PRINTED DAILY, BY F. DELAUNAY, St. Peter-Street, between Bourbon & Royal.

NEW ORLEANS: SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1829.

Opinions, Feb. 11

We have seen in the late papers that the river had risen and still continued to rise; the severe frost, and sudden change in the weather, since a few days, make us apprehend that the hopes, entertained by our inhabitants, of seeing the steamboat arrive at our landing, will not so soon be realized.

Spain's Brown.—A clay has recently been discovered in the margin of a small stream in Butler county, Ohio, about ten miles west of Hamilton, possessing all the properties of the imported Spanish Brown, as ascertained by those who have experimented with it. It is said that it may be had in abundance. Thus is the earth developing her resources, and yielding up to the uses of man her hidden treasures. Hamilton Telegraph.

The fair Sex in Virginia.—Governor Giles in his Message to the Legislature on the 2nd ult. makes honourable mention of the fact, "that for the last four last years but one white woman has been convicted of a Penitentiary offence within the Commonwealth of Virginia and that only two white women have been confined in the Penitentiary for the last two years." The free white population of the State exceeds in number 260,000 souls. "How wonderful the fact," continues the Governor, "that only one white woman has been convicted of a Penitentiary offence within the last four years!"—N. Y. Paper.

Cincinnati, Jan. 26.

The increase of population in the adjoining State of Indiana is represented as 100,000 during the past year. This looks like filling up the vacant prairies and rich land of our sister State. May they go on, and continue to flourish.

The time of completing the Canal round the Falls of Ohio has been extended two years by an act of the Legislature of Kentucky. Who wish it was completed—thousands agree with us in sentiment.—It is an improvement devoutly to be wished for by all who desire to witness the continued rapid rise of property and increase of buildings, that even the inclemency of the winter has not stopped in our city.

INTERESTING LETTER.

The following letter from our valued friend Dr. Howe, is short, but interesting. It came by the brig Delos, cap Smith, from Smyrna, and last from Malta, who came out into Plymouth on Saturday morning. The reported death of our countryman, Gen. Jarvis, is a source of deep regret to the friends of Greece and Liberty, and will be sensibly felt by his relatives in this city. In other respects the news from Greece is of the most cheering character.—N. Y. Com.

MALTA, November 4, 1828.

Dear Sir—I arrived here yesterday, and we are now getting under weigh again to continue our voyage to Greece; but I can hardly give you an account of the latest news from that country, as I have seen several persons lately from there.—The foreigners are all leaving now that the war is over. Our countryman, Brown, is here, performing his quarantine—he is slowly recovering from a severe illness; but, feeble as he is, he may feel himself highly favored in being among the few who have come off with life. The fate of the Philhellens has been terribly severe: at least two thirds of the number of those foreigners who have enlisted their fortunes in the cause, have perished, "by disease or strife." Jarvis, too, is gone, I am told; poor fellow! he has sealed his devotion to the cause with his life. The news we had of the death of Capt. F. A. Hastings, proves too true; died by a wound he received in attacking the Turks near Missolonghi; he certainly was among the bravest and most meritorious champions of Grecian independence without ostentation, he expended large sums of money in the cause; without any parade before the public, he achieved many daring exploits; and his naval actions if well known, would give him glory far above that which Cochrane, or any other foreigner has gained.

Caps d'Istria, it seems, is getting along wonderfully well with the internal administration: the people are returning to their former occupations; the peasant to his vineyard; the sailor to his ship; piracy has ceased entirely, and the country is quite tranquil.

Cochrane has returned, and is now at Egina with another armed steam vessel but (the hoof is out) it is said, he demands five thousand dollars, ere he will allow the Greek flag to fly over her.

Constantinople is here, he has the me-gement of the financial department, under Capo d'Istria; and has just obtained $50,000 on a loan. Greece is looking up. I hope to find things in such a state of arrival there, that I shall be able to send you a good report of the land; till then, adieu. Yours &c. SAMUEL G. HOWE.

[From the American Mercury.]

It must be apparent to the most casual observer, that if New-England expects to possess the least influence in the Union, she must continue to be, as she now is, firm and united. She has within her bosom a small and active, but profligate party, who are determined to render her subservient to the views and purposes of the managers at the South—men who would not only annihilate her political influence, but would sacrifice her pecuniary interest, and who would destroy not only her power, but her wealth. She is obnoxious to the warm blooded politicians of Virginia and the Carolina, because by her industry and enterprise she has become prosperous—and their maxim has long been "Let New-England be destroyed." To undermine and subvert the foundations of her wealth, is with them a great, although a secondary object.—Their first is to array New-England in hostility against herself—to conquer her by the aid of her own sons, and to divide and distract her at home, that she shall be powerless abroad.

If we are not entirely misinformed as to recent movements at Washington, the necessity of our being thoroughly united will be most apparent. New parties are there forming with reference to the next Presidential election—and the party who lately supported Gen. Jackson, are already dividing upon his successor. If New-England remains united, her influence in the struggle must be sought, and must be felt, and it is by no means improbable that her vote. (if an entire and unbroken one) will decide the next Presidential election. Let those then among us, by whatever name they may call themselves, who seek to disunite us, and to render one part of New-England jealous of and hostile to another, be carefully watched.

A Letter dated Washington, Jan. 2, says—The Committee of Ways and Means will report shortly on the memorial against Sales at Auction.—New views have been taken of this subject in the great cities, since it has been discovered that the smaller and southern seaports have entered the lists against the auctions, in hopes of getting back their lost trade by renewed importations for themselves. Since the introduction of auction sales, retailers and jobbers have supplied themselves in the large towns, to the great injury of small markets and individual importers.

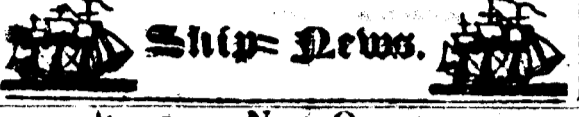

No duty will, for the present, be imposed on sales of merchandize, by auction, being a question whether such a tax may be laid; but it is proposed to require Auctioneers to furnish at the time of their sales, printed invoices, or copies of invoices from the Custom-House, of the goods intended to be exposed, and at the prices at which they have there been entered. This is intended to obviate the alleged frauds of double invoices; one for the custom-house, and one for the auctioneer. So that all the movement on the subject, for the time being will end in another revenue law.

Remedy for Intemperance.—The following is the most singular remedy for intemperance we ever heard of. After this, Dr. Chamber's famous prescription must "hide its diminished head."

Lewis—A drunkard of this town, had been long yoked in matrimony, and was surrounded with a hopeful progeny. His wife, at length, finding if the husband drank so much, she and her children must leave off eating, determined to follow him from pot-house to pot-house, which she did, seating herself at his side, calling for the same beverage, regaling herself in the same manner, and singing songs in concert. She neglected her children, returned home jovially drunk, always in company with her husband; the man swore—the woman chimed in—the husband left home—she followed. At last, he was disgusted with the public house, because his phantom wife was there—and the thought of his children made him a convert. He left the public house—so did his wife: he attended to his business—so did she; he became a good father—she a good wife: thus exemplifying a new way of curing a husband.—Brighton Gaz.

A gentleman who has recently traversed the State on his way to Alabama, has obligingly left at our office, for the inspection of the curious, and those who feel interested in the home production of articles of the first necessity, ten different samples of cotton and woollen fabrics, manufactured in the family of a respectable planter in the county of Laurens; and which were personally furnished to him by the good lady, under whose immediate superintendance they were spun, dyed and woven. The articles consist of plain Cottons

(3 and 4 colors) for gowns—striped and figured vestings—ribbed cotton for pantaloons, and several pieces of plain, twilled and ribbed cotton and woollen cloths, suitable for winter clothing, viz: for coats and pantaloons. All the articles are of good texture, firm and substantial, and are highly creditable to the ingenuity and industry of the makers, and show how little exertion is necessary to render the inhabitants of Georgia independent with regard to all articles of first necessity. Among other articles shown to our traveller, was some excellent negro clothing, consisting of strong Cotton Shirts, and Cotton and Woollen Plains for jackets and pantaloons—also three handsome white figured counterpanes, with beautiful fringe, and coloured coverlids of cotton and wool.—Geo. Journ.
