INSECT TENT.

A NEWLY invented article called an insect tent is now offered to the public at No. 45 st. Charles street opposite the Exchange Hotel, of such an elegant and novel form and construction, that it is at once useful and comfortable, that it must meet with universal approbation.

As a complete protection against annoyance from all winged insects, without causing the least incumbrance in the room, this tent is perfect. It will last for years, and is probably desire. It will give to the inhabitants of warm climates a comfort and luxury never before approached by any other mosquito hangs. The tent is suspended from the ceiling of the room, instead of being, as usual, a thing to which it may be desirable to fix it, and may be raised or lowered at pleasure. It is so contrived that it may be instantly folded up into a small compass, and taken down and run up to the ceiling and beds much out of the way as a suspended lamp or chandelier would be, and it may be as quickly unfolded and so placed for use. The time required to form the tent or to fold it up out of the way will not require more than one minute. It will begin ornament to a room instead of an unsightly incumbrance, and is simple in its construction, that it is not liable to get out of order, intended to be used for sitting, reading, writing, dining and sleeping under, and to be used in the dwellings, counting houses and stores, and may be used by a private portion of a parlor of pleasure, when in the woods. People never know the comforts that may be had in sleeping in this great mosquito country until they try one of these newly invented tents, they may be obtained at a reasonable consideration of any dealer in furniture in or out of the city. These now in use are hexagonal, are 8 square and 8 feet in diameter, 10 feet 4 inches high, and when folded up measure a little 4 feet in length, 2 feet 6 inches and 8 or 10 inches in diameter. The cost of one is only $20.

The ladies should examine this new tent, especially as it will afford them many comforts heretofore denied them, as it will be found a most convenient and effectual protection against insects. This new insect tent is really one of the most useful and comfortable contrivances of the day and must soon be used by every family either in the cities or in the country.

The above description of the insect tent may appear extravagant and calculated to give a false estimate and coloring to the matter as is too often the case with notices and advertisements of this kind, but the public may be assured that no such attempt has been made in this article, of which people will be convinced by calling at 46 St Charles street.
