Of the Clergyman from whom our cotempomry derives his favorite phrase, we have no knowledge; nor have we ever, either by circumstance or inclination, had any connexion with the sect of which he is stated to be the organ. In this respect at least, our cotemporary has the advantage of us.

The petitions which have been presented to Congress relative to Sundy Mails, it is believed have emanated from no particular religious sect. Great numbers of various denominations have united in presenting them. Elsewhere, their motives have been treated with respect. We have never approved their object, and do not how feel ourselves called upon to undertake their the senate; and that it was of but lattle coase defence, however unwarrantably we may think

THE VICE PRESIDENCY. been named as candidates for the office of Vice President, it would appear that the people regarded that officer only in the light of president of quence who filled the chair. If the duty of presiding over the deliberations of the senate were the only one he might be called upon to discharge it would in reality be a matter of minor consideration, provided he possessed that dignity of character, and that energy and integrity o tain a sincere respect for the Christian Religion purpose, which ought to distinguish the presiding -for its precepts, and its ministers; and we officer of a deliberative assembly, such as that of shall always be the humble advocates of such the senate of the United States. But, in the se lection of a candidate to fill this important station, it should be borne in mind, that it is se cond only in dignity, and, in one point of view, equal in importance, to that of president. The constitution of the United States declares that, in case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation or inability to discharge the powers and duties of said office, the same shall devolve upon the Vice Presigious societies, where they are maintained and dent." By a combination of circumstances, the cherished, and of the contrary effects resulting president may be induced to resign, or, in the providence of God he may be called to other seenes, or he may be rendered incapable of discharging his high functions, and the Vice President be called upon to administer the government. In this view of the case then, it must be manifest that, for the faithful and efficient adthose sections of the country that are eternally ministration of public affairs, and the stability of reviled." We will answer our neighbour as our institutions, the Vice President, the second candidly as we know how. And in the first officer of the government, should, in all respects, be competent to discharge the important duties which may thus devolve upon lain.

It is not enough that a candidate for this high office, may have distinguished himself in some for charitable and benevolent purposes which dis well-fought field that he has f | ccq a camon, or tinguish those sections of the country, have stormed a lattery, or that by his influence and grer gone hand in hand, and owe their origin to ite candidate for the presidency in one section of the union or another, or with this or that party. He should be gifted with other and more imp trait qualities. He should possess a well-stored extended to all classes and conditions of the people, the children of eventhe poorest citi cry wind of political doctrine, and firmness and energy to enable him to withstand the arts and intrigues of designing men, who usually sur-round the fountain of honor and office. He the constitution and laws of their country, and should feel a firm reliance upon and considence in, the powers of his own mind, and be empable republic; the rights of persons and fo property are respected; the laws and the civil with its breign relations—in short, all the qualmagistraice are obeyed, and equal justice is addities and high attainments, we seek in the presiministered to all: breaches of the peace, stabbing deat, ought to be united in the individual to be shooting, assessination, and murder, are of rare selected for the office of Vice President. In looking round among the politicians and stateslive together in peace and quietness, in the full men of the present day, we can point to one who, in our opinion, possesses the requisite qualities enjoyment of civil and religious liberty, and their in a high degree—who has been long in public temporal happiness and prosperity is not surpass- life, who unites talents, information and experied, if equalled, by that of any other people in the ence, which eminently quality him for the office to which we salude—and that man is DANIE WEBSTER.

By a private letter from a member of the Legislature of the State of Maryland, received by a member of Congress, we are glad to learn that the Representatives of the people of that State have spoken, trumpet-tongued a very intelligible language on the subject of these modern reforms of the errors of their fathers. A resolution was lately introduced into the House of Delegates (whose members were chosen in October last) contemplating and alteration of the Constitution of the United States so us to illow an appeal from the decisions of the Supreme Court, in cases involving the constitutionality of State laws, and requiring the concurrence of two-thirds of the Sanate to declare a State law unconstitutional. After a short discussion, the question was decided by Yeas and Nays, fifty-nine members voting against the proposition, and two in favor of it. Thirty to one !- . Nat. Intell 29th ult.

Irring and Cooper .- In reply to an article which has been circulated in some of the papers, touching the compensation received by Irving and Cooper, for their respective works, we have been requested to say that Irving did not receive $3,800 for Columbus. Carvills did not pay copy-right of the smaller, and may have paid about $10,000, but this included the cost of printing 2000 copies of the work in three volumes.

Mrs Carry does not pay Cooper one dollar per copy for his novels, and noby knows whether the sale is 5 or 500 thousand. There is, therefore, not one word of truth in the article referred to .- N. Y. Com. Adv. 37th inst
