NEW ORLEANS BEE

J. MAGNE & WEISSE, PROPRIETORS.
NO. 81 CHARTRES STREET.

Official Journal of the State,
AND COUNCIL OF MUNICIPALITY No. 3

NEW-ORLEANS.
TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 1, 1845.

☞ The Northern Mail did not arrive yesterday, in consequence, we understand, of the steamer Fashion running aground, on Saturday, near Biloxi, while on her way to Mobile.

☞ The election for President of Mexico appears to interest the people of that republic almost as much as the Texas question. The most prominent candidates for the office are HERRERA, PEDRAZA, BRAVO and ALMONTE. Of these the President ad interim—HERRERA—stands undoubtedly the best chance. There as here, possession is nine points in the law, and the patronage appertaining to the executive office, a powerful lever in elevating its incumbent a second time. We have reason to believe, however, that the departments will fail to effect a choice by reason of a multiplicity of candidates. There are twenty-five provinces in Mexico, and the votes of a majority (13) must be given to a candidate to ensure his success. HERRERA will unquestionably obtain a plurality over any of his competitors. The most popular candidate after him is PEDRAZA; but none of them enjoy an influence overwhelming enough to secure an absolute majority.

The mode of conducting a presidential election in Mexico resembles in some respects the system adopted in the United States. If any one candidate fail to obtain a majority of the votes cast, the election devolves upon the Chamber of Deputies. That assembly is bound to select a President from among the two candidates having the greatest number of votes. This being the case, it is highly probable that HERRERA, the acting President, will after all, be confirmed in his office. His influence with Congress is yet greater than with the electors, and should the choice of a President be thrown upon the National Legislature, his success will be no longer problematical.

We had imagined that the part recently played by ALMONTE in protesting against annexation and returning to Mexico, might have rendered him highly popular among the warlike spirits of that country, but we hear from very good authority, that he stands but a poor chance. His time is not yet come. He is a growing man, and some years hence may reach the presidency, but his influence is not ripe enough at present to enable him to attain the pinnacle of his ambition.

PHILADELPHIA.—A Philadelphia paper, the Ledger, in an article illustrating the remark of Mr. Jefferson, that great cities are great sores, speaks of Philadelphia in no very gracious term. We can add nothing, observes the Ledger, to what we have said about the barbarisms, the Vandalisms of our own city. Its groggeries, its riots, its murders, its devastation of public buildings, its house burning, hall burning and church burning, firemen's fights, insurrections, rebellions, treasons, and last, and by no means least, its wanton destruction of pictures, statues and other specimens of the fine arts, things which have been respected in all ages, by all nations, excepting, Huns, Vandals, Turks and English, are all before the world to tell their own story.

This is a revolting portrait of the city known emphatically as that of "Brotherly Love," and yet it must be presumed faithful, for it is limned by one residing in its midst, and with no prejudices to mar his execution.—These are the people, too, who are seized with paroxysms of horror at the word "slavery," who look upon peaceful, moral and quiet New Orleans as a moist charnel house, and a den of assassins and marauders, and who fancy that when their children venture hither in the pursuit of fortune and the spirit of enterprise, they are falling into a vast Pandemonium of vice and crime, where extrication is impossible. To hear some of these lackbrains speak of New Orleans, one would suppose that it was a spot so horrible, that like Dante's Inferno, it should bear the inscription:

"Voi che entrate qui, lasciate ogni speranza."

☞ We had a heavy shower on Sunday evening, accompanied by several thunder claps. Their effect has been to reduce the temperature slightly and render the heat somewhat more supportable.

SHIPWRECK.—The Charleston Mercury of the 23d June says: The ship NEWARK, Morgan, from Mobile for New York, with 709 bales cotton, went ashore on Pickles reef, 6th inst—the vessel had bilged and would be a total wreck. The whole of the cargo had been saved, part in a damaged state, taken to Key West and sold.

The schr. Strauch, from Mobile for Baltimore, put into Key West 10th inst., with loss of head stays, sails &c. She would leave in a few days for her destination.

THE LARGEST STEAMBOAT ever built was launched at New York a few days ago. It is in length 340 feet, in breadth of beam 35 feet, and including guards, 68 feet; depth of hold 13 feet, and measures 1280 tons. She covers the same water that a sea-going vessel of 2900 tons would, and is called the Hendrick Hudson. She is designed to run as an evening passenger boat between New York and Albany, on the independent plan. Another monster steamer, 200 tons larger than the above, is now being built.

EARLY PRINCIPLE.—A fine little fellow named Joseph Freeman, living in Philadelphia, found and at once returned to the owner, a check of Chamley & Whelen, for nine hundred and fifty dollars, which had been lost and advertised.

We cannot, observes the North American, wish him a better reward than an uniform preservation of the good principles which his conduct has evinced.

FOREIGN ITEMS.
MUSICAL AND THEATRICAL.

"Don Giovanni has been a sort of standing dish at the Italian Opera,—Rita Borgo, Castellan, and Fornasari being the principal singers.

The extra night of Thursday was signalised by the rentree of Carlotta Grisi, in her favorite Esmeralda.—She is as charming and piquant as ever, and danced with infinite grace and spirit—that buoyant spirit of youth, which is the very essence of a dancer's attractions, and which Carlotta Grisi shares with Cerito, to an extent that has never been surpassed by any modern artist.

Between the acts of the opera on Thursday, Cerito and Grahn danced, each, one of their favorite pas; and in the ballet, the Viennoises gave their "Rococo" with capital effect.

Another extra night was announced, when the following artists would appear, Grisi, Mario, Fornasari, Lablache, Moranni, Castellan, Cerito, Lucille Grahn, Carlotta Grisi, and the Viennoises.

Anna Thillon has been too indisposed to reappear in the Enchantress, and Miss Romer is studying the part.

"Time Works Wonders" was being played every night at the Haymarket.

Miss Cushman was still at the Princess's Theatre.—She was announced for Julia in the Hunchback—Wallack playing Master Walter.

BEETHOVEN.—The most extensive preparations are making throughout Germany, for the inauguration of the statue erected to this great composer, in August next. There will be a monster concert, consisting of some thousands of vocal and instrumental performers.

General Tom Thumb is the lion of the day in Paris.—Indeed, almost all the other theatres are deserted; but the Vaudeville, where Mr. Thumb plays the hero, is crammed every night to suffocation.

The Ioway Indians are continuing their exhibition, but they do not excite upon the whole as much curiosity as they did in London.

Rachel is attracting crowds to the Français by her unrivalled acting in Virginie, an original tragedy—the only original piece in which she has gained success.—There was an idle report current a little while ago that this distinguished performer intended to visit America, but it is needless to say that there was but the slightest foundation for it.

What is called the legitimate drama is in as rickety a state in France as in the United States and Great Britain. One "legitimate" theatre has been compelled to close the doors from the bankruptcy of its director; and the Theatre Francais, itself; munificently supported as it is by the public purse, is in anything but a prosperous state. The only theatres which pay well in Paris are those in which vaudevilles, burlesques, and fairy tales are performed. The Grand Opera, backed as it is by nearly 70,000 francs per annum from the public exchequer, can only boast of a precarious existence. The Opera Comique, another musical theatre, does better. But theatrical property and theatrical speculation, taken altogether, are in France, as in every other part of the world, nothing like what they were half a century ago.

MR. C. MATHEWS AND HIS CREDITORS.—On Saturday a dividend of 1s 6d. in the pound was declared under the estate of Mr. C. Mathews, in the insolvency in the Court of Bankruptcy, arising from a portion of his professional income being set aside for the creditors. The debts proved to amount to upwards of £8000, the dividend was declared on the amount at present in the hands of the official assignee. The payment of a part of Mr. Mathew's income, jointly with his wife's, will be continued; and now that the debts have been ascertained, the creditors will be paid as the funds are placed in the hands of the official assignee.

Bernadot Vestris, the grandson of the great Vestris, died a week since at Milan. With, perhaps, the exception of Parrot, he was the greatest chorographist of the age; many of the works which he had invented for the Scala proved a poetical mind and a truly classical spirit.

Madam Hassell Barth, the celebrated prima donna, from the Imperial Theatre at Vienna, has arrived in London.

Maria di Rohan, one of the Donizetti's second rate operas, is in high favor at Madrid. After having been constantly performed at the rival theatre, it has just been brought out at Theatro del Circo, for the debut of Ronconi.

All the principal artists of the opera at Paris have been suffering from inflammation of the larynx. Barroilhet, Levasseur, Massol, Ganaple, Gardoni, and Mdlle. Stoltz are placed hors de combat. The Academie Royale de Musique has been styled by the Calembourists the "Infirmarie Royale de Musique."

The musical event which now forms the prominent topic of conversation at Milan, and completely absorbs the interests of the dilettanti, is the still increasing favor of the new prima donna, Emilia Scotta.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

☞ John Dailey, charged by Mr. Ker with forging a note for the amount of $20, will be examined this morning before Recorder Baldwin.

REMANDED.—Luke, a slave of Mr. Buisson, charged with stealing silver plate and articles of clothing from the house of Mr. Aimé Potaut, in Bienville street, on Thursday evening last; and Perry Youngham, charged with allowing free negroes and slaves to gamble in his house in Bienville street, were yesterday arraigned before Recorder Genois, and remanded for further examination.

☞ Yesterday morning, a negro woman, the property of Mrs. Durel, was run over by a cart (No 850,) and severely injured. We understand there was no driver in the cart at the time of the accident. The horse and cart were taken in custody by the Police of the First Municipality.

CRIMINAL COURT.—James Miller, charged with larceny, was yesterday put upon trial and found not guilty.

A. Fernandez, charged with assault and battery, was tried and found guilty.

J. Zebrisky, f m c, charged with assault and battery, was tried and acquitted.

Charles P. Switzer and Charles N. Pond, charged with murder; Antonio Sosoco, charged with shooting; and Charles P. Leborgne alias Girard, charged with forgery, were arraigned and severally pleaded not guilty.

☞ Coroner Ramos yesterday held an Inquest in a house in Gravier street, upon the body of Phillip Cox, who died sudden. Verdict—death by apoplexy.

DISTRESSING CIRCUMSTANCE.—One of the houses destroyed by fire in the Third Municipality on Sunday night was the property of Mr F L Morris, who died on Thursday last at the Bay of St. Louis. His wife who had attended him in his last illness, returned yesterday morning and found all the property she possessed in the world had become a prey to the devouring element, and her three children and mother-in-law, houseless wanderers in the city. Mr. Morris, was formerly a foreman of Phœnix Fire Co., No. 8, and was a highly respectable citizen. We hope his brother firemen and our citizens in general, will not be backward in alleviating the distressed circumstances of the family.

The fire we understand was the work of an incendiary.

ACCIDENTAL HOMICIDE.—On Sunday last, two gentlemen of this city started on a deer hunting excursion; and after proceeding about ten miles on the Gentilly Road, they left their carriage and entered the prairies for the purpose of taking each a stand, as is custom ry in that species of hunting. One of the gentlemen Mr. Heno, having caught sight of a deer, unfortunately left his stand and followed it through the bushes toward the stand where his companion was stationed, who seeing the movement of the bushes, fired and lodged the contents of his gun, which was loaded with buckshot, in the body of Mr. Heno, breaking both of his arms, one shot entering his chest and another his abdomen. After firing a number of shots for the purpose of attracting attention and procuring assistance, which was unsuccessful, the gentleman was compelled to carry his wounded friend about three miles upon his shoulders to the place where they had left their carriage. They immediately drove to the plantation of Judge Bermudez, an intimate friend of Mr. Heno, about four miles from the city, where medical aid was called in. After lingering about twenty four hours, Mr. Heno expired yesterday afternoon; he had taken the precaution, however, to make a written statement, before Judge Bermudez, exhonerating his friend from all blame or culpability.

Coroner Ramos, last evening, held an Inquest upon the body of Mr. Heno. The verdict of the Jury was in accordance with the above statement.

THE FIRST MUNICIPALITY COUNCIL last evening adopted a resolution, accepting the surrender from the Fire Department of their Engines, Hose Carriages, etc., and declaring the charters of the different companies to be null and void. A committee of five members of the council are to report a plan for the re-organization of the Fire Department and until that shall have taken place, the Fire Departments of the Second and Third Municipality are invited to render their assistance in case of fire and the amount appropriated for the use of the Fire Companies of the First Municipality—to be divided pro rata between them.

☞ We are indebted to the steamer St. Mary for late river papers.

☞ The Whigs of New Hampshire have nominated Gen. ANTHONY COLBY as their candidate for Governor.

The following were in old times considered directions for buying a horse:

If one white foot, buy him,
If two white feet, try him,
If three white feet, deny him,
If four white feet, and a white nose,
Take off his hide and give him to the crows.

A writer in the Utica Gazette thinks the following variation of these directions applicable to shopping ladies:

If one comes, she'll buy,
If two come, they'll try,
If three come, they'll deny,
If four come, you may suppose
They'll only look at goods, and off they goes.

ATMOSPHERIC RAILWAY.

A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser gives a description of the Atmospheric Railway, in operation at Kingston, the artificial harbor of Dublin, the only road on which this new invention has yet been put into operation, though it is said that it is soon to be applied to other and more [redacted] the road is like th[redacted] as the track and [redacted] way between the [redacted] its diameter, a [redacted] calibre; this is put together in joints and firmly secured to the cross sleepers on which the rails rest. At each end of the route is a building covering a small high pressure steam engine giving motion to a large air pump, which exhausts the air from the whole tube.—Directly on the upper surface of the tubes, and running its whole length, is a slit about an inch wide, covered on the outside by a flap of sole leather about four inches wide, screwed on one side to the tube and free on the other. A small ridge in the cast iron of the tubes allows a composition of tallow and beeswax to be melted over the crack by a hot iron, thus closing it more effectually.

The piston is made of course to fit perfectly the inside of the tube. At each end of the route is a valve opening into the tube. Of course if the piston moves, the car must move with it.

Suppose the car, then, at one extremity, to be started for the other. A signal by the magnetic telegraph notifies the steam engine at the other end, by which the air pump is set in motion and the air within the tube is pumped out. The air at the other end attempts, of course, to rush in; but the valve being closed, its whole force, equivalent of course to a pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch, is exerted upon the piston, which must be necessarily driven towards the farther extremity of the tube; and the car at the same time is borne along.—To prevent the air rushing in through the slit, which is opened by the passage through it of the connecting bar, the piston is placed several feet in advance of that bar, so that the tube is not opened over the exhausted portion, behind the piston. A small wheel follows the bar and closes the tube, and an iron heated by a pan of coals also follows, melting the wax and sealing the tube very closely. The air in the tube can be entirely exhausted in two or three minutes; but on the route where the principle is applied, and which is about two miles in length, it is never more than half exhausted, it being found that this, giving a pressure of seven and a half pounds to the square inch, will drive the cars with sufficient rapidity.

The writer says that for a year and a half this railway has performed hourly trips, without difficulty or accident, and with a speed of from 25 to 30 miles per hour. He thinks the train more readily controlled than one drawn by a locomotive, by reason of its less weight and momentum, and anticipates its general adoption in this country, for certain purposes and within certain limits, at no distant day. The mechanical work on the road, he says, is very badly done, and is greatly increased efficiency could be attained by improvements in this respect.

A melancholy case of fatality, resulting from the too free use of laudanum to assuage pain, occurred in Brooklyn, New York, on Monday night. The victim was Brigadier General Gilbert Reed, a member of the bar of that city. It appears that he had been attending to his business through the day, and as late as nine o'clock P. M. was seen by acquaintances apparently in full health. About one o'clock on Tuesday morning he went to the house of his father-in-law, Andrew Demarest, Esq., in Poplar street, and woke up Mr. Charles Demarest, saying he was very sick and must have something done for him. Mr D's wife procured a mustard plaster and placed it on his stomach, he appearing to be suffering under a severe attack of the bilious cholic. This remedy gave him no relief, and he asked for laudanum, which he said was the only medicine that gave him relief in such attacks, which were not unfrequent, and a teaspoonful was given him. Still he got no better, and he craved for and would have more, saying he knew well how much to take without danger.—More was given him, until, in all, he had taken five or six teaspoonsful, when the pain abated and he wished to go home. He was, however, persuaded to lie down, and about three o'clock his peculiar hard breathing alarmed Mr B., who immediately sent for and brought Dr Van Pelt, who administered such treatment as is usually resorted to in such cases, which proved ineffectual, and the poor sufferer died about nine o'clock.—An inquest was held on the body, and a verdict returned that "deceased came to his death from the effects of laudanum, administered at his own urgent request, while suffering under a severe attack of billious cholic."—News.

THE ENGLISH GAME LAWS.—The London "Great Gun" gives the following as amendments to the Game Laws proposed by Mr. Bright, who, we suppose, is a shining light in Parliament:

Clause I—That every man shall be allowed, if he can, to shoot any description of game out of the reign of game-alist; but the potting of salt upon a bird's tail, by which to catch it, be kept lawful.

Clause [illegible]—That every [illegible] be the [illegible] before whom a complaint of poaching is lodged, do take a bird's eye view of the case, and not "beat about the bush in his capacity of judge, which is too often done.

Clause III—That the poaching of eggs be not considered an offence punishable under the game laws.

Clause IV—That no sportsman, [illegible] shall cut a hare's tail, but give the animal a fair chance of escape.

Clause V—That the description of game absurdly called sky-larks be never indulged in by any member of the House of Commons.

GENERAL JACKSON AND MR. WEBSTER.

A meeting of the New York Historical Society was held on the evening of the 19th June, the Hon. LUTHER BRADISH presiding. After the ordinary business had been disposed of, General PROSPER M. WETMORE rose, and addressed the society announcing the demise of Gen'l JACKSON in appropriate and feeling terms, and concluded by offering a series of resolutions suitable to the occasion. The resolutions were seconded by BENJ. F. BUTLER, Esq., and advocated by several distinguished gentlemen, among them DANIEL WEBSTER. The following is the report given by the New York Herald, of Mr. WEBSTER's remarks:—

Nothing could be more natural or proper than that this Society should take a respectful notice of the decease of so distinguished a member of its body. Accustomed occasionally to meet the society, and to enjoy the communications that are made to it, and proceed from it, illustrative of the history of the country and its government, I have pleasure in being present at this time also, and on this occasion, on which an element so mournful mingles itself. Gen. Andrew Jackson has been from an early period conspicuous in the service and in the councils of the country, though not without long intervals, so far as respects his connection with the general government. It is fifty years, I think, since he was a member of the Congress of the United States, and at the instant, sir, I do not know whether there be living an associate of Gen. Jackson in the House of Representatives of the United States at that day, with the exception of the distinguished and venerable gentleman who is now President of this Society. I recollect only of the Congress of '96, at this moment now living, but one—Mr. Gallatin—though I may be mistaken. Gen. Jackson, Mr. President, while he lived, and his memory and character, now that he is deceased, are presented to his country and the world in different views and relations. He was a soldier—a general officer—and acted an unimportant part in that capacity. He was raised by repeated elections to the highest station in the civil government of his country, and acted a part certainly not obscure or unimportant in that character and capacity.

In regard to his military services, I participate in the general sentiment of the whole country, and I believe of the world. That he was a soldier of dauntless courage, great daring and perseverance—an officer of skill and arrangement and foresight, are truths universally admitted. During the period in which he administered the general government of the country, it was my fortune during the whole period of it to be a member of the Congress of the United States, and, as it is well known, it was my misfortune not to be able to concur with many of the most important measures of his administration. Entertaining himself his own views, and with a power of impressing his own views to a remarkable degree upon the convictions and approbation of others, he pursued such a course as he thought expedient in the circumstances in which he was placed.—Entertaining on many questions of great importance different opinions, it was of course my misfortune to differ from him, and that difference gave me great pain, because in the whole course of my public life it has been far more agreeable to me to support the measures of the government than to be called upon by my judgment and sense of what was best to be done to oppose them. I desire to see the government acting with a unity of spirit in all things relating to its foreign relations especially and generally in all great measures of its domestic policy, as far as is consistent with the exercise of perfect independence among its members. But if it was my misfortune to differ from General Jackson on many or most of the great measures of his administration, there were occasions, and those not unimportant, in which I felt it my duty, and according to the highest sense of that duty, to conform to his opinions, and support his measures. There were junctures in his administration—periods which I thought important and critical—in which the views that he felt to be his duty to adopt corresponded entirely with my sentiments in regard to the protection of the best interests of the country, and the institutions under which we live; and it was my humble endeavor on these occasions to yield to his opinion and measures the same cordial support as if I had not differed from him before and expected never to differ from him again.

That General Jackson was a marked character—a strong character—that he had a very remarkable influence over other men's opinions—that he had great perseverance and resolution in civil as well as in military administration, all admit. Nor do I think that the candid amongst mankind will ever doubt that it was his desire,—mingled with whatever portion of a disposition to be himself instrumental in that exaltation—to elevate his country to the highest prosperity and honor. There is one sentiment, particularly, to which I recur, always with a feeling of approbation and gratitude.—From an early period of his undertaking to administer the affairs of the government, he uttered a sentiment dear to me—expressive of a truth of which I am most profoundly convinced—a sentiment setting forth the necessity, the duty, and the patriotism of maintaining the union of these States. [Applause.] Mr. President, I am old enough to recollect the deaths of all the Presidents of the U. States who have departed this life, from Washington down. There is no doubt that the death of an individual, who has been so much the favorite of his country, and who has so largely of its regard as to fill that high office, always produces—has produced hitherto a strong impression upon the public mind.—That is right. It is right that such should be the impression upon the whole community, embracing those who particularly approved and those who did not particularly approve the political course of the deceased.

All those distinguished men have been the choice of their country. They have fulfilled their station and duties upon the whole, in the sense that have gone before us, in a manner reputable and distinguished. Under their administration, in the course of fifty or sixty years, the government, generally speaking, has prospered, and under the government the people have prospered. It becomes, then, all to pay respect when one thus honored are called to another world. Mr. President, we may well indulge the hope and belief that it was the feeling of the distinguished person who is the subject of these resolutions, in the solemn days and hours of closing life—that it was his wish if he had committed few or more errors in the administration of the government, their influence might cease with him; and that whatever of good he had done, might be perpetuated. Let us cherish the same sentiment. Let us act upon the same feeling; and whatever of true honor and glory he acquired, let us all hope that it will be his inheritance for ever!—And whatever of good example, of good principle, or good administration, he has established, let us hope that the benefit of it may also be perpetual.

☞ A correspondent of the National Intelligencer notices in the following terms the new Oratorio of "Jephtha," from the pen of John H. Hewitt of Washington, which was recently performed in that city:—

Jephtha, which is founded on the touching scriptural [illegible], opens with a pretty and effective pastoral [illegible], representing the peasants on the mountains [illegible] the praises of God. Then follows a fine recitative by the daughter of Jephtha, expressive of the peace and tranquility of home. The distant sound of martial music is then heard, which, approaching nearer and nearer, breaks into the chorus of peasants, "Lo, through the distant vales," and, gradually combining with the voices of the warriors, at length bursts out the fine spirited chorus "The victory is the Lord's," winding up with a grand hallelujah. The recitative of Jephtha's daughter, "Father then is welcome," is beautiful and affecting. Then follows an excellent solo by Jephtha, "My beauteous child," which is a perfect gem of art. In this he communicates to her his vow. To this succeeds a rather heavy quintette, "My soul is dark," and then follows an aria by the daughter, expressive of the conflicting emotions awakened by filial duty and the love of life. This was sweetly given by a young lady of fine voice and musical taste. The finale to the first part, "Sad day for Judah's conquering host," is a good production.

The second part developes the plot. The choicest things of this part are a duet, "How beautiful appears," a fine prayer full of rich harmony; and a trio, between the high priest, Jephtha, and his daughter. The finale, "Jehovah's cause has triumphed," is brilliant and in admirable keeping.

☞ THOMAS HOOD.—The recent death of this brilliant writer and literary contributor, gives pertinency to the republication of the following ode, with the appropriate introductory of the Batavia Spirit of the Times.—Argus.

"Hood, like most other poets, has experienced many of the vicissitudes of life. Although chiefly known to the world by his comic effusions, his 'Whims and Oddities,' 'Comic Annual,' etc. he has, nevertheless, produced those of a more serious character, such as 'The Dream of Eugene Aram,' and 'The Song of the Shirt,' which are remarkable for beauty and pathos. But nothing which we have read of Hood's gives so good an idea of his amiable character and fine heartedness, as the following."

A PARENTAL ODE TO MY SON.
Aged Three Years and Five Months.

Thou happy, happy elf!
(But stop—first let me kiss away that tear)
Thou tiny image of myself!
(My love, he's poking peas into his ear)
Thou merry, laughing sprite!
With spirits feather light,
Untouched by sorrow, and unsoiled by sin,
(Good heavens! the child is swallowing a pin!)

Thou little tricksy Puck,
With antic toys so funnily bestuck,
Light as the singing bird that wings the air,
(The door! the door! he'll tumble down the stair!)
Thou darling of thy sire!
(Why, Jane, he'll set his pinafore afire!)
Thou imp of mirth and joy!
In love's dear chain so strong and bright a link,
Thou idol of thy parents (Stop the boy!
There goes my ink!)

Thou cherub—but of earth;
Fit playfellow for Fays by moonlight pale,
In harmless sport and mirth,
(That dog will bite him if he pulls its tail!)
Thou human humming bee, extracting honey,
From every blossom in the world that blows,
Singing in youth's Elysium ever sunny,
(Another tumble—that's his precious nose!)
Thy father's pride and hope!
(He'll break the mirror with that skipping rope!)
With pure heart newly stamped from nature's mint,
(Where did he learn that squint?)

Thou young domestic dove!
(He'll have that jug off with another shove!)
Dear nursling of the hymeneal nest!
(Are those torn clothes his best?)
Little epitome of man!
(He'll climb upon the table, that's his plan!)
Touched with the beauteous tints of dawning life,
(He's got a knife!)
Thou enviable being!
No storms, no clouds, in thy blue sky foreseeing,
Play on, play on,
My elfin John!

Toss the light ball—bestride the stick,
(I knew so many cakes would make him sick!)
With fancies buoyant as the thistle down,
Prompting the face grotesque, and antic brisk,
With many a lamb-like frisk,
(He's got the scissors, snipping at your gown!)
Thou pretty opening rose!

(Go to your mother, child, and wipe your nose!)
Balmy, and breathing music like the south,
(He really brings my heart into my mouth!)
Fresh as the morn, and brilliant as its star,
(I wish that window had an iron bar!)
Bold as the hawk, yet gentle as the dove,
(I tell you what my love,
I cannot write unless he's sent above!)

THE FOOT RACE at Cambridge on Thursday, the 17th ult., was won by the invincible Gildersleeve, who completed the 10 miles in 57 minutes and 19 seconds, and took the purse of $250. Michael Cavanagh, of Cincinnati, came in second best, 59 minutes and 15 seconds, and took the purse of $100. C. Desmond, of Ipswich, came in third, in 59 minutes and 45 seconds.

NEW ORLEANS, 14th June, 1845.

W. F. Roe, Esq:

Sir—Your letter dated Saturday last the 7th inst., is couched in such very discourteous terms, that I am bound to require from you a public apology.

Your very sudden and unexpected withdrawal from the Presidency of the Pontchartrain College, places me in a false position in the opinion of the persons to whom I introduced you, from which you must relieve me. This is only an act of justice which one gentleman owes to another, and I trust, sir, you will unhesitatingly comply with my request.

Respectfully, W. F. C. DUPLESSIS.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy of the communication I delivered on Friday last, 13th inst. to Wm F Roe, Esq, at BAYOU BONFOUCA, who immediately and unhesitatingly signed the following apology written by W F C Duplessis, Esq.

AND D DORIOCOURT.

New Orleans, 30th June, 1845.

A CARD.

Wm F C Duplessis, Esq, having erroneously supposed that I had intended to wound his feelings by my withdrawal from the Presidency of the "Pontchartrain College," located at Lewisburg, Parish of St Tammany, I hereby declare most unequivocally, that I never have entertained a thought derogatory to his honor, and I have entertained the highest respect for Mr W F C Duplessis, whom I consider to be a gentleman and a respectable member of society.

[Signed] W. F. ROE.

De Bretton's Patent.

HAVING obtained from the United States Government a Patent for the manufacturing of Sugar on a new method or improvement, as introduced by me in this State to the clarification, purification, granulation and drying thereof, I beg leave to make known to the Planters, that those who are desirous of using this new process in their next crop will be pleased to make an early application to the Patentee or to either of his sons, John de Bretton, Jr. or Charles E. de Bretton, who fully are duly authorised and empowered to be heard with them in arrangements for the use of this new process.

As most persons are fully aware of the nature of a Patent and its effect, it is perhaps superfluous to remark that none but the Patentee or those authorised by him can legally make use of it [illegible]

The Patentee declares that every Planter in Louisiana should benefit by his new process of improvement, [illegible]

The Patentee as well as his sons, will, during the summer months, repair on every plantation belonging to the gentlemen who have notified their intentions of adopting this new process, in order to make the necessary arrangements in their sugar houses for the better conducting of said process and timely to set up the apparatus, which can be obtained at a trifling cost, so as to secure even the least confusion at the commencement of the rolling season.

FIRST BRIGADE LOUISIANA MILITIA.
BRIGADE ORDERS.
NATIONAL ANNIVERSARY!
HEAD QUARTERS—FIRST BRIGADE, L. M.
June 30, 1845.

BY a cession from the Brigadier, of Maj 7 Division Orders, the duty devolves on the Colonel of the 2d Regiment, senior of rank, to announce to the officers and soldiers of the First Brigade, Louisiana Militia, that Friday next, the 4th of July, is the Anniversary of the Independence of the United States of America.

The 70th Annual National Jubilee of the existence of this great Republic, besides the [illegible] and [illegible] as a [illegible] people, and [illegible] to power and to adoration, in which the [illegible] of every people and of every tongue is equally directed. [illegible]

In the absence of orders by the civil authorities, it is customary with the citizens generally to look to the military to take the lead in those public demonstrations of joy and festivity, but which, on the occasion of the annual Jubilee, will, for many reasons flow from hearts filled with gratitude and thanksgiving to a Divine Providence, for the manifold blessings conferred on our country, to our General and State governments, and the uninterrupted enjoyments by the people of their civil and religious liberties.

The approaching Jubilee offers to the citizen-soldiers throughout the Union, many grateful reasons than usual for marked expressions of their public joy and gladness. Never before has the time, when forty thirds was so fitted to rejoice, and the great shadows of continental dominion were so completely annihilated by the bright sunshine of unanimity in patriotic feelings for our Country—our whole Country, from ocean to Ocean. That, with the new era in the History of Nations, of an independent sovereignty freely relinquished by the force of events and those of arms, and by crown, acknowledged as such by other Sovereignties, voluntarily seeking the Ægis of the laws and government of another. Such is now, before the world, in the instance of the present assembled Congress of the Republic of Texas; united together by the strength of an evidence, united as in one voice, and—to desire its Lone Star in our National Galaxy. Prouder than the proudest, may Louisiana feel on such an occasion; their Wealth is unrivalled, instead of being the home of the Nation, happy the [illegible] the [illegible] between two sister States of the Union; and the Texian citizen soldiers have endowed with honors, are found worthy to be united with the common under the [illegible] Banner of the United States of America.

The officers and soldiers of the First Brigade, in their hours of labour and mirth on that great American day, should forget nothing that fits to the memory of the illustrious Washington, and other of heroes and sages, who, [illegible] Sources and those [illegible] devoted to the good of their country, to her birth, and to its future prosperity and [illegible] the good of the [illegible] [illegible]

Third. The national banner is to be displayed at sun rise and throughout the day, in all public places in the limits of the Brigade, from Canal street to the Parish of St John the Baptist.

Second, Col Smith, Washington Regiment, and Major Willard, commanding 1st Regiment Louisiana Volunteers, will respectively make their respective commands [illegible] [illegible] Col Smith will detach a detachment of 2d Artillery Legion to fire a national salute of one rise, at noon and at sunset.

The [illegible] for [illegible] to be [illegible] [illegible]

Third. The officers of the remaining eight regiments of the Brigade are directed to render themselves in front of the Municipality Hall in full [illegible] uniform on 4 at 7 o'clock A. M. The officers of the U and Staff [illegible] duty, and the officers of the Ninth Brigade are invited to appear, and join in the celebration of the day.

OFFICE WESTERN MARINE AND FIRE INS. CO.
New Orleans, June 19th, 1845.

AT a meeting of the Stockholders of this Company held this day in pursuance of the resolution of the Directors of the 6th May last, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That experience having demonstrated that Insurance Companies, organized and conducted on the joint stock principle or the stock and mutual principle combined, cannot hope for successful competition with those Institutions conducted entirely on the Mutual principle, it is therefore deemed expedient to liquidate the affairs of the Western Marine and Fire Insurance Company.

Resolved, That the Directors of the Company reinsure the outstanding risks to the subscribers on the first day of July next, and to close their affairs by the acceptance of the Company by the first day of the next, not later however than the first Monday in September next, a meeting of the stockholders shall be convened for the purpose of deciding upon the best and most economical method of liquidating the affairs of the Company.
