TO THE PROPRIETORS OF SUGAR REFINERIES AND SUGAR ESTATES—Working on the Vacuum Principle.

Gentlemen,—We beg most respectfully to introduce to your notice, a plan to improve your refined and raw sugars, by passing the syrup (previous to its being granulated in vacuo,) through a bed of animal charcoal, by which the color is absorbed, the operation is very simple and manageable—and the apparatus not expensive. The animal charcoal is regenerated for continued use, by a very efficient and speedy mode of recarbonising.

This principle entirely supersedes the custom of a double refine, or the use of the pneumatic pans—by this process of discoloration, the syrup is almost wholly granulated into a superior refined or raw sugar, and the small portion of unchrystallizable syrup or molasses, is of a pure nature.

We beg to observe that we are the original manufacturers of the Vacuum Sugar Apparatus, and first introduced the same into the colony of Demarara; since at New-Orleans, Cuba, Java and in many parts of the East Indies, with great success and satisfaction to the proprietors.

Since its first introduction, several modifications have been made, and improvements suggested by practical experience, which, by enabling us to dispense with some of the appendages, has had the double effect of simplifying the apparatus and very much diminishing the cost, without sacrificing any part of its efficiency.

Plans furnished for refineries and sugar plantations, and competent persons appointed to put the system actively and teach the present improvements.

Gentlemen, your obedient servants,
