PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY J. BAYON,
PRINTER FOR THE STATE GENERAL COUNCIL AND FOR THE FIRST AND THIRD MUNICIPALITIES.
NEW ORLEANS:
SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 28, 1838.

FOR GOVERNOR,
A. B. ROMAN.

Extract from the Journal of the Senate of the 6th Feb 1835.

Resolved, That the Senate of the State of Louisiana do approve of the general course of the administration of the late executive, A. B. Roman; and that he carries with him on his retirement from office the grateful remembrance of the members of this house.

Resolved, That the President of the Senate be requested to send a copy of this resolution to Mr. Roman.

Extract from the Journal of the House, of the 3d Feb 1835.

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the state of Louisiana, that the administration of the government of the state, by the late governor, A. B. Roman, has been marked by wisdom, firmness, and a judicious and unwearied zeal for the public service: that in the execution of the laws, he has exhibited fidelity, and in the numerous and important appointments it has fallen to his lot to make, he has manifested impartiality, and a single regard to the true interests of the state; and that he retires with the full and entire approbation of this House for his official conduct, and with their personal esteem and regard.

Resolved, That the Speaker of this House transmit to the late Governor Roman a copy of these resolutions.

Representative, 1st District, to Congress,
JOHN SLIDELL.
For the Senate of Louisiana.

Stereotyped Calumnies

In the letter addressed by Mr Biddle to John Q. Adams, he has renewed certain charges upon the administration and its adherents, which we really regarded with surprise, coming as they did from an individual of acknowledged talents and respectability. These thread-bare, thrice worn slanders may be very well adapted to the prostituted columns of the New York Enquirer, the harmless stolidity of the Express, or the unprincipled and reckless course of the Louisville Journal. Either of these papers might appropriately endorse the accusation and urge it; the first with all the force that malignity can confer, the second with the innumerous inanity that neutralizes the best conceived efforts of his understanding, and the third with a potent infusion of pica which are to hold the place of reason and truth. But that a gentleman whose situation places him aloof from the petty squabbles of mere party polemics, and whose opportunities afford him abundant occasion to comprehend and scorn the calumnies, should seriously maintain them in a public document coming before the entire people, is a melancholy indication of the utter and hopeless subserviency of moral rectitude to the unconditional behests of party zeal.

The slanders in question are, that the Government wished to destroy all the banks, and that it wished to impose an exclusive metallic currency upon the people. Both are wilful and groundless falsehoods, maintained solely upon assertion and without a shadow of substantial proof to sustain them. Wretched and ridiculous as they are, however, the ultra whig presses are not scrupulous to adopt them, and [illegible] every [illegible] of these [illegible] to abstract and amplify these baseless charges. The [illegible] long since characterised them by the title of Stereotyped Calumnies, and truly we believe that certain [illegible] and paragraphs of denunciation against the present administration [illegible] to remain constantly in type, ready to be [illegible] at a moment's warning, and thus spare the writer a portion of labour [illegible]. But Mr. Biddle [illegible] with a view to give them more impressiveness and plausibility, has chosen to incorporate them in his document, and [illegible] the [illegible] of common honesty, by declaring that the government seeks to arouse the hatred of the people against the banks. Now can there be a more gross and shameless false [illegible]. The government has never, for one moment appealed to the popular passions to inspire a feeling of hostility against the banks—nor has it in any manner or in any degree sought to destroy those institutions [illegible]. Instead of saying that the administration attempts to direct the popular passions against the banks, it should rather be said that the opposition endeavor, by the unremitted reiteration of slander, to excite the hatred of the people against the government. Instead of saying the government makes war upon the banks, it should be said the government is hostile to the establishment of one bank—a National Regulator, as it has been presumptuously termed—a bank which although [illegible] disapproved by the people, the [illegible] and the executive, still maintains itself [illegible] the overwhelming influence of a single individual, and in despite of the decided manifestations of public opinion. The Government is indubitably opposed to the chartered project of Mr Biddle, a National Bank, but the assertion that it is hostile to the banking system in general, is totally unproved, and can be readily overthrown by the express declaration of the president in his last message, "that banks properly regulated were a benefit to the community," and by the reiterated refutation of this slander in the columns of the [illegible] the official organs of the administration. It is the reform, not the destruction of the system that is desired—how much more then [illegible] are willing to admit that vices, abuses and monopoly have crept into and corrupted the administration of the financial institutions throughout the union, and that judicious supervision and wholesome legislation are necessary to revive the currency [illegible]. Few will deny that to the abuses of the banking system most of the commercial distress [illegible] is attributable, [illegible] the whole economy of which has been hitherto vitiated, imperatively called for, but it is the bounden duty of all good patriots, to assist the general & local governments in the attempts to bring about the contemplated improvements. Instead of this, the end and aim of the opposite party appears to be to fetter and impede the salutary designs of the government, and thus to sustain the banks in the unequal and culpable career they have hitherto pursued.

The second slander, that the government wishes to impose an exclusive metallic currency upon the people, is but a corollary of the first and dwindles into insignificance when the assertion upon which it is based, is demonstrated. The government cannot seek an exclusive metallic currency, since it expressly declares, that it has nothing to do with the regulation of the local circulation. This is the province of the states and the legislatures. The Senate and House of Representatives of Louisiana may, at their pleasure, pass a law destructive of all the banks, or they may enact a law declaring that banks shall be permitted to issue notes upon a specie basis of one-twentieth part of their capital, or they may, as in New York, pass a general banking bill, by which all are free to enter into the lists of competition, and all may establish banking houses whose notes seem to them to [illegible] confidence of the community. The general government, by its construction of the constitution, has no power whatever to interfere with the state banks, and hence cannot seek to establish an exclusive metallic currency. The Democratic party certainly desire to diminish the amount of paper money now flooding the land—they would wish to banish the smaller notes from circulation, and substitute gold and silver in their stead, with the belief that such a measure would give greater security and stability to the currency—but neither the party nor the executive, have in view the annihilation of the paper system. But the Federalists seek to drive the precious metals from circulation entirely, and to impose upon the country an exclusive paper currency, composed of depreciated or irredeemable bank notes. After promoting, and even wantonly striving to perpetuate the evils from which we suffer, they would fraudulently insinuate the ignominy of having brought distress upon the country, and of seeking to prolong it, when in fact, every possible measure has been resorted to, calculated to diminish and allay it.

The Advertiser calls us a bore—doubtless we are extremely annoying and troublesome to him whenever we disturb the placidity of his cogitations, by rudely destroying the webs of logic he deduces, to which he complacently weaves around him. We are perhaps a bore to him—for we have attempted to bore into the barren soil of his intellect, in the vain hope of eventually arriving at some gushing spring of reason that would indicate some thing like fertility. But the Advertiser is still more severe—he intimates that we are mulish. Well the mule is at least a mongrel quadruped, and partakes in a measure of the generous spirit and noble qualities of the steed. Besides, he is patient and sure footed and safe—he traverses rugged paths and dangerous precipices, without slipping and injuring himself and his burthen. The moral impempsychosis is not therefore so wholly invidious as it was intended to be. But the Advertiser cannot boast one single drop from the veins of the horse to give him spirit and impulse. He is purely and wholly asinine—there is no admixture in him. He has all the estimable qualities of the most musically braying donkey in creation.

Confidence in New York Banks.—When bank paper is at the par value of specie, confidence may be pretty well re-established. The "Star" states that the sum of $75,000 was recently deposited in one of the banks in that city, partly because no premium could be obtained for it. We fancy that no one will contest the solvency of the New York Banks after this exhibition of public confidence.

The Canadian Patriots.—Sutherlands sentence of death, it is said, is to be commuted to transportation, and Dr Theler of Detroit, and Walter Chase of Port Stanley, taken on board the schooner Anne, will certainly be hung.

☞ The Territory of Wisconsin has been divided by a law of Congress, and all that portion lying west of the Mississippi after the 3d day of July next, will constitute a separate territorial government, to be known under the name of Iowa. A century hence, and Wisconsin and Iowa will be towns as familiar in our mouths as New York and Pennsylvania are now.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT.

From Mexico and Texas.

Schooner Sarah Ann, [illegible], three days from Tampico, returned to this port last evening, in consequence of the Texican Ports being blockaded by the French squadron. The French brig of war La Peyrouse, was off Tampico on the 22d inst, the blockade commenced at Vera Cruz on the 15th. Lt Henry who boarded the Sarah Ann informed them that the Mexicans refused to pay the Indemnity, and the French were determined to compel them.

The United States ship Natchez sailed for Pensacola in order to make known the blockade.

FROM TEXAS.

By the arrival of the Steamship Columbia, in 29 hours, from Galveston, we have been informed that the Texian Congress met, and requested the President to have the petition to the U. States for annexation IMMEDIATELY WITHDRAWN.—it was on receipt of a letter from the minister to ENGLAND.

Congress.

On the 19th instant in the Senate Mr Grundy moved to postpone the resolution fixing the day of adjournment, which had come up for its final passage. Mr Preston opposed it, stating that there was abundant time from the present moment to the 4th June, for the discharge of all the business on the docket. After a desultory discussion, the vote was taken to postpone the resolution till Monday week. There were 25 yeas and 16 nays.

The bill in relation to the United States Bank notes came up, on motion of Mr Wall, who made a two hours speech in defence of it. He was followed by Messrs Niles and Smith in favor of, and Messrs Preston and Prentiss opposed to the bill. The subject was discussed during the greater part of the sitting.

In the House, the reconsideration of the resolution to divorce the Government from the public press was resumed. Some debate ensued, but the morning hour having expired, the House took up, on motion of Mr Cambreleng, the bill making appropriations for the Cumberland Road in Ohio, Illinois and Indiana.—The question being on Mr Underwood's motion to recommit the bill with instructions to apportion [illegible] to the States through which it passed, several speeches were made both for [illegible] against the measure, after which the House adjourned.

FIGHT BETWEEN THE CITIZENS AND U. S. TROOPS AT DETROIT.—The Philadelphia Ledger has the following:

"Fight between the Citizens and U. S. Troops at Detroit.—By the Detroit Daily Free Press of the 9th inst., we learn that the north part of that city was disturbed, on the Saturday previous, by a row which occurred in a German grocery, between the Germans and some of the United States troops quartered [illegible]. The soldiers were the aggressors, having been drinking, and broke some articles for which they refused to pay, when they were ejected from the premises, and in the scuffle, one of them, a sergeant, received a severe blow on the head with an axe. The party collected and armed themselves, attacked the dwelling, and were fired on, which aroused the [illegible] in the quarters and [illegible] other scenes threaten some serious consequences. The timely arrival of the commanding officers put a stop to further proceedings; the soldiers were driven to their quarters and order was again restored."

Municipality No 1 vs Municipality No 2. | Appeal from the Parish Court of the Parish and City of New Orleans.

In this case, the Court this day delivered the following [illegible]

This suit commenced by [illegible] the second municipality [illegible] the petition of the first municipality [illegible] other works on the batture in front of the faubourg Saint Mary [illegible] Parish Court. The ground alleged [illegible] the navigation of the river, [illegible] culty, and to [illegible] embracing several extensive [illegible] those works under contract with the corporation.

The original petition presented by the 1st municipality, sets forth that the batture had been [illegible] the inhabitants of the city, for public [illegible] them with the sand and earth necessary for the construction of buildings, filling up streets, lots of ground, side walks and generally for other improvements of the city, until they were [illegible] enjoyment by a final decree by the late superior court, at the suit of Jean Gravier; that afterwards in 1820 Edward Livingston and others, then proprietors of the batture, entered into a compromise with the city of New Orleans, by which they ceded and abandoned to them, all their rights in the batture within certain limits, and to the levee constructed upon it, as well as the soil upon which it is situated, to wit the soil of Tchoupitoulas street, the whole extent of the faubourg giving said street a width of sixty feet, &c. upon the condition that no lot of ground forming the object of the donation, should remain in the possession of the corporation, [illegible] or otherwise, [illegible] ready [illegible] and [illegible] should [illegible] for the facilities of commerce. That in March, 1836 the city of New Orleans was divided by an act of the legislature, into three separate municipalities and that by the 11th section, it was provided that each municipality should have the exclusive right to make and enforce all public laws and regulations within their respective limits, and to regulate, and at their own expense, make all improvements to streets, public squares wharves, and other public property, the use of which is not common; provided, that such regulations shall not deprive the inhabitants of the other municipalities, of the right of using the same in common with the inhabitants of the municipality within which such property is situated, &c; and provided, that no disposition shall ever be made of the batture in front of said St. Mary, in violation of the transaction of compromise above referred to, and that the municipality of the upper section of the city, shall not, in any manner, obstruct or impede the inhabitants of any part of the city, in the free use and enjoyment of any of their rights on the said batture. The plaintiffs proceed to allege that the second municipality in violation of their rights, and contrary to the provisions of the law, have taken exclusive possession of the batture in front of the suburb Saint Mary, and have ordained, and are constructing several works in violation of the stipulation contained in the act of donation. That the works in question consist of wharves, made to such an extent, and in such direction as to render it utterly impossible for the inhabitants of the first municipality to enjoy their rights, particularly in taking the sand and earth, necessary for their ordinary building and other purposes, the defendants having appropriated to themselves almost all the superficies of said batture; that the second municipality have opposed the first, and its inhabitants, in their usual, free and public use of said batture; and that a portion of the citizens of the first municipality, engaged in erecting buildings & filling up lots and streets, have been opposed and obstructed by the defendants in the enjoyment of their rights upon the batture. The answer of the defendants denies that they are engaged in the construction of wharves in the margin of the river, opposite to the faubourg St. Mary, and forming a part of the port of New Orleans; but they aver that they have a legal right so to do. That such works are indispensably necessary for the use of that part of the port, and for the safety and convenience of the vessels that and [illegible] were ordered and [illegible] before the division of the city into three municipalities; that as the batture is situated within the [illegible] and municipality it is their exclusive property, and under their exclusive control.

They deny that they have contravened the compromise in any manner, [illegible] the carrying of earth and sand from the batture, they deny that [illegible] of New Orleans or any portion of it, have any right to excavate earth from said batture and transport it elsewhere, except with the permission of the authorities of the 2d municipality, and at such times and at such places as they may designate. They conclude by praying that they may be declared to be the true and lawful owners of the batture, that it may be quieted in their possession, and that the injunction may be dissolved.

After a trial below, the Court was of opinion that the second Municipality had a right by law, to construct the wharves and embankments which they had [illegible] on the batture; and consequently, the motion [illegible] dissolved so far as it applies to the construction of those works; but considering that the defendants had no right to prevent or hinder the whole city from taking earth from the batture, the plaintiffs were by the same judgment secured in the lawful enjoyment of their right, and the 2d Municipality was perpetually enjoined from preventing the plaintiffs from enjoyment. In the first part of the judgment, both parties have acquiesced, and the defendants prosecute the present appeal, from the part only which relates to the defendants from disturbing the plaintiffs in the enjoyment of their right to take sand and earth from the batture with which [illegible] [illegible]
