☞ A meeting of the Magistrate appointed by the general committee of the Compromise party, will be holden Saturday evening next, at half-past 7 o'clock, at Davis's, ball-room.

☞ The meeting of those disposed to co-operate in giving a grand democratic ball in honor of the late triumph of democratic principles, has been postponed to Saturday next on account of the inclemency of the weather last evening. It will take place immediately after the meeting of the committee of the democratic party.

☞ At a time when the ingress into this city of persons of suspicious character is so great, we deem it an more than our duty to lay before our readers the following ordinance of the city Council approved the 12th of December 1807, in which measures of a salutary kind to the peace and harmony of the city are provided. There can be no doubt but those strangers whose characters are irreproachable will be ready to submit to this wholesome regulation:

An ordinance relative to Foreigners coming to New-Orleans and other persons herein mentioned.

THE CITY COUNCIL ORDAINS AS FOLLOWS:

Art. 1.—It shall be the duty of all persons who may come to this city, and are not inhabitants of the same, to deliver at the office of the Mayoralty, within twenty-four hours after their arrival, an account of their names, age and profession, of the place from whence they come and whether they intend to make any stay in this city, or to leave it instantly.

Art. 2.—All masters of vessels, flats, barges or other crafts shall be obliged, on their arrival, personally to deliver into the Mayoralty office, a list, on oath, of their passengers, with those details which are prescribed by the first article.

Art. 3.—It shall be the duty of all citizens, but especially of every inn and tavern-keeper and of all person who either give lodgings, or board within the town and suburbs, to deliver, every Monday, until otherwise directed, to the Mayor's office, a list upon oath of such foreigners as may rither lodge, or board with them, and to specify thereon with necessary, those who may have come to their houses since the delivery of the preceding list.

Art. 3.—All persons required by the foregoing articles, to make, at the Mayoralty office, a declaration of their arrival in this city, shall pay into the said office twelve and a half cents, as a fee for registering the same; which money shall be levied on captains, for their passengers, and on inn-keepers, masters or mistresses of boarding-houses, &c, for the persons entertained by them, at the time of delivering their lists; and a receipt for the same shall be delivered to them, as a voucher for their having fulfilled the formalities prescribed by the present ordinance.

Art. 5.—Any person or persons neglecting to deliver any of the lists required by the foregoing articles, or delivering a false one, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ninety-nine dollars; and if the offenders shall be inn or tavern-keepers, or have a boarding-house, they shall, in case of a repetition of such offence, forfeit their right to hold the license corresponding to their trade, and shall never after be granted another to the same effect.

THEATRE, No. 4.

Mr. Editor:—

Sir—I observe in your columns of December 3d, an article under the head above mentioned, wherein the author, very generously, allows that Mrs. A. Drake's conception, and execution of the character of Evadne was excellent; so far he I agree with him—but may take occasion to state, that according to my humble judgment, she (Mrs. A. Drake) is at the present time the best tragedy actress (now on the stage) in the United States. That Pearson and Scott were acquitted and all that an audience could wish; I also assent to—but I must tell gentleman, that he has made an unwarrantable attack upon Mr. Bannister and also upon the managers—that Mr. Bannister is a young actor, there is no doubt, no doubt either, but that he possesses considerable talent, But why! and for what reason does "Colley Cibber" stigmatize him with the name of apprentice, when from his appearance receive the salary of a journeyman. The gentleman, however, makes one remark which I scarce expected when I commenced his article—that is giving the name of a management of articles to the Camp street theatre—and indeed it is a title of which the managers should be proud of, and thank him for, (though no doubt it was unintentional.) The encouraging and fostering native talent, is, and must ever remain, a name, which in this country, any theatre would and should be proud to boast; and sure am I that none can more than this Messrs. Field and Gilbert: I know not but presume if they have left the friends that helped them to a name, they have done so to make it better known, and tell to the world that Orleans fosters native talent, if so we should thank not blame them. As to Mrs. Russell she is not a favorite of mine, and I meet say that I am always glad to see her. Mrs. Crook is as the gentleman states, old, but one of the most correct and pleasing actresses that now tread the American stage.

A Fleet!—We saw from the windows of our office yesterday morning, twenty-eight schooners, and three steamboats, with their sails spread for the "Far West," all having left our harbor within two hours. Such a scene as this will show to our friends abroad the importance of the "young city of the West," and the highly prosperous condition of our trade and commerce.—[Buffalo Bulletin.

INFORMING the public through the medium of the Daily and Commercial Advertiser of Baltimore, on the 4th and 6th of November last, that the motives for which he adopted the name of Jean Bte. Tournaire, being no longer necessary, he has retaken his own family name, and as soon as it is possible for him to return to France, he will give to the public the reason which justified him in adopting such conduct, during the memorable periods of 1815, 1819, and 1830. His principal object in the revolution of 1830, was to assure the triumph of general reason, to the respect to the natural and sovereign majesty of the people, from which emanates the legal majesty of the throne,—the genius of the civilisation of the world; and to establish a government in the most possible popular manner, and most conformable to the social compact,—one best subject to abuse, and enable of utilising the mass of talent, and of guarding the revenue of the State with frugality and care, to make each individual a citizen, and to know how to preserve the well being and prosperity of the nation.
