NOTICE—TO THE CULTIVATORS OF THE NEW SUGAR CANE IN THIS STATE.—The subscriber having obtained letters patent of his invention of a Sugar Kettle, now offers it for sale, with an assurance that he has proved it to be the best mode yet adopted for saving fuel and time. It is not his intention to patent other kettles, but to enter into any particular description, as all the advantages and effections relating to it may be seen at the counting house of Manuel White & Co, Gravier street, where he will give such information as may be required on the subject; but begs leave to add, that the information of those at a distance, that with one fire only, his kettle will evaporate daily all the juice that any steam mill, now or to be built, can furnish—that the plan can be made to suit a small or large force. The saving of time made by the subscriber himself, in a small mill, produces 50 barrels of sugar with 910 cords of wood. Clemens Gardiel set the kettle; he also made the subscriber's sugar house and mill, and may be referred to for the work. Any kind of fuel may be used, and Mr. Finny's patent, or Mr. Hillman's steam granulator might be added without interfering with the present arrangement, should such a combination be thought advantageous.
