The South Western Convention.

FOURTH DAY.

FRIDAY, Jan. 9, 1852.

The Convention came to order at 11 o'clock, ... Fowler, of Arkansas, in the Chair, the President being absent. The attendance of Members was thin.

Major Ranny, of New Orleans, offered a resolution, containing propositions to secure a uniformity of dimensions of ties, rails, &c., on all roads that may henceforth be built in the valley of the Mississippi. The resolution was adopted.

... Burwell, of Virginia, from the Committee on Routes, submitted the following resolutions, accompanied with a detailed report, which was not read.

Resolved, That the Committee on Routes regard the following system of internal improvements, as ... indispensable to the development of the agricultural, commercial, and mineral wealth of the South Western States and cities, but ... as essential to the equality and unity of the States of this confederacy; and they earnestly recommend the same to the patriotic consideration of the Legislatures and citizens of the South Western States.

1st. A national road to the Pacific Ocean, with one terminus on the Mississippi river North, and one South of the mouth of the Ohio, to divide the advantages of such road as equally as possible among the different States of the Union.

2nd. The South Western national railroad from Washington to New Orleans, passing through the States of Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, constituting the shortest practicable line of rail and travel transit, consisting of the following continuous sections, now under consideration, namely: the Richmond and Lynchburg railroad, the Virginia and Tennessee railroad; the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad, the Georgia and Alabama railroad; the Selma and Jackson railroad, the New Orleans and Jackson railroad.

3d. For Kentucky: The Memphis and Louisville railroad; the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

4th. For Tennessee: The Memphis and Louisville railroad, the Memphis and Charleston railroad; the Louisville and Nashville railroad; the Nashville and South Western railroad.

The roads embraced in the national routes above referred to.

5th. For Alabama: The Mobile and Ohio railroad, and the roads embraced in the national route referred to.

6th. For Georgia and Florida: The Gulf railroad, or a continuation of the South Western railroad of Georgia to Pensacola Bay; the Florida and Peninsula railroad.

7th. For Mississippi: The Mobile and Ohio railroad; the New Orleans Jackson and Nashville railroad; the New Orleans, Holy Springs and Ohio railroad, the Vicksburg and Jackson railroad, extended by Brandon, continued to Selma.

8th. For Arkansas: The Arkansas and Mississippi river railroad, from Fort Smith to Van Buren, to Little Rock, and thence to White river, and there diverging to Memphis and Helena.

A road from North Eastern Texas to Little Rock, crossing the Red river at or near Fulton.

A road from Fayetteville to Van Buren, and one from the Central railroad, leaving the same near the St. Francis Ridge, through Jackson and Independence counties to South Western Missouri.

A road from Little Rock to the Louisiana line, to intersect with the New Orleans and Opelousas railroad.

9th. For Louisiana: The New Orleans, Algiers, Texas, and El Paso railroad; the Madisonville and Jackson railroad; the Vicksburg and Shreveport railroad, the New Orleans and Nashville railroad.

10th. For Texas. The continuation of the New Orleans, Opelousas, and El Paso railroad through Texas.

A road from a point on the North East part of the State, connecting with the Little Rock and Fulton road, to run on the dividing ridge of the Sulphur and Red river to the ridge between Bois D'Arc and Sulphur; thence to Dallas, and to connect with New Orleans and El Paso route.

11th. For Missouri: The road from St. Louis Westward; the Hannibal and St. Joseph's railroad.

Mr. Burwell addressed the Convention for about an hour, taking the scheme of roads proposed in the resolutions for his text.

His discourse was mainly directed to the great advantages of railroads, and to show that they could, contrary to the belief of many, be built with slave labor, and would prove a strength to the institution of slavery. Inasmuch as they would diversify labor for slaves, thereby increasing the demand for such labor. On this last branch of his subject he related some things which had fallen under his own observation, in Virginia, to support him in his argument, and told several anecdotes, one of which merited a more questionable reception than the partial applause meted to it. The story was told to prove that domestic contractors and not contractors from other States, with which laborers should be employed, and that those domestic contractors should be obliged to engage slaves to do the work. Some such plan as this was adopted on a certain public improvement in Virginia, and in illustration of the case Mr. Burwell mentioned that when an accident happened, such as the falling of an embankment, the contractor went to work forthwith to dig out the negroes buried, whilst, if any of the Irishmen who worked on the improvement chanced to be immersed there was no delay in the regular progress of the work to rescue them, because one of their lives was not worth the excavation of a yard of earth. This instance of discriminating humanity was related with great gusto by Mr. Burwell, who throughout his speech took frequent occasion to inform his audience that he was an Anglo Saxon, that the whole American nation was Anglo Saxon, and to speak with undisguised contempt of Irish and Germans.

Dr. Trevenant, of Memphis, next addressed the Convention, in support of the project of building a railroad from Memphis to Louisville. This was necessary, he contended, for the prosperity of New Orleans, inasmuch as, above Memphis, during the summer, navigation was interrupted by low water, and during the winter, the navigation was frequently closed by ice.

Mr Martin, of Arkansas, made a rather humorous speech, which, as he declared it to be his intention to write out, amplify, improve, and publish in the papers of the city, it is needless to attempt to report.

On motion, the resolutions of the Committee on Routes, were taken up, seriatim, and after some discussion were adopted, with an amendment substituting the Georgia and Tennessee Railroad, for the Georgia and Alabama Railroad, in the route proposed for "the South Western National Road."

Mr. Campbell, of Kentucky, offered a resolution in favor of the road from Paducah to the Tennessee State line and from Paducah to Louisville. Adopted.

Mr. Anderson, of Virginia, submitted a resolution which was unanimously adopted, that it was the sense of the Convention that railway and water communication across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec is of national importance, and especially to the whole South Western States.

Mr. Hays, of Mass., presented the following resolutions for Gen. Acee, of Mississippi, who was absent from indisposition, but who expected to be able to address the Convention on the subject of the resolutions during the evening, and they were laid on the table subject to call.

Resolved, That the communication of the Southern Atlantic seaboard with the Pacific ocean, by means of a railroad, is a great American measure of commanding national importance and worthy of Government favor and assistance.

Resolved, That the highest commercial and political considerations imperiously demand the early construction of this important national highway, and that, in the opinion of this Convention, the Congress of the United States cannot make a more just or judicious disposal of the public domain lying within the State of California, than the appropriation of a large and liberal portion of the same for the completion of this great undertaking.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Convention, the most eligible and practicable route for said railroad is from San Diego or San Francisco, on the Pacific coast, by way of El Paso to the State of Texas.

Resolved, That a committee composed of one delegate from each State represented in this Convention be appointed by the President of the same to draft a memorial to Congress, setting forth the advantages and practicability of said proposed road, and asking the appropriation of fifty millions of acres of the public lands lying in the State of California for the construction of the great South Western Railway.

Resolved, That three persons be appointed a committee by this Convention to present said memorials to Congress during its present session, and urge before that honorable body the early consideration and adoption of such measures as will secure without delay the accomplishment of this truly national enterprise.

Mr. Campbell, of New Orleans, proposed the annexed resolution:

Whereas, the city of New Orleans is the great commercial entrepot, not only of Louisiana, but also of the States of the great valley drained by the Mississippi river; and, whereas, the States of Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and the others within said valley, have as direct an interest as Louisiana in the facilities afforded to both the foreign and domestic commerce which naturally seeks New Orleans as an emporium for barter, distribution or export, and, whereas, the maritime outlet of the products and importations of the south west is within the jurisdiction of the State of Louisiana, and, as a consequence, all goods and commodities exported and imported through that channel are affected by her laws, which may encourage or impede the growth, commercial prosperity, military strength and political power of the States of the valley of the Mississippi, thus rendering her morally responsible to them for the passage of such laws as will encourage, enlarge and strengthen the commercial and social interests of this vast section of the confederacy. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Convention, representing the States interested, respectfully, but earnestly request the Legislature of Louisiana to repeal and abolish all laws, either statutory or Constitutional, they have enacted, which may be in conflict with the spirit of the foregoing preamble, and that they will adopt such other laws as may be necessary to promote harmony of action and unity of effort on the part of the south-western States in constructing such a great system of railroads as will facilitate their intercourse with their natural commercial emporium; and that the Legislature in such manner as their wisdom may designate, do promote the immediate construction of great trunk railroads leading north and west from New Orleans, upon which the various branch railroads of this and other States may be engrafted.

Thomas Gibbs Morgan, of Baton Rouge, was opposed to the resolutions. He could not see with what propriety a body, in which were gentlemen from other States than Louisiana, could take upon themselves interference in our domestic legislation. He moved to lay the preamble and resolution on the table.

Col. Campbell was astonished that there should be found a single man in Louisiana to oppose the resolution. The whole south-west was interested in the commercial prosperity of New Orleans, and it was proper that the gentlemen from other States present should respectively petition our Legislature, on matters which affected their interests. The Legislature of Tennessee did not consider it impertinent that Mr. Robb, and the other gentlemen elected from this city to address the body on the subject of internal improvements should do so.

Mr. Morgan was aware that an effort was now being made and had been making for some time to overturn many of the old settled principles of legislation in Louisiana. Such he understood to be the object of the preamble and resolution, though not expressly stated, and it was because he thought the gentlemen from other States did not sufficiently comprehend the scope of the resolutions, that he moved to lay them on the table. He was willing to leave all such matters to the legislators, not doubting that they would shape the public policy of Louisiana, so as best to subserve her own interests, with a due regard to the neighboring States.

Mr Johnson, of Arkansas, wished the resolutions passed. The law of tacit mortgages and of community of property were swindling laws. He wanted this Convention to say that the legislation of Louisiana had been hitherto unwise, ignorant, contracted and baneful.

Colonel Morse came forward as a native of Louisiana, to say something on this subject, and particularly as it seemed to be popular in this convention, and in this great commercial mart, to take flings at the legislature of Louisiana.—Notwithstanding this seeming popularity of the denunciation, he would say that he considered some of the obnoxious laws as eminently wise and good, and so many other States were beginning to consider them as they were beginning to incorporate in their codes the tacit mortgage system. Why should an improvident or dissolute husband be allowed to squander his wife's property and leave her and her children penniless. Why should the man who contracted a second marriage be permitted to lavish on his second wife and progeny, the means that a first wife had assisted in accumulating, and her offspring be left to poverty? The principle upon which this law was founded had been enunciated and approvingly by great and good statesmen. And it was a correct principle that the wife, whose economy and industry helped to accumulate a fortune, should have a common interest—should be an equal partner with the husband in the property. He (Col. M.) hoped never to see in Louisiana, the law permit a husband to squander the fortune given to a daughter by a father whose honest industry had acquired it. The State of Louisiana was yet suffering from the crushing monopolies that once existed in the State. Perhaps the organic law had gone too far in imposing restrictions; but it it had the Legislature was sufficiently enlightened to correct the errors discovered by experience. But it was both offensive and unjust to visit such wholesale abuse and denunciation upon our own laws.

Col Morse having concluded his speech, the Convention adjourned to 6 p. m.

EVENING SESSION

The Convention re-assembled at half past 6 p. m. Col. Absalom Fowler, of Arkansas, in the chair.

Col Campbell called for the reading of his resolutions, presented this morning. Thomas Gibbs Morgan, of Baton Rouge, who had previously moved to lay these resolutions on the table, here withdrew his motion, and Col. Campbell rose to address the Convention.

He professed not to be a speaker, he was an engineer, but as such he prided himself on being practically acquainted with the subject of railroads. But it was necessary to tunnel a mountain, or to grade a road, he was on hand, but oratory was not his forte. He could not say such entertaining things as Col Yerger, who, in the way of badinage, had told us our multifarious sins and backslidings; nor would he retort by saying that Mississippi was somewhat to blame in bringing about our present embarrassed condition, in support of which the ledgers of our merchants might present some singularly eloquent figures. He simply appeared before the Convention for the purpose of speaking of the general value of railroads, and the substantial results that would flow from their construction. At present we had neither the capital nor credit to build railroads, but we intend to obtain the latter. Such, indeed, was the intent and spirit of his resolutions; he desired that Louisiana should enter upon a new and enlarged policy—a policy that would commence with the repeal of those laws which are repugnant to internal improvements, and the enactment of such statutes as would ultimately lead to the establishment of a great system of railroads, whose centre should be New Orleans. Col. Campbell wound up with the necessity of constructing two leading trunk roads, one Northward to Jackson, and the other Westward to Texas.

Mr. R. A. Johnson, of Arkansas, made some cursory remarks in connection with the resolutions presented by Col. Campbell, in the course of which he observed that it afforded him and his colleagues much pleasure to witness the unanimity and kindness of feeling that had characterized the deliberations of the Convention.—Mr. Johnson continued at some length, and made an animated and interesting speech.

Col. Walter, of Mississippi, observed that some remarks had fallen from the lips of gentlemen to-day, which he greatly regretted. He had been pained to hear the gentleman who had spoken on the adoption of his resolutions. The only time he had ever engaged in politics during his lifetime, was when he fought in Mississippi for the payment of her bonds. He had not succeeded; he was sorry that such had been the case, but right or wrong, he would always maintain his native State. [Cheers.]

The question being taken on the adoption of Colonel Campbell's resolutions, they were unanimously adopted.

The Chair then announced the formation of the following standing committees:

Committee to memorialize the Legislature of Mississippi under the resolution of Mr. Walter—

Col H. W. Walter, of Holy Springs.
Hon Stephen Cocke, of Aberdeen.
Col John Duncan, of Grenada.
Col C S Tarpley, of Jackson.
Gen E. L. Acee, of Yalobusha.

Committee of three to address Congress and the Legislatures of the several States, under the resolution reported by the Committee of Ways and Means:

James Robb, of New Orleans,
C S Tarpley, of Mississippi
A Fowler, of Arkansas.

Committee on Major Ranney's resolution adopted to-day:—

J H Ranney, of Louisiana.
Philip G Weaver, of Alabama.
John Martin, of Arkansas.
Mr Landrum, of Florida.
Wm Campbell, of Kentucky.
Shepherd Brown, of Mississippi.
Mr Chouteau, of Missouri.
Mr Brinckley, of Tennessee;
John T Mills, of Texas.
Mr Burwell, of Virginia.

Mr. Chouteau, of Missouri, presented the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the obstructions to the navigation of the upper Mississippi, caused by the Des Moines and Rock River Rapids, are such as to require the immediate action of Congress.

Resolved, That the obstructions to the navigation of the Ohio river, at the Falls, near Louisville, Kentucky, and the canal around them, needs immediate improvement.

Resolved, That the enlargement of said canal to meet the wants of commerce, deserves the serious and prompt action of our national Legislature.

Resolved, That the Senators and Representatives in Congress be and they are hereby requested to bring this subject to the consideration of Congress.

Mr. Chouteau presented his resolution in a few pertinent remarks, whereupon Mr. Isaac E. Morse rose and spoke emphatically against them. He observed that the South had pronounced over and again against any government or federal system of internal improvements, and characterized the resolutions as a firebrand.—He trusted the gentleman would withdraw them. Mr. Morse also spoke of the unequal distribution of the public monies North and South, when it was well known that the latter contributed a larger proportion to the National Treasury.

Mr. Hyams, of Rapides, remarked that it might be considered presumptuous on his part to enter into debate with a gentleman who was just fresh from the arena of politics at Washington. He was not of the opinion that the South had so emphatically pronounced against a general system of Internal Improvements by the Federal Government—at all events, the result of the election for Congress in the District of the gentleman who had just spoken would certainly not be considered as conclusive of his proposition. He hoped that Mr. Chouteau would press his resolutions.

Mr. Chouteau observed that so far from withdrawing his resolution he had another one to offer, viz:

Resolved, That the bars at the mouth of the Mississippi river are a great obstruction to commerce, and that the same should be removed as soon as practicable.

Mr. Hyams added another resolution of a similar character in relation to the obstruction of the navigation of Red river.

Col. Walton remonstrated that as a whig he was in favor of all these resolutions, but inasmuch as they were deemed to have a political bearing, he would move to lay them on the table. The vote being taken by States, resulted in seven yeas to two nays, consequently the resolutions were laid on the table.

The Chair here announced that he held in his hands an eloquent letter from Governor Brown, of Tennessee, addressed to the President of this Convention, on the subject of those railroad improvements in which the West and Southwest have a direct and vital interest. He would move that the letter be received and spread on the minutes. The motion was carried.

Several reports and resolutions having reference to local roads were received, without being read.

The resolutions of Gen. Acee being then called up, Messrs. Allen and Pike, of Arkansas, urged upon the Convention to lay them on the table. They were so disposed of.

Mr. De Bow presented a resolution soliciting Mr. Burwell, of Virginia, to furnish a copy of his speech for publication. Adopted.

Col. H. W. Walter, of Mississippi, presented the following resolutions, which were adopted.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Convention are due and heartily extended to Glendy Burke, A. D. Crossman, J. D. B. De Bow, Alexander Mouton, and C. S. Tarpley, comprising the original committee on the address and resolutions, for the great zeal and efficiency which they have evinced in the performance of the duties assigned them.

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Convention appoint a committee of three persons to wait upon the Hon. James Robb, and request on behalf of this Convention, a copy of his able and lucid speech on the 7th inst., for publication.

Col. Walker, of Mississippi, presented a resolution thanking the citizens of New Orleans for the cordial hospitalities extended to the delegates from distant States.

The Convention thereupon adjourned sine die.

GOERGEY AS HE IS.—The following details upon the present situation and mode of life of the now fallen and unhappy Hungarian General are taken from a letter dated Klagenfurt, and addressed to the Weser Zeitung. Arthur Goergey, the former commander-in-chief of the Hungarian army, has resided in Klagenfurt for these last two years, without his presence having made the slightest difference to the quiet course of the town. The man who shook first the throne of his sovereign and afterwards the revolutionary government of his country, now beguiles his privacy and loneliness with fanciful experiments in chemistry. His usual companion is an Englishman, who scarcely ever stirs from his side, but with this exception he is almost entirely estranged from society; and the only family which he has been known to visit, this but very rarely, is that of the cloth manufacturer, Moll, whose acquaintance he made during his residence at Prague, ten years ago, when, having left the 12th Hussars, he applied himself diligently to chemical pursuits. Every now and then a rumor is spread that Goergey is about to establish chemical works in the town. He's far from ... lack of money, but draws ... from the Austrian government the yearly pension of ... florins, while the Russians have already sent him 60,000 roubles, in two instalments, the first of 20,000, and the second of 40,000 roubles, so at least say those who pass for the initiated. It is generally believed that he is commissioned by the government with the preparation of a military history of the Hungarian war, as several imperial officers qualified to assist him in the work have latterly taken up their residence here, and visit him very frequently; to whom also, he dictates by the hour. His wife, a handsome woman, was formerly a governess at Prague; he married her in a fit of vexation, on account of a slight he met from her mistress, to whom he was paying his addresses. His houses hold is placed on the simplest footing. He keeps a cook, a nurse, and a man servant, a Slovack, formerly a Honved, who was his servant during the war. Among the common people his appearance awakens rather aversion than sympathy; indeed, it has been said that three several attempts have been made upon his life.—However, it is but seldom he is seen, as he will remain in the house for a month together, unless compelled by the tearful entreaties of his wife to take a walk in the precincts of the town. At such times the young man (he was only born in 1818) presents a deplorable aspect. His sunken eyes are fixed in an unchanging stare, his cheeks are pale and fallen in, his walk is weary, and he stoops as he goes. He usually wears a blue paletot, into the hinder pockets of which his hands are thrust. As if uneasy, he never looks straight at any one, nor takes the least notice if saluted. His whole exterior suggests the unhappy condition of a man to whom life is a burden. Very recently his wife has presented him with a fine boy, his first child. This event, usually so welcome in families appears to have shot no ray of joy into his troubled mind. Who would seek in this forlorn creature the hero, who, three years since, commander and dictator of Hungary, dispensed the destinies of thirteen millions of men?

BEHIND THE SCENES.—The following piquant paragraph, which illustrates the nature of the discipline which Mr. POLK maintained among the members of the Democratic party, we extract from the personal discussion between Mr. RHETT and Mr. FOOTE, on the Compromise resolutions of the latter.

Mr. Rhett: There is not a man upon this floor who does not feel more mortified and more sensitive at the position which the Senator and myself occupy in this controversy, than I do. But what can I do? I will tell the gentleman what occurred during the Presidential campaign to which he refers. After Gen. Taylor was nominated, and after Gen. Cass had been nominated, I was at a party on the heights of Georgetown, as the gentleman says. Mr Robinson, Mr. Carter, and some other good whigs, came to talk about the Presidential nominations, when I stated to them that, in my opinion, the Democratic nominations would be beaten, and that General Taylor would be elected. Mr. Robinson, I believe, told the Senator from Mississippi what I said. The next thing I heard of it was when I went to see the President of the United States (Mr. Polk, one morning. He said to me—"How is this? You said you would support General Cass and the Democratic nominations very clearly and distinctly to me. Now Mr. Ritchie tells me, that Mr. Foote told him that he had heard that you were against our nominations, and was going with the Whigs." "Why," said I, "sir, I never said so. On the contrary, I shall certainly support the Democratic nominations, as I told you before. I shall support Mr. Cass, and South Carolina will support him. All that I said was, that I believed we were about to be beaten, and the charge of Mr. Foote was totally ungrounded." I immediately came to the Senate, and asked the Senator if he had made that declaration. He told me that he drew that inference from what I had said. I told him that the inference was erroneous, and I told him farther that Gen. Cass would receive my vote, and that he would receive the vote of the State of South Carolina. Oh, said the Senator from Mississippi, that is out of the question. Mr. Calhoun is against him, and he will never carry South Carolina. Then I said to him, will you carry Mississippi for Gen. Cass? Certainly, said he, by ten thousand majority. I then said to him, Now, you carry Mississippi, and don't trouble yourself about South Carolina, and I will carry South Carolina for Gen. Cass. The result has shown whether I was right or wrong.

COMMERCE OF NEW YORK.—The Journal of Commerce publishes elaborate statistical tables embracing the most important items connected with the commerce of New York, for the year 1851. The total imports for that year at New York, were $131,309,632, of which $119,556,142 were dutiable, $9,696,967 free, and $2,049,543 specie. Excluding the last item, the imports exceed those of 1850 by about thirteen millions.

The total exports for 1851 are $87,673,445, of which $..., domestic, $4,745,865 foreign, and $41,747,... specie. Compared with 1850, the exports have increased twenty seven millions but if the specie be subtracted, the increase is only six millions.

The receipts for duties at the Custom House have increased. The following is a comparison for several years.

Cash duties received at the Port of New York

1851	$31,... 320 77
1850	29,047,439 74
1849	21,718,624 56
1848	19,859,666 22
1847	20,129,052 45
1846	17,220,835 84
1845	16,055,064 18
1844	20,057,776 05
1843	11,574,419 31

ANOTHER SEARCH FOR SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.—The Pioneer and Intrepid, screw steam vessels, formerly employed in the Arctic expedition under Captain H. T. Austin, C. B., have been taken into the inner basin, alongside the factory here, to have their engines examined and any defects found in them made good, preparatory to the vessels being again made ready, in the spring of 1852, for a further search for Sir John Franklin and his long absent companions. Great regret is expressed by several of the officers who were attached to Captain Austin's expedition that they were not made aware, when in the Arctic regions of what has now been stated by Captain Penny, in a letter to the Secretary of the Geographical Society, that he had found "a watch tent upon a height about four miles north and west from the position occupied by the ships as the winter quarters of the missing vessels, and "in the tent we found a small piece of paper with the words 'to be called,' the other part of which must have been torn off, thus evidently showing that a regular watch had been left." Had the officers been aware of the fact now made public, they would unanimously have volunteered their services to make further search up Wellington Channel before returning home. The general impression is, among all naval officers, that Sir John Franklin must have left papers to indicate the course he intended to take, and that a further search is desirable at the earliest possible moment.—English paper.

THE CAMPBELL MINSTRELS.—One of the most attractive places of amusement at the present moment, is the Armory Hall, where the original Campbell Minstrels hold forth. Their new songs, dances, and burlesque operatic songs, are inimitable, and afford any quantity of fun. As they only intend to remain a few days longer, our readers would do well to avail themselves of the chance.

ORLEANS THEATRE.—We are glad to state that Mr Tservyre, the tenor, has recovered from his recent severe indisposition, by which means the enterprising manager will be enabled to bring out a series of grand operas. This evening, Donizetti's opera "La Favorita," will be performed, and on Monday, Meyerbeer's magnificent production of "The Prophet," is to be represented. Those desirous of attending would do well to engage their seats in time.

PLACIDE'S VARIETIES.—Another capital bill of entertainment is to be presented to-night, commencing with the excellent comedy of "Time Tries All," the principal characters being sustained by Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Reeves, Messrs. Bass and Wright. Afterwhich, the favorite operatic ballet of "La Bayadere," with Madame Monplaisir as the chief attraction. The amusements will conclude with the laughable piece of "Grimshaw, Bagshaw and Bradshaw."

GRAND JURY FINDINGS.—The Grand Jury was in session yesterday, and found true bills against the following persons:

Against W. Fagan for the murder of F. Donovan on the 8th December last.
Against Patrick Fagan for perjury.
Against Thomas Hickey for manslaughter, in having killed Timothy Noonan on the 29th Oct last.
Against Thomas Hickey for manslaughter in causing the death of Wm. Tully on the 29th Oct
Against Sarah Connor, f. m. c. for perjury
Against Theophilus Freeman for subornation of perjury.
Against Thomas Christie, John Regan, and John Mullen alias Geo. Matson for robbing Elijah Campbell of $300, on the 3d December last.
Against James Dyson for inveigling a slave in August last and aiding him to depart his master's services.
Against Sandy Hawkins, f. m. c. for harboring a runaway slave.

FIRST DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Larue.—The argument for a new trial in the case of the State vs. W. Silk was made yesterday in this Court by Messrs. John R. Grymes and R. Preaux. His honor has reserved his decision.

SENT TO THE WORKHOUSE.—A McKinney alias Hager who was arrested a few days since on the charge of being concerned in the burglary at Mr. Murphy's shoe store in St. Charles street on the 6th instant, was brought up yesterday before Recorder Caldwell. The evidence was insufficient to fasten the charge of burglary on the prisoner, but as he was found in possession of that suspicious tool called a jimmy. The Recorder sent him to the Workhouse for ninety days.

A WHOLESALE SWINDLER.—Manuel Garcia, the colored man, whose arrest we noticed a few days since on the charge of having swindled Mr. Bianche, has, it appears, extended his swindling operations in more than one direction. On the 8th December he went to the establishment of T. Moreau, at the corner of Royal and Toulouse streets, with a written order for some goods from Mrs. Widow Fortier, whose coachman he represented himself to be. The articles, to the value of $12, were thereupon immediately delivered to him. A few days afterwards he presented a written order purporting to be from the same lady, at the house of Queyrouze & Co., and obtained some boxes of sardines and a basket of sweet oil. At the same time he went to the house of Nadaud du Triel in St. Louis street, with another order and obtained a basket of oil, some sundries and a box of preserved fruits. All these parties presented their charges yesterday before Recorder Genois, and he will no doubt be committed for trial on each. The scoundrel may have succeeded by imposing upon several other dealers, for what we know.

ASSAULT BY A SLAVE.—Baptiste, a slave was arrested yesterday in the First Municipality, on the charge of having assaulted and struck Pierre Barthe. The case has not yet been examined.

LARCENY.—A man named John Fitzsimmons, was detected on Thursday last in the cabin of the ship Diogenes, by the mate of the vessel, in the act of walking off with a coat which he had just stolen. The accused was conveyed to jail, and yesterday the Recorder committed him for trial before the First District Court.

BURGLARY.—As watchman Brady of the First Municipality was making his rounds on Thursday night, he came across an individual who was in the act of breaking into the glass door of a building at the corner of Dorsiere and Customhouse streets, having already succeeded in removing the wooden door. He was brought up yesterday before Recorder Genois, who on the strength of the testimony of Brady, fully committed him for trial.

PETTY CASES.—Some twenty individuals were brought up yesterday before Recorder Caldwell, charged with drunkenness and disturbing the peace. Considering that their libations were mainly chargeable to ... of Jackson, natural enough on the eighth of January, they were allowed to go.

FURTHER FROM EUROPE.

PARTICULARS BY THE ATLANTIC.

Interesting from France & Germany.

NEW YORK, Jan 6th.

The following items of European news were brought by the steamer Atlantic.

FRANCE.—Louis Napoleon's propositions have been received with favor by a very large majority of the French people. The election generally passed off very quietly. In the arrondissements inhabited mostly by working people—there was a large majority for Louis Napoleon, while in those where the influence of the nobility predominated, the vote was neutralized. The total majority for Louis Napoleon is stated as high as seven millions. [?] It is reported that several other generals have been arrested. Victor Hugo has escaped to Belgium.

Notes complaining of the dangerous support given to political refugees in England, have been presented to the foreign office by the representatives of Russia, Austria, and other States of Germany. It is intimated that Englishmen will not be able to travel without inconvenience in the Austrian territories, so long as past complaints are unheeded by the English government.

Large sums of money are forwarded from London to Hungary, much of which has fallen into the hands of the Austrian Government.

The Archduke Albert had entered Buda and Pesth, and assumed the reins of government.

Late advices from Morocco state that the Emperor refuses to sign the treaty with France, and that he is actually marching upon Tangier with forty thousand troops.

In Rome the vote of the troops was largely in favor of Napoleon.

Liverpool Markets.

On Monday, the 29th, there was an increased demand in the cotton market, and the sales reached 7500 bales at improving rates, the decline quoted two days previous being fully recovered. Breadstuffs were declining, and Flour was 6d @ 1s lower.

Prometheus Affair—Webster's Letter—Mr. Clay.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6th

There is every reason to believe that the Prometheus affair will lead to a better understanding, and that no British force will hereafter be stationed at San Juan de Nicaragua. Mr. Webster's dispatch on the subject is mildly spoken of. It shows a high spirit and bears a lofty tone.

Mr. Clay's health is improving, and he expects to-day to speak on Mr. Clarke's resolution on the policy of the United States relative to intervention in the affairs of foreign Governments.

Introduction of Kossuth.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6th.

In the Senate, yesterday, Mr. Crawford moved that the discussion of business be suspended for the reception of Gov. Kossuth. Kossuth then entered the Senate Chamber, and was introduced by General Shields in the following words: "Mr. President, we have the honor to introduce Louis Kossuth to the Senate of the United States." The President then invited him to a seat in the Senate, when the Senate adjourned. The members were then personally introduced to Kossuth by Messrs. Seward and Shields.

Particulars by the Cambria—Successes of Louis Napoleon.

NEW YORK, Jan 8.

The following items of European intelligence were brought by the Cambria.

The resignation of Lord Palmerston is attributed to a difference in the Cabinet with regard to the policy of the British government in the present condition of affairs on the Continent of Europe.

The Queen of Spain was delivered of a Princess, on the 20th of December.

France—Louis Napoleon—New Press Law.

The election continues to engross a large portion of the public attention. Louis Napoleon has been triumphant every where. Many of the imprisoned deputies have been liberated.

The new law for the regulation of the press requires all publishers of journals to deposite a certain sum with the Government as security for good conduct.

The Count de Montalembert is spoken of as likely to become a member of the Cabinet.

England—Money—Failures.

The Bullion in the Bank of England according to the last statement is over £17,000,000 pounds sterling.

Messrs. Barker, Becton and Scott's extensive Iron House in Glasgow, has suspended payment. Their liabilities are about £50,000. Messrs. Quarles, Harris & Co., have also failed for about the same amount.

The Markets.

FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 9, 1852.

We have now before us the prospect of an active business, as accounts are at hand, announcing the resumption of navigation in the Western rivers. The effect is already apparent in the downward tendency of some articles of Produce, but when the receipts come in more freely, we may look for a settled market. Our leading staple has continued in active request, at advancing prices. In Sugar and Molasses, a fair business has been done at steady rates.

The weather during the whole of the week has been pleasant.

COTTON—Arrived since the 2d instant, 33,449 bales. Cleared in the same time, for Liverpool, 30,351 bales; Havre, 2,616; Antwerp, 1,866; Bremen, 37; Genoa, 1,374; Trieste, 2,686; Barcelona, 2,304; Malaga, 889; New York, 1,668; Boston, 4,465; Philadelphia, 1,368; together, 46,682 bales, making a reduction in stock of 13,242 bales, and leaving on hand inclusive of all on shipboard not cleared this day, a stock of 130,589 bales.

STATEMENT OF COTTON.

Stock on hand Sept. 1st 1851 ... bales		15,399
Received last week	33,449
Received previously	547,072	580,519
		595,908
Exported last week	46,682
Exported previously	418,787	465,389
Stock on hand and on shipboard		130,539

Our last report closed on an active demand, at steady prices. Saturday's sales amounted to 8,000 b., and on Monday with an animated enquiry, the business reached 10,000 bales. The Atlantic's advices on Tuesday brought out a number of buyers, and the sales ran up to 12,000 bales, at an advance of ¼c. The limited quantity offering restricted Wednesday's transactions to 5,500 bales, but the favorable accounts received yesterday by the Cambria, induced buyers to come in even at an advance, and the sales of the past two days amount to 15,000 bales, at a further improvement of ⅛c; making the total business of the week 47,500 bales, of which, English and French buyers have taken the largest proportion. These extensive operations have swept the tables of factors, and the market closed with great firmness, at our advanced quotations.
