DETROIT, (Mich.), June 16.

The new steamer New Orleans, on her way to Chicago, on Thursday last, struck a rock on Tunis Bay and sunk immediately. She had on board a large number of passengers, all of whom were fortunately saved.

WASHINGTON, June 16.

Gideon Welle, Esq., the Chief of the Bureau of Pensions and Clothing, has received official notice that his services will not be required after the 1st of July ensuing.

Mexico.
SYMPTOMS OF DISUNION.

We are indebted to the editors of La Patria, for a copy of an extra publication containing rather a curious document in the shape of a Declaration of Independence by the people of the Northern States of the Sierra Madre. It appears in a Matamoros paper of the 18th, entitled El Bien Publico, the editor of which translates it from the English, and says that he has good reasons for believing that it was printed on the other side of the river. This manifesto opens in the very words of our own Declaration of Independence, and then proceeds to recite the grievances which the people of the Northern States of Mexico have suffered from the Government—These are: 1st. Constant political changes and renewed oppression; 2nd. Onerous taxation; 3d. The tyranny of the army; 4th. The insecurity of religion; 5th. The denial to the people of the right of possession over their vast territories; 6th. The want of public education; 7th. The neglect of the older and more respectable members of the State; 8th. The extravagance of the rulers in the midst of the poverty of the people; 9th. The state of servitude throughout Mexico which is declared worse than slavery.

For these reasons, the people of the Northern States of Sierra Madre of Mexico, declare themselves free and independent, and to corroborate this declaration, mutually pledge to each other their lives, fortunes and sacred honor. The manifesto concludes with the ominous phrase: "Our swords are drawn. Our scabbards are thrown away. Death to tyrants." It has no signature.

We suppose this is the initiative in the project of establishing the Republic of the Sierra Madre. If so, we shall soon hear of the "owls" being out. In the interim, the Mexican authorities seem alarmed. At Matamoros they have arrested Dr. Milet and his servant, on suspicion of being accomplices in this scheme of independence.

THE CROPS.—The Concordia Intelligencer says: It is usual to hear complaints of the condition of the cotton crop, at this time of the growing season, but never before have we heard them so general as we hear them now. The most intelligent and candid planters complain most earnestly. These representations, independently of our convictions from other causes, leave no doubt in our mind that the cotton crop of the Mississippi valley this year must be a remarkable small one. In other seasons the cotton planters here would have looked upon their present unpromising condition with some hope that energy and industry in the fields would improve it shortly. But this season they dare not to indulge such a hope. A regard for the welfare of their negroes and their own best interests forbids them from going beyond the most moderate labor, and warns them against exposure.

THE CHOLERA IN ST. LOUIS.—The ravages of this dreadful disease in St. Louis are perfectly appalling. On the 16th inst., the total number of interments was 74, of which 61 were of cholera; on the 17th there were 85 deaths, 69 of cholera; and for the week ending on the 16th the number of interments was 492—of which 412 were from cholera. If we compare this mortality with that of New Orleans during the worst period of the epidemic—the difference of population considered—it will be found that the pestilence has been more fatal at St. Louis than with us. Strange to say, too, the papers declare that the city is in excellent order, and the streets scrupulously clean.

THE MISSISSIPPI is rising slowly opposite Natchez. The rise comes in part from the Missouri, and in part from the Arkansas. No danger from this rise is apprehended.

RIVER NEWS.—The St. Louis Republican of the 19th says: The river opposite this city is still swelling slowly. The upper Mississippi and Missouri are both reported rising by boats down yesterday.

GOV. CRITTENDEN.—The Louisville Journal says: A rumor was current yesterday that Gov. Crittenden was dead. We are happy to have it in our power to contradict the report. Gov. C. was quite ill a few days ago, but we learn from gentlemen by last night's Frankfort stage, that he was rapidly recovering.

SPECIAL ELECTION IN VIRGINIA.—The special election for a representative, in Buckingham, to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of George W. Kyle, has resulted in the election of W. W. Forbes (Whig). The vote was:—Forbes (W.) 179, J. W. Haskins (D.) 151—majority for Forbes 28.

☞ We copy from the Lexington (Ky.) Atlas the following account of the dreadful affray between Cassius M. Clay and Mr. Turner. Our readers will perceive that Mr. CLAY was not dead, as was at first reported:

TERRIBLE AND PERHAPS FATAL RENCOUNTER.—We learn that a fight with bowie-knives took place at Foxtown, in Madison county, on Friday evening last, between Capt. Cassius M. Clay and Cyrus Turner, Esq., in which both were badly wounded. We learn from the stage-driver, who came in about 4 o'clock on Saturday evening, that Capt. Clay was thought to be better, or not so badly wounded as it was at first thought he was, but there was scarcely a hope of Mr. Turner's recovery.

We have heard various statements as to the origin of this unfortunate affair.

The Louisville Journal, of the 18th, adds some particulars to the history of this horrible affair:

A gentleman who arrived here in the stage last evening from Lexington, says that it was thought at the last dates that Mr. Clay might recover, but that Mr. Turner could not recover. The latter was a member of the last Legislature.

The affair is said to have occurred at a public meeting. Mr. Clay was making an emancipation speech and was called a liar by some one in the crowd. On coming down from the stand, he demanded who had insulted him. Mr. Turner avowed the language and the bloody encounter ensued. We have heard that they snapped their pistols simultaneously, neither of which was discharged, and that they then drew knives and struck simultaneously, Mr. Clay ripping open Mr. Turner's abdomen, and Mr. Turner stabbing Mr. Clay in the breast. This version of the affair may be incorrect.

AFFRAY.—ONE MAN KILLED AND TWO MEN WOUNDED.—We learn from officer McKinney, that a disgraceful row occurred at the Elm Tree Garden about sundown last evening, in which the leader of one of the parties, named Black, from Portland, was killed, and two of his associates were wounded. The garden is situated on the north side of the canal bridge, and is a favorite resort of our German population on Sunday. Black and his friends had congregated there also yesterday. At first a difficulty occurred in the garden between Black and a German. A police officer interfered and induced Black to withdraw from the garden. He went to the house and in the bar-room got into a difficulty with one of the proprietors, which ended in Black being ejected from the premises. This incensed him and his friends so much that they commenced stoning the building. The two proprietors fired each once or more with horse-pistols at their assailants, killing Black and wounding two of his friends seriously. The former are in jail. As the criminal court is in session at present, the affair will not be investigated before the police court, but it will be brought to the immediate attention of the grand jury.—Louisville Journal, 18th.

HORRID MURDER.—We copy the following from the Mount Sterling (Ky.) Whig of the 15th:

One of the most horrid and revolting murders we ever heard of, occurred yesterday at the levee, in this county. During the absence of her husband (Mr. J. H. Foster), a fiend in human shape entered the dwelling of Mr. F., took a rope and tied it three or four times around the neck of Mrs. Foster, and then, in addition to the crime of murder, he committed a shocking offence upon her person.

Mr. Foster left home about 10 o'clock to perform military duty, a few miles distant, and returned about 2 o'clock, when he found his wife dead! From the marks on her person and other circumstances, a terrible scuffle must have taken place.

The fiend, after accomplishing his diabolical purposes, stole a gun, some ten or twelve dollars in money, an accordion, one or two bottles of liquor, and some sugar.

The whole neighborhood is greatly excited, and some twenty or thirty persons are in pursuit of the murderer. We pray God he may be speedily caught and speedy punishment meted out to him.

MAIL ROBBERS ARRESTED.—Mr. Jacobi, the special agent for the discovery of depredations upon the mail, returned to this city a day or two since from Indiana and Ohio. He has succeeded in discovering one of the men who have so long been engaged in committing depredations upon the mails, and the evidence against him was deemed sufficient by the grand jury at Indianapolis, to warrant the finding of a bill of indictment for violating the mail of the United States. The culprit's name is Wm. Baker, and at the time of the commission of the offence he was engaged as a stage driver between Terre Haute and Indianapolis. He left that employment, it seems, went to New York, but did not stay there long—was afterwards traced to Ohio, and, after diligent search, was arrested in Cincinnati, and committed to await his trial, and trial in Indiana.—St. Louis Republican, 18th.

PARIS CHIT-CHAT.—The N. Y. Commercial Advertiser has a very clever and amusing correspondent in Paris, who keeps that paper well informed on all subjects most attractive in the gossip of the day. From his last letter we cull some choice anecdotes and other fragments worth reading. Speaking of President LOUIS NAPOLEON, the writer says:

The cares of state do not seem to wear on him; he looks as well as when I saw him, last November, in the hall of the National Assembly. But, poor fellow! he has his troubles. The worst of them come from members of his own family; his foes are those of his own household. His cousin Murat is annoying him with claims of millions against the state, for confiscation of the property of the elder Murat, former King of Naples; his cousin Pierre is a Democrat of the first water, and his cousin Napoleon is a Socialist and resigns his embassy to Spain, to be free to preach his doctrines at pleasure.

When the President sends his army to Rome, he finds there another cousin, Bonaparte, prince of Canino, who commands the Roman troops. The President, a few days ago, got to the end of his patience, and exclaimed, "They say that I have nothing in common with the Emperor; they will at least admit that I have his family!" It will be remembered that the great Napoleon quarreled with all his brothers.

The fashionable circles of Paris were amused, last week, with the repartee of a young English beauty. She was presented to the President, who did not take as much notice of her as she expected. He seemed pre-occupied and drawled out:

"Will you remain long in France?"
"No prince; and you?"

The President was effectually aroused from his lethargy.

The French papers are unsparing in their censure and ridicule of Forrest, for his quarrel with Macready. They abound in cutting satire and persiflage in reference to the New York riot.

The literary world and lovers of the fine arts are interested in the following information:

The principal American papers are now found at the reading room of Livingston, Wells & co., near the Bourse; before November last there was no English reading room in Paris, except Galignani's. This last was liberally supplied with English papers and periodicals, but not with those from beyond the sea. Americans were compelled to get news from their own country by way of London, and to pay very dearly for it. L., W. & co. have established for the benefit of Americans, a free reading room, in connection with their despatch agency. A register is kept of the addresses of all those who come to Paris. One may meet there, any morning, a crowd of Americans from all parts of our country, G. W. Kendall, esq., of the New Orleans Picayune, representing one end of our Union, and the brilliant correspondent of a Boston paper the other. I saw there, not long since, Mr. Perkins, a distinguished member of the New Orleans bar; he is busily engaged now in writing his history of Louisiana. This, I believe, is no secret to the public.

The painter, W. H. Powell, is visible there occasionally. Since his name has slipped from my pen, I may add, that by special invitation I had the pleasure a few days ago of seeing the fine work now assuming form and beauty under his brush. I should wrong the artist were I to lift the veil from it without his permission. Suffice it to say, the "Discovery of the Mississippi by Ferdinand De Soto" will be suitably placed in our Capitol. The prevailing idea, the encounter of civilization and barbarianism is developed with great effect. The work has passed through the different stages of composition and transferring, and now rests on the last canvass, for the most part in black and white. The few figures now painted promise well for the whole piece.

There are many other Americans who frequent L., W. & co's, who might be mentioned, but as their names are not public property, I abstain. Let me advise those about to come to Paris to inscribe their names at Livingston's as early as possible after their arrival.

Here is an excellent jeu d'esprit, or as an editorial friend of ours calls it, a "joe desperate."

The retiring Assembly is the butt of the wit of all the scribblers and caricaturists about town. In some prints Marrast is represented leading off the melancholy file of the non-elected, to what we should call "Salt River"; in others, the whole company is seen boxed up in a rail road car, setting off at full speed for oblivion. Both the elected and the non-elected are caricatured in the drollest manner, in little wax busts exposed in print shop windows. The resemblance is always undeniable, and the hits are so good that crowds are gathered all day in front of the places where they are exposed. The prints and busts are not the only means of ridicule; the newspapers are full of squibs, pointed and unpointed, against the late members. Some of these gentlemen "give as well as take;" like Parthians, they fight as they fly. One of them has returned to his practice at the Paris bar. A royalist client was paying him a fee, the other day; as the pieces, stamped with the heads of Bonaparte, the Louises, Charles X. and Louis Philippe, were counted out, the client said, "You are a good republican but have no objection to taking those tyrants there." "You must see, my dear sir," replied the lawyer, "that I take nothing but their heads."

A paragraph or two more are all we can afford to this entertaining correspondent:

A line of steam packets is now running regularly between Dunkirk and St. Petersburg. The trip from Paris to the capital of Russia is generally made in about eight or nine days. For one, I count greatly on these facilities of communication between different countries, for the spread of free principles. The rail road from Paris to Vienna by way of Berlin has played no mean part in the recent relations of France and Austria; and the old enmity between France and England is beginning to yield to the three-times-a-day communication between the two places. Forty or fifty parties of pleasure have gone from this city to London within the last fortnight. Such visits are more useful than treaties on paper. One of the reforms demanded in Italy is the establishment of railroads.

The Sultan of Turkey is entering on this course. He is planning a modest system of railroads. I must say in his favor, too, that he is undertaking, seriously, a system of primary instruction; this may or rather will take many years to be fully and properly applied. He is encouraging also the cultivation of the Turkish language and literature by every means, and especially by offering prizes for the best translations of the standard works in ancient and modern literature. This was the plan adopted by Peter the Great of Russia, which has produced in our day so many good writers in Russia and so many of the brightest geniuses in the scientific world. God speed the Turkish Sultan in his work of civilization.

My letter has run out to a length that I have scarcely room to notice a few of the works just out of the Paris press.

The new work of our countryman Bryan, of Kentucky, on California, has been republished here, and has, I believe, met a rapid sale.

The last number of the Revue des Deux Mondes contains a review by M. Philarete Chasles, of the works of Herman Melville—his Typee, Omoo and Mardi. The reviewer styles the last of these books, "original and incoherent, sensible and foolish, badly written and containing the most brilliant pages, full of interesting facts and tiresome repetitions, profound maxims and mediocre epigrams. You would call it the dream of a sailor boy who had received an irregular education, who had taken opium and who was swung by the wind on a mast top during a warm night in the tropics." M. Chasles then goes on to notice the other two works in the same style, leading us to suspect that he has himself taken too much opium; he examines the question of the reality of the existence of Mr. Melville; declares that the author is the son of a former secretary of legation at London; that he was a sailor and made the voyages described in his books; that he has married a daughter of Judge Shaw, of Massachusetts, and now lives near Boston. The reviewer seasons his piece with remarks on American character. One of them is, "Americans understand pleasantry except when it touches the national honor." Professor Philarete Chasles is the great gun here on English literature, and has written books on it, not to speak of reviews without number. He lectures on it, too, at the College of France. Last winter he delivered a course of lectures on American literature. His inexhaustible wit makes him quite interesting.

OZONE.—The Concordia Intelligencer gives the following explanation of the nature of this substance:

Prof. Schombein, of Basle, (we learn from Silliman's Journal,) published some account of this substance in 1814, and showed that it was the same as that which gave the peculiar odor developed by electricity. In the electrolysis of water it is mixed with the oxygen given off. It has been found to have many points of resemblance to cromine and chlorine. The professor believed it to be the base of nitrogen, which he supposed to be a compound of ozone and hydrogen. The odor of phosphorus arises on the formation of ozone; and ozone can be obtained by putting a stick of phosphorus in a vial and partly covering it with water. M. Marinac has obtained it by the electrolysis of diluted sulphuric acid, independently of nitrogen. This chemist found that perfectly dry air was incapable of generating this substance. This fact connected with the subject of cholera is worthy of consideration. Pure oxygen, nitrogen or hydrogen alone do not produce it; but if very little oxygen is added to the hydrogen, on passing the mixture over phosphorus, ozone is produced. Air impregnated with ozone loses its characteristic properties when passed through a heated tube, say between 570° and 750° F. Ozone is absorbed by water and metals but not by oil of vitriol, ammonia or chloride of calcium. These experiments go to show that nitrogen is not concerned in its formation. The experiments of another gentleman, a Mr. Williamson, confirm these and go to show that ozone is a compound of oxygen and nitrogen. Many experiments of great interest have been made by these two gentlemen, Mr. Louis Rivier, Professors Fellenberg, De La Rive, and others, on the character of ozone. Some by Messrs. Marignac and De La Rive would tend to show that nitrogen is not essential to the production of ozone, but these experiments are not considered conclusive. Other scientific gentlemen agree with Professor Schonbein that the weight of evidence is in favor of its being a compound of hydrogen [illegible].

THE DAYS OF MIRACLES.—The Charleston Courier of the 20th contains reports of the Liverpool markets of the 9th. They were received on the 19th.

FIREMEN'S RIOT IN PHILADELPHIA.—A Telegraphic despatch of the 18th, addressed to the St. Louis Republican says:

A severe riot among the firemen commenced in the lower part of the city, continuing the whole of yesterday. One of the parties was killed and fifteen or twenty wounded. The contest was between the Franklin and Moyamensing hose companies. During Saturday night the Moyamensing attacked the Franklin, took their apparatus and threw it into the Delaware. During the alarm yesterday the parties met, armed with guns, pistols and knives, attacking each other, discharging guns in military style, and using other weapons, during which Gill, a member of the Franklin, was killed, while leading his party; he was seen to fire four times.—An inquest was held, which implicated two men for murder. The police, in attempting to quell the riot, was beaten off by both parties.—The street in which the riot took place was covered with blood. The sheriff, with a strong posse, restored order late at night. Only two arrests were made.

NEW RAZOR.—The London Patent Journal contains an engraving of a Guarded Razor, warranted not to cut the skin in the process of shaving. Mr. Wakely, in the London Lancet, calls it a splendid invention, and affirms that it "can be used by the operator with perfect security in almost any situation. It can be used in bed, on a railway, or even in a carriage on the commons roads. The operation of shaving is effected in an inconceivably short space of time, even by the most timid or nervous."

What will the razor strop man say to this?—The "few more left" will be an incumbrance when these come about.

THE LOCOFOCOS ARE SICK OF PROSCRIPTION.—The Washington Union, lamenting over the dismissal from office of a clerk in the Treasury department, which it affects to regard as a great wrong, exclaims:

How long will an outraged people submit to this infamous system of proscription?

The Union, innocently of course, mistakes, in designating as proscriptions the removals from office which have been made, or which will continue to be made, of the partizans of the late administration. But we suppose the Union intends its question to be directed to the "infamous system of proscription," which, more than twenty years ago, was commenced by the then administration, of which the writers for the Union were supporters. There is no answering the question, if that be the object. The people "submitted" to it then, they continued to submit to it under that and the succeeding administrations. It was stopped for a short time, under the effect of the election of 1840; but when Mr. Tyler became a convert to the Locofoco doctrine, he embraced it as the leading principle of his administration; and under Mr. Polk it was more remorselessly than ever carried out. The people submitted to this, in all that time. The Union approved it in all that time. It is now proscribed under the present administration, who show their indignant sense of its infamy, by removing from office the men who got in and continued in under the system, which, for twenty years, with only a short interval, put up the public offices as rewards for partizan services.

If the men and the party which the Union supports ever get back into power, the system will be, we may be sure, renewed in all its original vigor. As a sort of stimulus for them to exert themselves to bring about that, for the country, most unfortunate result, perhaps the following memorial, which we find in the Boston Journal, may not be useless:

If we go back to the first year of Gen. Jackson's administration—and be it remembered that when he entered upon the office of President, at least one-half of the incumbents of public offices were avowedly of the Democratic faith—we shall find that within a few months after his inauguration, persons were removed from a host of offices, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, merely on account of their political sentiments. Amongst these removals were the following:

Fifteen Ministers Plenipotentiary, Charge d'Affaires and Secretaries of Legation.
Nine Marshals and fifteen U. S. Attorneys.
Forty-eight Collectors and principal Revenue officers.
Nine Indian Agents and Navy Agents.
Twenty-six Receivers and Registers of Land Officers.
Twenty-one Consuls for foreign ports.
Four hundred and ninety one Postmasters.

Besides these direct removals from office by the Executive, there was a host of removals of such persons as held office by secondary appointments, such as clerks, inspectors, &c., in the Custom House, whom we have no means of numbering. In the Custom House at Boston alone, out of fifty-eight persons employed in different capacities, forty were removed! In all, there were removed from office, of all grades of civil officers, within the first year of the Jackson administration, more than two thousand men.

The people submitted to all this—the Union encouraged them to submit—contended, indeed, that it was all right. It will do so again, will it not, if its party ever get back into power!—Bull. Pat.

City Intelligence.

THE JOINT COMMITTEE.—This body was to have met yesterday at half past 1 o'clock at the Mayor's office, but at the hour appointed only five members were present, viz: Messrs. Fabre, Dupre, Richardson, Montayne and Cook. Notwithstanding the absence of a quorum, it was decided to go into Committee, and the business, therefore, was of an informal nature, being confined to a few scattering remarks and expressions of opinion that would have been equally as valid if delivered at the corner of some street. A letter was read from Mr. Randall Hunt, giving his opinion as to the legality of constructing a levee for the protection of the city from overflow. This document, after citing numerous authorities, sets forth—that on the clearest principles of self-protection, the city has the right to erect such a bulwark, provided it does not infringe on the rights of private property. The following letter from Mr. Sauve, in answer to a communication addressed to him by the Mayor was then read:

NEW ORLEANS, 22d June 1849.

To the Hon. A. D. CROSSMAN, Mayor.—

On returning home, I found a letter which you addressed to me under date of to day, and I hasten at once to answer it. You ask of me to propose some plan for the construction of a levee, which could serve as a protection in case the works made by Messrs. Dunbar and Surgi should not stand firm. I will inform you that I left the Crevasse yesterday morning, at 9 o'clock, and the water as far as I could judge, was running through the entire opening at an average depth of three feet. I am not aware of the progress that has since been made, but I can perceive no other plan of constructing a levee, unless it be on the base of the old Levee, and securely planked on both side. This work could be readily accomplished with the aid of the materials that are now on the spot.

You demand of me Mr. Mayor to address an appeal to the planters, that they should again lend their assistance, and finish the work so happily commenced by the two engineers of the city of New Orleans. You will excuse me from doing so Mr. Mayor, I have no longer the right to exact or demand anything from my Parish; I have been the cause already of too heavy losses. But let the appeal be made in your name, and in behalf of the city of New Orleans, and I am persuaded that the planters will again tender their assistance, provided that the works continue to be under the direction of the engineers Messrs. Surgi and Dunbar.

Respectfully,
(Signed) P. SAUVE.

The Mayor then stated that he had addressed communications to the Police Jury and to the Syndic of the Parish of Jefferson, urging on the authorities the necessity of constructing a levee on Sauve's plantation, so as to defend the works at the crevasse. Mr. C. Le Breton, the Syndic of the Parish, was present, and stated that the planters were very reluctant to have their forces employed for that purpose, and that, moreover, he had not the right to call on them for aid. All that he could do was to urge personally the importance of the work, and trust to the appreciation of the inhabitants for its necessity. The term of office of the present Police Jury has expired and no new election had been ordered; as it was, it became almost impossible to obtain a quorum. He would convene the Jury to have a meeting at the crevasse forthwith, and in the meanwhile would exercise his best endeavors to procure some assistance from the planters in the shape of hands, the necessity of which had been sufficiently enlarged upon by Mr. Surgi.

This latter gentleman being present, furnished the members with some valuable information from the crevasse. He left the works yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and within the past few days has been busily engaged in fortifying the structure by means of a levee raised immediately behind. With the aid of 100 men, whom he expects to obtain from the neighboring planters, he has no doubt that the works will have been so fully secured by to-morrow evening as to be beyond the possibility of destruction. He estimates the entire cost henceforth for securing the works at only $500, as it will be merely necessary after to morrow to leave a gang of 10 or 12 men on the spot until the close of the week. The quantity of water flowing through now is only equal to a volume twenty feet wide by two feet deep.—Mr. Surgi is of the opinion that there is no immediate practicability of making the main levee in the rear, but thinks that the work can shortly be undertaken by the planters. The depth of the water out side of the fortifications is from 19 to 26 feet, showing evidently that there is some danger of undermining, but the bulworks that he is constructing immediately behind the works will guard against the occurrence of any such contingency. Mr. Surgi remarked that he should not be surprised to see the batture at Sauve's plantation, on this side of the break, give way, thus causing another crevasse, and he would deem it prudent, therefore, to have the city effectually guarded from overflow by throwing up some barrier, such as had been proposed to erect on Felicity Road. This observation gave rise to a spirited talk, during which Mr. Richardson contended that if some plan of the kind was not carried out, he would go in for self-protection in the shape of a levee down Canal street to Galvez Canal, and thence to the Bayou, which would effectually secure his Ward (the Second) from the ill-effects of another inundation. Mr. Fabre, on the contrary, was disposed to take a more Catholic view of the matter—of protection than the order of the day, he trusted [illegible].

... protection; he was opposed to sectional measures and was anxious that some means should be devised to shield the entire city of New Orleans. If we were not met in a similar spirit elsewhere, it was time enough to resort to other expedients.—Something more was added about "every one for himself," coupled with other disinterested matters, but the course marked out by Mr. Fabre struck us as the only proper and becoming one. We are very much averse to partial legislation, and the greatest curse connected with the division of the city into three distinct corporations, is the sectional feeling and jealousy to which it gives rise.

The matter was finally passed over with the understanding that it should be referred to the councils this evening, and accordingly a special meeting of the First has been convoked. The Second holds its regular sitting to night. Mr. Surgi stated that the cost of erecting a levee along Benton street to the Felicity Road at the intersection of Apollo street Ridge, would not exceed $1,200.

So much for the result of the matinee of the Joint Committee, sitting without a quorum, and betraying the reporters into an extended notice of their irresponsible proceedings.

TRUE BILLS.—The Grand Jury was in session yesterday, and found a true bill against Martin Mulloney, for breach of trust. It will be recollected that the accused was entrusted, by R. A. Heirn, with $2300 to be delivered to the clerk of the steamer Oregon, but he failed to fork over.

A true bill was also found against Mrs. Gallot alias Elise Clement, charged with forgery. The public has been fully apprised of the peculiar circumstances of this case, through the medium of our columns.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.—Charles Rogers was committed yesterday, by Recorder Bennis, before the First District Court, on the charge of having violently assaulted Thomas Burst, without any provocation.

LARCENY.—Elodie, a colored woman, was arrested yesterday in the First Municipality, on the charge of having stolen $50 on the 8th of June inst from Charles Prince. She was engaged by the latter as a servant, and took advantage of the circumstance to abstract the money from an armoir. The Recorder committed her for trial before the First District Court.

COMMITTED.—Geo. Keating was committed yesterday by Recorder Baldwin before the First District Court, on the charge of having stolen a lot of gas fixtures from John McCarthy, at the corner of Camp and Julia streets.

ROBBERY.—The premises of H. Giecla, at the corner of Orleans and Rousan streets, were entered on Sunday afternoon during the absence of the owner, by robbers, who carried off with them a gold watch, $70 in money, and a quantity of clothing. This is a serious loss for Mr. G., who is the door-keeper of the First Municipality Council, and a most worthy man. He can discover no trace to the rascals.

FIRST DISTRICT COURT.—Judge McHenry.—This Court was occupied yesterday with the trial of Miguel Otero, charged with the murder of John Burns, in the Third Municipality, on the 7th February last. The prisoner was defended by Mr. G. Schmidt, and the Attorney General conducted the prosecution. The evidence against the accused was conclusive, and the jury brought in a verdict of "guilty without capital punishment."

Choice high Sugar Land on Bayou Lafourche, for sale.

☞ We have for sale a choice tract of sugar land situated on the left bank of the Bayou Lafourche, having a front of 34 arpents front on the Bayou, with the usual rights of survey or concessions from the Bayou to the rear—the land is bounded on the upper side by the Plantation of Messrs. Gevers & Netherton, and on the lower side by that of Messrs Harang. This tract has been known as the 60 arpent tract of the late Nicholas Girod, but by a sale lately made of 15 arpents from the lower line, to Mr Harang, is reduced to the present size.

The land, although only distant from New Orleans 30 miles, the latitude is [illegible], and the cane on the surrounding Plantations is little liable to be impaired by frost.

Terms—One fifth cash, balance at 1, 2 and 3 years credit for notes bearing mortgage on the property, with 5 per cent per annum interest from date to maturity, and if not then paid to bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum.

Vice Consulate of the Mexican Republic in New Orleans.

The following communication of His Excellency, the Minister of Foreign and Home Affairs, under date of the 12th June, inst., has been received at this Consulate. It is as follows:

"His Excellency the Minister of the War Department, says in his communication of the 9th of the present month.

"Excellency: I inform the chief officers of the States now on the frontier, that the general government has been notified that some adventurers are now disposed to establish colonies without having conformed to the dispositions of our laws on the subject. In order to avoid any of the serious consequences which may result from such measures, His Excellency, the President, orders that all those who may attempt to establish themselves as a colony, whether they be foreigners or Mexicans, without having at first conformed to the laws of the country and obtained leave from the General Government, must be resisted at all hazards. The Government relies that you will exert yourself with zeal and patriotism to avert these evils by using all the means you possess to prevent the establishing such colonies. I now inform this order and communication to you for the publicity of which you may give it all throughout your department. I transmit you the communication so that you may give it all the publicity which is possible.

In order to conform with the above expressed, I now cause this order and communication to be published in the newspapers of this city.

O. L. DARBLEFEEN, Vice Consul.
