NEW-ORLEANS MONEY MARKET.
CORRECTED DAILY.

[illegible]

Commercial.

NEW-ORLEANS, WEDNESDAY EVENING, November 25, 1840.

At a late hour last night a list of 1019 bales Cotton was disposed of, and which were not included in our semi-weekly review of yesterday. The price of this lot has been kept secret. The market to-day has again presented a very animated appearance, and fully 2,500 bales have changed hands at very full prices if not at a slight improvement on our quotations. The demand has in a great measure extended to the finer grades, which are eagerly sought after for the northern factories. Amongst the sales alluded to we notice 200 bales at 7½—70 at 9½—240 a 8 1-16—50 at 9¼—184 at 8¾—400, of which a selection of 100 bales, very choice, at 11½c, and the balance at 10c, besides various other lots, the particulars of which we are unable to give.

An active inquiry has existed throughout the day for Sugar, and about 200 hhds were disposed of generally for export, at rates varying from 5 a 5½c. We notice a sale on plantation of 120 hhds, at 5½c, and another of 260, at the same price. We understand that the cane has suffered some damage from the late severe frost which occurred three days ago, but do not apprehend that the injury has been as great as some persons pretend to believe. The inquiry for Molasses is limited to small sales, at from 23 to 24c; 22c. is freely offered for large lots.

The Flour market has been quite brisk to-day, and some considerable operations have been effected at $4 50, from the levee; amongst which we notice a few sales for export. Holders are exceedingly firm at these rates, and generally refuse to dispose of well-known baker's brands at the current quotations.

In other descriptions of Western Produce the transactions continue to a fair extent, and the market is well supplied with provisions of all kinds. We quote clear-branded Mess Pork, at $17 00—Mess, $16 00 Prime, $14 00. Bacon sales of Sides, at 8½ @ 9c.—Shoulders, 6½ @ 7c. Lard continues dull, at 10 @ 10½c for the very best quality.

We have no alteration to notice in Exchange. Sterling, 8½ @ 9 per cent. prem. ($4 82 @ $4 85 per £1 sterling)—France, 5 15—New-York, 60 ds. S. par to ½ per cent. dis, and in good demand. There is a fair inquiry for Sight Checks, at 1½ @ 1¾ per cent. prem.

DOMESTIC MARKETS.

THEATRICAL.

St. Charles.

We are sorry to perceive the St. Charles theatre so thinly attended. There have not been more than one or two good houses since its opening. The exquisite readings of Mr. Tasistro have failed to attract more than a select and intelligent few who can relish the language of Shakespeare enunciated with proper emphasis, accent and dignity. Even the very superior histrionic capacities of Mrs. Sloman—a lady who is inferior to no actress in America—have been displayed before a miserable assortment of vacant benches and empty boxes. The dress circle which should be graced with the beauty and fashion of our city, presents a dreary void, while the vast parterre looks dismal and desolate amid range upon range of unoccupied seats.

We say we are sorry for this. Mr. Caldwell is a bold, adventurous and enterprising citizen, who has toiled indefatigably to render New Orleans the abode of the muses and graces; who has lavished immense sums upon the construction and embellishment of the magnificent temple which adorns our city, and who has done more in his individual capacity, for New Orleans, than perhaps any other person. He merits some reward for his exertions—some token that those who are indebted to him for a gorgeous theatre, appreciate his energy and are not ungrateful. The public certainly owe something to Mr. Caldwell, and have as certainly been but niggard in their payments.

On the other hand we would respectfully suggest that while the proprietor of the St. Charles has conferred a lasting benefit on New Orleans, by the erection of a splendid theatre, he has not been as energetic or as thoughtful in furnishing it with those aids and appliances by which alone it can be rendered valuable to him. We mean an efficient and popular company. Say what we will, people will not visit the theatre unless they like both the performers and performances. Now, as regards the first, they are not absolutely bad, but lack variety and versatility. In the female line, they are deficient. Mrs. Field is the only really capable actress in the whole list. As a consequence she is over tasked. Neither is there a singer of the slightest pretensions in the troupe. Among the gentlemen, Mr. Field is an ambitious and clever actor. Mr. Pearson is very tolerable in certain parts, and Mr. Barrett, though peradventure scarcely fitted for the juvenile characters he was once wont to perform with such inimitable grace, is still a highly respectable comedian. If there is any body else worth mentioning in the company, we are yet to learn his name. The corps dramatique of the St. Charles would do very well for some small inland town, or for an itinerant company, but as attached to the largest theatre in America, and to the city of New Orleans with her hundred thousand inhabitants, it is at the best, barely tolerable.

In respect to the performances, there is want of taste in the selection. This is doubtless partially attributable to the lack of varied talent in the company. The "Lady of Lyons" and "Peter Wilkins," and "St. George and the Dragon" are repeated usque ad nauseam, before miserably bare and spiritless audiences, in a great measure because the company is not strong enough to attempt a higher flight. The goodness of Mr Caldwell's heart has induced him to keep before the audience certain performers who are absolute eyesores—the mere lees and dregs of a once very handsome company. Their vulgarity, grossness, and ignorance of the first principles of their art, combined with other causes, have almost banished the fashionable portion of our city from the precincts of the theatre.—this is one reason why the audiences are principally confined to what is termed the floating population.

To ensure success to the St. Charles, we do not think a first rate company indispensable. Let it only be good in any particular and popular range of the drama, or let its force be but fairly and equally distributed throughout the various departments of the histrionic art, and it can hardly fail to succeed. Let the company be eminently fitted for comedy, melo drama, or even tragedy, (the least popular of all) and it will command respect, attention and patronage. If this cannot be accomplished, let the corps dramatique be well selected, and full. Deficiency in a particular line of character is quickly detected, and invariably causes a piece to halt in the representation.

The general imperfection of the performances has caused the theatre to be deserted, so that even when real merit is offered to the public, it not unfrequently happens that they are indifferent and apathetic. As an illustration of this remark, we would cite the engagement of Mr Tasistro and Mrs. Sloman. On Tuesday evening Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" was decidedly well played to something less than a hundred persons. The public have been so often taught to expect much, and so often disappointed and deceived, that they distrust every promise, and can with difficulty be persuaded to attend the St. Charles.

One source of just complaint arises from the slovenly manner in which good performers are supported by the stock company. There is no ambition, no professional pride discernible in those who personate inferior characters. They throw the whole burden and responsibility of the performance upon the prominent player. Instead of aiding, they embarrass those who take the leading parts. They do not seem to feel the slightest disposition to add to the effect of a piece. The stage frequently has to wait upon them; and when they do appear, they are generally as oblivious of their parts, as if they had just emerged from the bottom of Lethe. From this cause the best performers are unable to give satisfaction to the audience. It is just as impossible to dispense with the minor parts as it is with the hero of a play. Richard III could be as easily played without a Gloucester as without a Richmond. Nine times in ten, when that play is performed, the exclamation of the "hunchback tyrant," "Richard is himself again," might just as appropriately be read—Richard is himself alone.

We have been betrayed into a long article, when we had intended to offer only a few observations upon the performance of the Merchant of Venice, from a desire to point out to the manager some of the causes which have interfered with the success of the Temple. We might extend these remarks; but enough for the present. As to the complaint in the last paragraph. There are one or two members of the stock company, who were once favorites, and who really possess considerable histrionic abilities. They have shuffled themselves out of favor by the careless manner in which they prepare themselves for the stage.—Mr. Caldwell should have no one upon the boards of the St. Charles, who does not feel proud of his profession; who is not ambitious to please. The moment they lose their self respect and a proper disposition to give satisfaction, their places should be supplied by those who are at least willing to exert themselves. Incapacity is more tolerable than negligence. An audience feel flattered by the honest efforts of a bad performer; they are insulted by the apathy of a good one.

Mr. Tasistro plays Macbeth this evening at the St. Charles, to Mrs Sloman's Lady Macbeth. A new farce called the Printer's Devil, in which comical George Holland appears, forms a portion of the evening's entertainments.

We understand that Mr. Power, the unrivalled representative of the Irish character, is engaged at the St. Charles. Rumor speaks of the engagement of the Woods. We hope the latter item is well founded.

We have received a note from a respectable gentleman of this city, in which he states his belief that the report of Col. Phillips' death is unfounded, and requests us to contradict it. Our information was derived from good authority, but it is quite possible we were mistaken; at all events we hope so.

A distinct shock of an earthquake was felt in Philadelphia on the 14th inst. It was preceded by a violent rain and thunderstorm.

THE ELECTIONS.

The election news may be included in a very brief space. Indeed it is nearly all one way. Nothing scarcely but "Tip and Ty."

Vermont.—Sixty-nine towns show a whig majority of 4840 and a gain of 1701 since September. The majority can hardly fall below 15,000, and may rise above it.

Massachusetts.—Harrison's majority in the state is 18,154. Honest John Davis has fallen a little behind Harrison, in consequence of a large number of abolitionists voting for Morton. His majority is within a fraction of 16,000.

North Carolina still goes ahead in splendid style. At the rate of gain in the few counties heard from, Harrison's majority will exceed 10,000, the exhortations of the Richmond Enquirer to the contrary notwithstanding.

Kentucky will dispute the flag with Vermont and Rhode Island. We have seen returns from fifty-two counties, which give 20,000 majority.

Indiana—Sixty counties gain—16,000 majority for Harrison. About 25 to be heard from.

Ohio.—Gen. Harrison's majority in the Buckeye state is a little over 23,000.

New-York, Nov. 16, 1840.

LATE FROM MONTEVIDEO AND BUENOS AYRES.

The ship Brutus, captain Adams, has just arrived from Montevideo, whence he sailed on the 13th of September last.

She brings intelligence that Buenos Ayres was still blockaded by the French on the 5th of the same month. That day closed the 893d of the blockade. All parties were looking for the arrival of Admiral Baudin, from France. It was expected that he would settle the difficulties between the two governments in the same speedy manner that he did those of Mexico, at Vera Cruz, about a year ago.

Corrientes has been invaded by a division of Governor Echague's army, under the command of General Servando Gomez. Sr. Ferré, the revolutionary governor of that province, has published a proclamation in which he inveighs in no measured terms against Lavalle, and the fatal men of what he terms his clique, who have made him embark in an irrealizable enterprize. He accuses Lavalle of treachery and ingratitude, and in his forlorn situation throws himself upon the generosity of Don Fructo Rivera for protection.—This appeal is backed by another from Don Jose Maria Paz, who says he finds himself in a position he did not at all anticipate.

Internally nothing extraordinary had taken place. Tavalla had landed in the province, and Rosas had stationed his forces about five leagues from Buenos Ayres. From appearances, however, it was not likely that a battle between them would soon occur. We make some extracts, to show the state of the interior:

The progress of the invaders is reported to have been attended with so many and so revolting atrocities, that, for the sake of humanity, it is to be hoped there is exaggeration in the detail.

Treasury bills in circulation on 1st inst. 4,375,000 dollars.

The U. S. ship Marion, 16 guns, captain William J. Belt, sailed from Buenos Ayres Sept. 2d, for Montevideo, with the lady of Alfred M. Slade, Esq., consul of the United States, and daughter, Miss Agnes Slade, on board, as passengers, on their way to the United States.

COMMERCE OF NEW ORLEANS.

From the statistics given in the last number of Hunt's Merchants' Magazine some idea may be formed of the increase of the trade of New Orleans within the last ten years. In 1830, '31, the quantity of cotton exported from that city to various ports amounted to 424,684 bales. The quantity in 1839, '40 is set down at 954,191 bales; showing an increase of 529,493 bales. The increase for the designated period amounts to more than the whole exportation for the first year thereof. The largest portion of cotton thus exported was sent to Great Britain; the next largest quantity to France.

In 1830, '31, the Tobacco exported from New Orleans amounted to 34,967 hhds. In 1839, '40, the quantity was 28,029 hhds; indicating a decrease of 6,940 hhds. At an intermediate period between the two years just mentioned the export of tobacco was greater than for either of them; the quantity exported in 1835, '36, being 43,941 hhds. The greatest part of the tobacco has always been shipped coastwise.

The exportation of sugar from New Orleans to various ports amounted in 1835, '36, to 5677 hhds and 3126 barrels; in 1839, '40, to 45,511 hhds and 597 barrels. The increase for this period was 39,834 hhds. and 2840 barrels. The increase in the exportation of molasses for the same period was 7925 hhds and 33,637 barrels. The greatest part of these two articles was shipped coastwise.

New Orleans, as well as the other great cities of the Union, may now look forward to a period of unusual prosperity. The establishment of sound principles of finance, the introduction into the government of able statesmen, who understand the genius of the country and who will devote themselves to the fostering of her interests, must tend to give new confidence to business men, and therewith a new impulse to activity and enterprise in all the departments of industry and trade. The increase that has taken place in the commerce of New Orleans, as indicated by the statistics above given, advanced through many difficulties, and in spite of depressions and discouragements. The tabular statements of the last ten years will form no criterion by which to estimate the progression of the ten years next to come.

Religious Statistics.—The following information collected with much trouble by the Committee of the Society for the propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts, is interesting:

Christians	260,000,000
Jews	4,000,000
Mahometans	96,000,000
Idolaters of all sorts	500,000,000
Total population of the world	860,000,000

WILLS AND TESTAMENTS.
NO. IX.

In Louisiana all testaments are divided into three principal classes, viz:—Nuncupative, Mystic and Olographic. The nuncupative testament, sometimes called the open testament, may be made either before a notary or under private signature. If made before a notary it must be in presence of three witnesses who reside in the place of making the will, or of five residing out of the place, must be dictated by the testator and written by the notary as dictated—must then be read to the testator in presence of the witnesses—and all this must be done at one and the same time without interruption, and "without," as the law expresses it, "turning aside to other acts." This will must be signed by the testator, if he can sign, and if not, the fact and the cause of it must be stated by the notary.—The witnesses must all sign, if they are able, and one of them at least must be able, and if the others are unable, this one may sign for all.

The nuncupative testament under private signature must be written by the testator himself or by some other person by his dictation;—one of the witnesses may write it.—To this will there must be five witnesses all residing in the place where the will is received, or seven witnesses residing out of that place. Or it will suffice, if in the presence of the same number of witnesses, the testator presents the paper on which he had written his testament, or caused it to be written out of their presence, declaring to them that that paper contains his last will.

In either case the will must be read by the testator to the witnesses, or by one of the witnesses to the rest, in the presence of the testator. It must be signed by the testator, if he knows how or is able to sign and by the witnesses or at least by two of them, in case the other knows not how to sign and those of the witnesses who do not know how to sign must affix their mark.—In the country, this will is valid if it be passed in the presence of three witnesses, residing in the Parish where the statement is received, or of five witnesses residing out of the Parish, provided that in this a greater number of witnesses cannot be had.—It is important to know who may and who may not be received as witnesses to a will.—The following persons are by law declared absolutely incapable of being witnesses. 1st. Women of what age soever. 2d. Male children who are under sixteen years of age. 3d.—The deaf, the dumb, the blind and the insane. 4th. Persons whom the criminal laws declare incapable of exercising civil functions. 5th. Slaves—nor can any testament, except the mystic testament be witnessed by those who are constituted heirs, or named as legatees, under whatever title it may be.

The mystic or secret testament, otherwise called the closed testament is made in the following manner:

The testator must sign his dispositions, whether he has written them himself, or has caused them to be written by another person. The paper containing these dispositions, or the paper serving as their envelope, must be closed and sealed. The testator must present it thus closed and sealed to the notary and to seven witnesses, or he shall cause it to be closed and sealed in their presence. Then he shall declare to the notary, in presence of the witnesses, that that paper contains his testament written by himself, or by another by his direction, and signed by him the testator. The notary shall then draw up the act of superscription, which shall be written on that paper or on the sheet that serves as its envelope, and that act shall be signed by the testator, and by the notary and the witnesses—each and all of these formalities must be strictly observed otherwise the testaments as null and void.

It would by no means be advisable that any person should attempt, to make a will in either of the above modes without the advice of a skilful lawyer. So much nicety is requisite in the observance of the several forms, that they should be attempted only with the book in hand. A single deviation, however trivial, destroys the whole, and an estate, the disposition of which the testator imagines that he has directed is quite likely to pass in a very different manner.

NO. X.
WILLS AND TESTAMENTS.

There is one form however by which a will may be made in Louisiana, which is not subject to none of the dangers of inaccuracy before mentioned, and is so simple as to be easily within the reach of all. I mean the olographic will, so called, because it is written by the testator himself. It is only necessary to the validity of this will that it be written, dated and signed by the hand of the testator, and it may be made any where, even out of the State—(It is of course understood that any will made either in a foreign country or in any state of the union is good and valid here, if it be clothed with all the formalities required in the place where it is made.)

All erasures made in an olographic will are considered as not made unless they are mentioned and approved by the testator.

Our law mentions two other kinds of will, viz:—those made by persons engaged in any military expedition, and those made during a voyage at sea. To the validity of the first it is only requisite that it should be received by any commissioned officer in the presence of two witnesses—if the testator be sick or wounded, the surgeon who attends him may receive it in the presence of the same number of witnesses. This testament is null six months after it is made if the testator survives and returns during that time to a place where he has an opportunity of employing the usual forms. Testaments made at sea may be received by the captain or master, in presence of three witnesses, taken by preference from among the passengers, and in default of passengers, from among the crew. The testator can make no disposition in favor of any person employed on board the vessel, unless they should be his relations. This will becomes void unless the testator dies at sea, or within three months after he has landed in a place where he is able to make his will in the ordinary forms.

The name which is given to a testament under our law signifies nothing. A mystic will, for instance, may be bad as such, and yet declared good under the olographic form.

The transmission of property by our law where there is no will, is much more wise and equitable than that pointed out by the common law. There have been instances in this state where the heirs themselves have been instrumental in having wills made in their favor set aside, preferring that the [illegible] of the property should be governed by the rules of the code.

There was an attempt made in our last legislature to destroy one of the most beautiful branches of these rules. Fortunately it failed and may every such attempt at innovation meet with the same result. The whole system is a beautiful one. To those who enjoy the advantages of it, may the words of Cicero in his oration for (Cluentius) be well addressed—"[illegible] me, a more inestimable inheritance descends to you from the law, than from those who have left, or may leave you fortunes. A farm may be transmitted to me by any one, but it is by the law alone that I can peaceably hold what is already my own. You ought therefore to retain the public patrimony of the laws which you have received from your ancestors, with no less assiduity than you retain your private estates, not only because they are fenced and protected by the law, but for this further reason, because the loss of private fortune affects only an individual, whereas the loss of the law would be deeply detrimental to the whole commonwealth."

It is as long since I have looked into the original of Cicero, as it is since I have read the Greek of Pericles, but the above translation is perfectly correct;—I take it from an English writer.

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF LOUISIANA.

Wednesday, November 25th, 1840.

The court met—Present their Honors, F. X. Martin, A. Morphy and Rice Garland—Rules of Court.

The court this day adopted the following rules and ordered the same to be recorded on the minutes:

"The court will hereafter require of candidates for admission to the bar, whether previously licensed in another state or not—1st evidence of citizenship of the United States—2d of good moral character, and 3dly except when a licence is produced from another state, evidence of one years residence in this state. The court will not be satisfied with the qualification of a candidate in point of legal learning unless it shall appear to examination that he is well read in the following course of studies at least—Story on the Constitution—The general laws of the United States—Vattel's Law of Nations—The Louisiana Code—The Code of Practice—The Statutes of the State of a General Nature—The Institutes of Justinian—Domat's Civil Laws—Pothier's Treatise on Obligations—Blackstone's Commentaries—Kent's Commentaries—Chitty or Bayley on Bills—Starkie or Phillips on Evidence—Russell on Crimes and the Jurisprudence of Louisiana as settled by the decisions of the Supreme Court—The examination shall be conducted in the following manner:—Every three months in the Eastern District and at the commencement of each term in the Western District the court will appoint from among the members of the bar, a committee of seven who will be earnestly requested to lend their aid to the court [illegible] certificate from the committee that he has been strictly and rigidly examined by them upon the above works and that he is in their opinion qualified for admission to the bar, the court will admit him to a public examination, and if [illegible] concur with the committee, [illegible] candidate will be admitted [illegible] attorney and counsellor at law, [illegible].

This rule is to apply in both Districts of the Supreme Court and the clerks will publish it in a newspaper in each district."

The following members of the bar are appointed by the court to form the committee of examination:—Messrs. Mazureau, Eustis, Strawbridge, Roselius, Denis, Grymes, and Levi Peirce.

I certify the foregoing to be a true extract taken from the minutes of the Supreme Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana.
