PANORAMA DE PARIS.

Une grande peinture panoramique de la ville de Paris est maintenant ouverte au public dans la place du cirque.

La vue est prise du haut du toit de la partie méridionale des Tuilleries; en consé-quence le spectateur doit se figurer qu'il est placé dans cette situation élevée qui nous donne un point d'observation de la capitale.

Immédiatement sous les yeux du spec-tateur, vers le nord, sont les combles des appartements du Roi, et sur la droite la vaste galerie des bâtimens se prolonge à l'est jusqu'au Louvre. Cette galerie bor-de la place du Carrousel vers le sud et la nouvelle galerie vers le nord. Au milieu de cette place, s'élève l'arc de triomph; c'est là que Napoléon avait coutume de passer en revue ses légions avant leur départ pour leurs immortelles campagnes, et cette enceinte a aussi fait retenir de la musique guerrière. Du côté occidental du palais, le spectateur plonge sur le jardin des Tuilleries, et au delà, dans le lointain il aperçoit le palais du gardemeuble et les Champs Élysées.

Si l'on considère de combien de grands événements politiques Paris a été le théâtre, événements qui durant les trente der-nières années ont bouleversé l'Europe, on comprendra qu'aucun sujet de peinture ne peut offrir plus d'intérêt au public.

Ce spectacle, magnifique, est ouvert au public, tous les jours, depuis 9 heures jusqu'à 5 de l'après-midi. Entrée : quatre francs par personne, ou une piastre par abonnement.

30 Avril.

From the N. Y. American.
Extract of a letter from an American now in Europe, to his friend in this city, dated December, 1827.

In the course of a month we shall be anxious looking for the Message of the President, at the opening of the session of Congress.

Every year, this document excites more and more interest upon this side of the Atlantic, where the friends of freedom welcome it as a renewed proof that man conscious capable of self-government. Americans abroad perceive it with a mixed feeling of gratification and pride—gratification at the prosperity of the nation which it annually develops; —pride, that our Chief Magistrate, can produce a State paper so attractive to the literary character of our country; for heretofore these messages have done honor to the republic of letters. What would be their character if we were to place a Soldier of Fortune at the head of the nation, it is not difficult to divine. While mentioning this subject, I cannot refrain from observing, that the disposition which a portion of our countrymen have evinced to place Gen. Jackson at the head of the nation, has alarmed the friends of freedom throughout all Europe.

Since the General returned to Congress, at the last election, as one of the candidates for the Presidency I have travelled upwards of two thousand miles upon the continent, and have not conversed with a single individual upon the subject of our country who has not expressed surprise, that with all the story types to us, from Caesar to Ispida, we should be about to commit political suicide. This you may consider language—but so certain as the precedent be once established, that military service, alone, can give a man a claim to the highest civil honours, so certain must our constitution perish.

The great experiment of self government we have fairly tested for upwards of half a century, and we have clearly proved that the wisest and the happiest of all governments, is a government of laws. You would be surprised to find how many friends we have upon this side of the Atlantic, even under the most despotic government. In fact, nearly all men of education, with the exception of the nobility, (and even many of them,) take a deep interest in our prosperity.

They know the moral influence which our government has upon all nations.
They see that our example has already called into existence seven independent nations in our own hemisphere, and if we only remain faithful to the cause of freedom, that we shall eventually be the means of redeeming the world from bondage. But the character of Gen.
Jackson is as well known in Europe, as at home; and the efforts made to place him at the head of the nation, have alarmed the friends of freedom in this quarter of the world.

The great error into which some of our countrymen appear to have fallen, is, that the office of President of the U. ited States was instituted as a reward for public service.

This is a great error. The office of President of the United States, is a high public trust, created by the people in their sovereign capacity, for the purpose of authorizing him, without holding it to represent the nation in its intercourse with foreign powers. To appoint and commission the civil and military authorities; To see that the constitution and laws are faithfully obeyed. It is therefore, self evident, that the individual upon whom these high trusts may devolve, ought to have a thorough knowledge of the constitution and laws —sound judgment, and talents of the first order.

Our present chief magistrate is known throughout Europe, as a statesman, civilian, and scholar, and it is wholly incomprehensible to the people here, that we should wish to exchange him for an individual, whose principal merit consists in having conquered one victory.
If victories alone can constitute a claim to the Presidency, certainly our Naval Heroes have an undoubted right to that honor; and we may trust them with safety, for history furnishes no record of the liberties of a country being subverted by an Admiral or a Commodore.
I hope however, that the good sense of the people will soon overcome this military mania.

May God preserve our country from military idolatry, which in every age, and in every nation has heretofore proved the grave of Freedom."

The remains of the late President John Adams, and of his wife, have been removed from the family tomb, and deposited under the new stately Church in Quincy. A marble monument will be erected over them in the interior of the Church.

Twenty persons have been commissioned as aid-de-camp to Governor Forsyth of Georgia. Is the Governor about to take the field?

Ship Isabella, Libby, from N. Orleans for Havre, got into Gloucester 28th ult. in distress, badly.

From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

On Friday last a young gentleman, eighteen years of age, left his friends in Boston, taking with him money to the amount of 700 dollars. On investigating the affair it was discovered that he had absconded in company with a celebrated cyprian who is known as Miss Barrett, but whose real name is Curtis.
It appeared also that this girl had acted the part of a Millwood, and seduced the unfortunate young man from his parental roof, by her fascination of manners and her artful affection. They were traversed to this city and were seen in the evening in the third tier of the Park Theatre, and this morning it was discovered that they had taken up their residence in an establishment in Church st.
The officers having pursued them, arrived just in time to be too late, for the parties had a very few minutes previous left to embark on board the steam boat for Philadelphia; they immediately went to the slip and were fortunate enough to meet with the objects of their search.
The young man was brought to the police and committed to Brudenell, until his friends in Boston have an opportunity of shipping him on a voyage likely to wean his attachment and improve his morals. Miss Barrett was brought up in the afternoon, and we understand from the evidence adduced, the magistrate (Ackerman Valentine) intends to send her to the Penitentiary for 6 months,

The Dog.—Leonard Zolikoffer, a Swiss Nobleman, who went to Paris on the conclusion of the Swiss Union as ambassador, had a large dog, whom on his departure he had ordered to be shut up for eight days, the dog was so, and yet at the end of eight days traced his way to Paris, (400 miles,) and on the day of audience made his way, all covered with mud, and leaped up mad for joy, upon his master.

PANORAMA EXHIBITION.

THE great Panoramic picture of the City of Paris, the Capital of the Kingdom of France is now exhibiting in the building on the public square of Monapare street.

The view is taken from the roof of the south end of the palace of the Tuileries; the spectator must therefore imagine himself placed on this elated situation which commands an extensive prospect over the whole city.

Immediately under the eye of the spectator in a northern direction, is the roof of the King's apartments, and on the right that of the long picture gallery stretching eastward as far as the Louvre;
