Orleans we have never enjoyed more moderate weather for the season.

☞ The New York Sun says—"That Ruffian Ismus was stoned a high pass in Baltimore. Old Ladies are knocked down in the street with bludgeons without cause, and young ones are robbed of their [illegible] and so far, with the utmost impunity, in broad day light."

☞ The Common Council of New York have passed a resolution to enforce the ordinance against traffic on Sunday. Numerous traders in old clothes and matters and things in general, have been compelled, to their infinite discomfort, to suspend their [illegible] operations, and respect, at least passively, the Lord's day.

Feline Cookery.

A late Paris Police Report, says the Sun, informs us that a short time ago a cart, loaded with more than [illegible] cat skins, was brought to Prefecture of Police and behind the cart marched a man in a cook's dress, with downcast looks, between the Municipal Guards. It was the Grand Valet of the Rue de l'Hôtel de Ville in whose house had been seized the awkward proofs of the agreeable food with which he daily regaled his customers.

A Counter Petition.

To the petition presented by some of the Citizens of Charleston, to the Legislature, has been signed by other citizens, and is about to be transmitted to the same body. It opposes the former memorial, because the prayer of the petition contemplates a grant of more prerogative than those which formed the object of the meeting proposed by the mayor; and because there is said to be gross injustice and a violation of the principles of reciprocal insurance in the petition first presented.

☞ Mr William Butler the oldest inhabitant of the City of Philadelphia, and a soldier of the revolution, closed his earthly career a few days since. He was 108 years of age, and continued until a short time previous to his death to walk about the streets.

The Baltimore Republican hits the Conservatives hard in the following paragraph, not harder, however, than the hypocrites deserve:

Cobbett once compared the interest excited by watching a certain politician's career, to that which is felt in witnessing a duck hunt, the principal curiosity being to guess, when the duck dives, where it will come up again. And Cobbett could not have used a better simile in illustration of the character of certain politicians. In the present day we have quite a flock of these divers. Mr Tallmadge has "come up again," and just where we predicted he would some three or four months ago. The only excitement in regard to others of the third party who dived with him is not so much as to WHERE they will come up, as to WHEN. The where is pretty certain to be among the National bank abolition Clay party. The when, is the thing to be upon.

NEW YORK, May 28.

All the Montreal Banks resumed specie payments on the 23d instant and those of Quebec were expected to do so on the following day.

The Convention of South Carolina and Georgia Banks, which assembled at Charleston on Tuesday last, unanimously concurred in a resolution to resume specie payments on the 1st of January next.

Exchange for the French packet, which sailed on Saturday, was done at 5f 35 a 5f 36¼.

On Philadelphia, the rate is now 2 per cent discount.

THE POOLS OF SOLOMON.—These large, strong, noble structures, in a land where every work of art has been hurried to destruction, remain now almost as perfect as when they were built. There are three of them about 480, 600, and 660 feet in length, and 280 feet in breadth, and of different altitudes, the water from the first running into the second, and from the second into the third. At about one hundred yards distance is the spring which supplies the reservoirs, as the monks say, the sealed fountains referred in the Canticles, iv. 12. The water from these reservoirs is conveyed to Jerusalem by a small aqueduct, a round earthen pipe about ten inches in diameter, which follows all the sinuosities of the ground, being sometimes above the surface, and sometimes under. It is easily broken, and while I was in Jerusalem an accident happened which entirely cut off the water from these pools. There is every reason to believe that these pools have existed from the date assigned them, and that this was the site of one of King Solomon's houses of pleasure, where he made himself "gardens and orchards, and pools of water." The rain here ceased for a few moments, and enabled me to view them at my leisure; and as I walked along the bank, or stood on the margin, or descended the steps to the water's edge, it seemed almost the wild suggest on of a dream to imagine that the wisest of men had looked into the same pools, and strolled along the same bank, and stood on the very same steps. It was like annihilating all the intervals of time and space. Solomon and all his glory are departed, and little could even his wisdom have foreseen that long after he should be laid in the dust, and his kingdom had passed into the hands of strangers, a traveller from the land he never dreamed of would be looking upon his works, and murmuring to himself the words of the preacher, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity."—Buckingham.

CURIOUS DISCOVERY.—Extract of a letter from a practical chemist in London, to his brother in this city, dated 6th January, 1838: "An apparently most extraordinary discovery has been made by a Mr. Joyce, a gardener. It consists of a heating apparatus, adapted for all purposes, without the production of any smoke or smell—positively a production of heat alone. It is as I have just seen it, contained in an urn, the sides of which are so hot that it cannot be touched. It is moveable; may be taken into a carriage or into a room, or put into water, for raising steam. It may be suspended in a room like a lamp, or in any other way. I have closely examined it and can discover no source of heat. The fuel, they say, will not cost three pence for twelve hours to heat a large room; and this heat may be raised to such a degree as to melt the vessel which contains it. The discoverer will not give any information, as he intends taking out a patent for it in all the countries in Europe where he can be protected, and dispose of them all simultaneously. If it is a humbug, it is a [illegible] one. The heat will last for thirty hours without any renewal. The only conjecture I can form about it is, first, that there is no fire whatever in the vessel, and no fuel consumed; secondly, that it is some chemical process; and thirdly, that it is produced by the action of muriatic acid, upon marble, in the formation of carbonic acid gas, which is subjected to immense pressures, and thereby liquified or formed into solid carbonic acid, by which action an immense quantity of latent heat would be converted into sensible heat. All this is a mere surmise of mine, I can think of no other method but the condensation of some gas for the production of heat alone. The degree of cold produced by Thilorier, in making the converse experiment with solid carbonic acid, was 140 degrees below zero.—Boston Trans.

MEXICO.

To Sr E DE LISLE, Charge d'Affairs of France,
GOVERNMENT PALACE, Mexico,
April 19th, 1838.

The Charge d'Affairs, against treaty of the [illegible] of the Naval force [illegible] of the hostilities which have begun to take place, supposes that the nations have consecrated the principle that whenever [illegible] principles are disowned, there is no other remedy but force, and quotes some facts, which the undersigned shall abstain from judging. The Mexican ministry knows them, and many others, which are presented by an [illegible] history, to elevate and despise the character of the people, who have employed or abused force, to sustain the real motive or unjust [illegible] Civilization has already judged of these hostile acts of some nations against others here, and it is an [illegible] to judge also, of the difference between this republic and the Government of H. M. Mexico fears not this judgment.

Once again brought to discussion by the Charge d'Affairs, the question, that the shock between the two governments, will not be between the two nations, the undersigned must speak in a more explicit manner, on this subject, which has all that refers to the official acts of the French legation, has attracted particularly the attention of the President of the Republic. His Excellency sees already with displeasure, that the only desire of representing under an odious view his administration, has prompted the Charge d'Affairs to insist on such a distinction, because, how can it be sustained that this shock with the government will not be with the nation, when the cause is the not granting pretensions which attack the rights and dignity of the latter? Can the Charge assert he be, undermined and the deposition of functionaries which it may be executed lately trampling on the fundamental laws in only injure the government, and not the republic? Has it ever been seen that the international right has been intended to be exercised by a nation without the attacked nation resenting the offence? Does not the ultimatum speak of claims which correspond with all governments, does it not suppose facts which warned all opinions; all parties are not the language in which it is expressed united the masses of nation? How then was attacking good sense, can be intend to persuade us that the shock is from Cabinet, to cabinet? If the Charge d'Affairs believes that another [illegible] would agree to the pretensions of the ultimatum he undersigned assures that whoever it might be, being convinced of Mexicans, would act as the present has acted. If the Charge d'Affairs hopes that this distinction may be injurious to the government, the undersigned sees in it that this is a lamentable error of the great character that the American Republic always knows how to view of her government in the inspirations of patriotism and national honor, whose basis like the present. What the president well conceives is, that in the hostile measures of the Admiral and H M which are here countries, the French carry their whole object, and that it may be with a view to his regret the wrong impose to a friendly people, and the abuse of power. The position of both governments essentially diverse, because the Mexican, as one tends to the cause which the French case attacked. The first cannot separate itself from the nation because it belongs to both, and the second perhaps could depart to the opinion of France, with respect to the acts, on which it has supported its claims.

The Charge d'Affairs has thought it his duty to remind from the undersigned a categorical answer on the point whether or not the French Legation should continue its functions in Mexico, when the blockade would be enforced, of whose execution Mr de Lisle gives assurances, which he may be [illegible] well have only [illegible] The answer of the President is, that the permanency of the Legation is of continuance to the intervention of Mr Bazo he has lost [illegible] with the consequent [illegible] between the two countries.

As towards [illegible] the protection which the governments owes to Frenchmen residing in the Republic, the Charge d'Affairs had no need to demand explanations of the Ministry, because the government knows, that the government has taken [illegible] the most [illegible] of the naval forces [illegible] of his [illegible] which have [illegible] with as much [illegible] the honorable [illegible] the explanation [illegible] M.
