American System. We recommend the purchase of every article of the following extract of a letter from Hon. Andrew Stewart, a very able member of Congress.

This country is now divided into two parties, the friends and the enemies of the "American System." This constitutes the true ground of difference between them.

Government does little to advance the chief interest of human nature by its direct agency; and what shall we say of its indirect? Here we wish not to censure; but we must be allowed to use that plainness of speech which becomes Christians and freemen.

foreign nations, by which great advantages may accrue to their own country. Now the great truth on which the cause of virtue rests, is that rectitude is an eternal, unchangeable, and universal law.
