NEW-ORLEANS.

MONDAY (Morning,) MARCH 21, 1831.

☞ The adjourned meeting of the Tobacco dealers will take place at the Exchange on Tuesday Evening the 22d, instant, to receive the report of the committee.

The ward committees, appointed by the Monroe committee to receive contributions, met on Saturday Evening last, according to previous notice, at the Exchange, and made their respective reports. We are sorry to state that the benevolent views of the meeting have been but partially realized; the sums received amounting but to something over twelve hundred dollars. Several resolutions were offered and adopted, among others one ordering the printing of the names of such as have hitherto subscribed, and of those who may hereafter contribute. And another inviting the ladies of New Orleans to concur in the philantropic design. This appeal to the sympathies and patriotism of our fair countrywomen will but, we feel assured, be unheard.

MRS. CRAMER PLUMER'S BENEFIT.

With the delightful accents of this lady's voice, we are, this evening, to be gratified for the last time. Independently of the intrinsic worth of Figaro's marriage, the most amusing, if not the most philosophical work that Beaumarchais' genius has produced, Mozart's music, executed by so able a performer as Mrs. Plumer must prove highly attractive. Of the many opinions, on her deserts, we have not heard one, that was not of the most flattering nature. The simplicity of her manner, the richness of tones and tenderness of her soul-searching melodies, 'il cantar che nell' anima si sente,' have ensured unequivocal tokens of approbation. The same encouragement and the compliment reward will, we trust, be extended to her last exertions.

Miss Clara Fisher arrived last Saturday, on board of the Courtland.

MOBILE, March 15.

The mail failed again to-day east of Montgomery as usual. We have complained till we have grown hoarse; have borne till patience is exhausted, and now sit down in silent despair!

The Steam-Boat Mobile.—The loss of this fine Boat, together with the amount of property destroyed with her, has caused a rigid examination into the circumstances attending the origin of the fire. From the testimony of the Captain, the mates, the Carpenter and the Engineers, the facts appear to be that, a short time previous to the fire breaking out, a disagreeable smell and a slight appearance of smoke induced the captain to examine carefully the furnace, ash pan and deck, about the boilers; he then went into the hold and finding nothing to occasion either, on returning to the deck and finding the smoke to increase, he called the attention of his officers to the circumstance, and directed a thorough examination of the boat and cargo in the immediately adjacent to the furnace. The second Engineer examined the ash pan at the time the boat left Claiborne, and found it full of water; it was always well supplied, and a short time previous to the breaking out of the fire he stopped the engine, the steam was worked down, the ash pan was then full of water, and the fires were low.

The chief engineer is a man of much experience in steam machinery, and he testifies that he has never seen an engine put up with more care, and with stricter attention to the safety of a Boat. It was well secured about the ash pan and the furnace against fire— the fire bed was tight and sound, and the Engine supplied the ash pan abundantly with water. Both the Engineers profess entire ignorance of the cause of the fire, and from the testimony of the captain and mates, as well as the Engineers, it is difficult to conceive how it could have communicated from the furnace to the deck, and thence to the cotton in the hold.

From a careful examination of all the circumstances detailed in the protests, we are inclined to the opinion that, we are to look to other causes for the origin of the fire. It appears not improbable that it might have originated spontaneously. Instances of the spontaneous combustion of cotton have occurred; and it is known that great accumulations of hay, flax hemp, heaps of cotton and linen rags in paper mills, &c. that are not entirely dry, frequently take fire. Certain descriptions of earth, sprinkled over with linseed oil, take fire, and appear like hot burning coal, in an hour's time. The idea may not have occurred to others, and our impressions may not be sustained, but we have deemed it worth while to suggest them for consideration, as they present questions of the first importance to all concerned in transporting cotton by Steam Boats.

Steam Boat Erie.—On Saturday Morning last the Steam Boat Erie, capt. Bacon, on her passage from Tuscaloosa, below Cubbs Ferry, with a full cargo of cotton, took fire in the Boiler deck near the furnace. It was not discovered until it had penetrated the deck and communicated to the cotton above. About one hundred bales were thrown overboard, which were recovered, and the fire was extinguished with the loss only of three bales, destroyed, and two injured. All the passengers unite in awarding captain Bacon the greatest credit, for the coolness and presence of mind with which he managed his boat and issued his orders, at a moment when the least confusion, or hesitation in the application, of means, would have resulted in the inevitable destruction of the boat and cargo.—Ibid.

[From the N. Y. Cour. & Enq. of Feb. 26.

On reading the following in the proceedings of the French Chamber of Deputies, a short time since, it called to mind, the serious effects produced on the members of the honorable corporation of this city not long ago by a cause somewhat similar—In the midst of his speech, the account says "Mr. Dupin turned pale, & made signs to the bench of ministers without being able to speak, and at last it was perceived that he had fainted. The attendants raised him up and carried him out of the Hall. The sitting was suspended. It appeared that the fire in the calorifere was too large and that the vapour, rushing violently from its mouth which was placed just beneath the tribune (from which Mr. Dupin was speaking,) almost caused a-phixia.

We wonder that in such important bodies more precautions are not taken.

The right of suffrage.—Dr. Franklin was once a member, of a body, in which it was contended that a certain amount of property (50 dollars, we think) should be required to constitute a right to vote. The Doctor was opposed to it. "To-day" said he, "a man owns a jackass worth 50 dollars, and he is entitled to vote; but before the next election comes the jackass dies. The man, by the mean time has become more experienced—has knowledge of government and his acquaintance with mankind are more extensive—and he is therefore, better qualified to make a proper selection of rules: but the jackass is dead, and the man cannot vote. Now, Gentlemen," said he, addressing himself to the advocates of that measure, "pray inform me in whom is the right of suffrage; is it in the man, or in the jackass!—The New Casket.

BATON-ROUGE, March, 19.

During a thunderstorm, on Tuesday last, the electric fluid descended upon a house belonging to Madam Legendre, first striking the building at the apex of the gable end and continuing down the end wall, demolishing and shattering it to the width of eight or ten feet, and severing the large under timbers of the house. The concussion of the air in the building threw down a plank partition, burst off the planks on the other gable end, raised the floor in many places from the joists, and forced open the doors, and destroyed the sash in the windows; the whole presenting as complete a wreck as it well could, to remain standing. A man who was passing along the the street at the distance of more than twenty-feet, was prostrated but has recovered. The most remarkable part of the story remains to be told: Two ladies, two children, and two servants, were in the house at the time, and escaped unhurt!

ITALY.—Extract of a letter to the editor of this Gazette, dated Leghorn, Dec. 27th, 1830.—"Do not give yourselves too much uneasiness about the rumors you may see in the Paris papers respecting disturbances in Rome. Such reports were prevalent here a week ago, but have proved to be without foundation—a few persons have been arrested for speaking too freely respecting the fine opportunity the selection of the Pope would offer to separate the detested union of church and state. But in this portion of the world, such sentiments are only entertained by the enlightened portion of the community, who are an inconceivably small minority. You may also have seen in Galignani's paper, a report that all Frenchmen have been ordered to leave Tuscany at three days notice. There is not a shadow of foundation for this story. The late important events in Poland, connected with the declaration of France to the Austrian and Russian ministers, and the change of ministers in England, must work wonders for the good cause. Germany is as good as free—Belgium out of danger from abroad, and the inhabitants from the north of Italy may now look forward with some confidence to the day when their turn shall arrive to dictate terms to their tyrants. Naples, I think, will be quiet—the young King appears to have listened to wise counsellors, and is said to be giving strong evidence of a disposition to ameliorate the condition of his subjects—I can easily imagine how crowded your office must be, by the late news from Europe. Speculators must look sharp, or they will be woefully bitten; for I cannot conceive that the great despots can be so long in the cars as to despise the lesson read to them by the ghosts of Charles X., the King of Holland, and the Grand Duke Constantine.

The French papers detail some of the remarks made by the ex-ministers on their journey to their new place of confinement. M. de Polignac, it is said, observing to one of the superior officers of the National Guard, who accompanied him "General Lafayette has covered himself with glory, and I beg of you to convey to that worthy man the assurance of my deep gratitude. The above had popularity enough to save us, and he has done it."

From the Paris Paper "La Revolution" of January 8.

M. de Foy & co. rue Neuve Saint Martin No. 12, have in charge the establishment of the young ladies, hereafter described—

1st. a young lady 22 years old, marriage portion 240,000 francs, direct expectations 500,000 francs.

2d. A young lady 36 years old, marriage portion 8000 francs annual income, expectations from her father 180,000 francs.

3d. A young lady, 17 years old, an orphan, possessing 150,000 crowns.

4th. Two young ladies, aged 18 and 19 years, marriage portion 55,000 francs, expectations 60,000 francs.

M. de Foy & Co. introduce those applying into the family circle with all the precautions which delicacy demands. The correct, legal and delicate measures taken by them to secure the success of what they undertake, offer every security to persons desirous of contracting an advantageous alliance."

We translate the above, knowing it will meet the eye of some of the gentlemen-managers of the country Bachelors' Ball. We fear, however, we are hardly in time, as the Havre packet does not sail again before the 10th of next month.

The following address from the officers and non commissioned officers of the National Guard of Dartisheim, (Lower Rhine,) has been handed to General Lafayette:

General: It is with less surprise than indignation that the National Guards have learned the intrigues, in consequence of which you have ceased to command us. Courtiers, eager to govern, could not, in truth, see at our head the representative of every noble and disinterested sentiment. It is then the National Guards in all parts, which is attacked, in the person of its chief,—who if his great mind is to leave these low acts of a handful of intriguers, ought at least to know, that far and near, at our corner of France as well as at Paris—as well as in the new world—he will to all, and forever, be an object of worship and veneration. Vive Lafayette!

COMMERCIAL.

From Wales' Commercial Report, (Sunday, March 19.)

GENERAL REMARKS—The weather during the week has been variable; warm, cool, disagreeably wet, and unfavorable for out-door business. Our market, generally speaking, is well supplied with foreign merchandize and domestic produce required here, and a fair business may be done; such commerce is more or less cramped for the want of shipping. We find many intelligent merchants of the opinion, that an immediate addition of fifty square rigged vessels averaging three hundred tons each, would not be sufficient to receive the produce now on hand and waiting for shipment. The Mississippi has risen, since our last, nine inches, and was yesterday noon twenty-one inches below ordinary high water mark, and is expected to continue rising for some time.

COTTON.—Arrived this week, from Tennessee and North Alabama 7633 bales, Mississippi and Louisiana 7278, across lake Pontchartrain 695, Pensacola 70, Arkansas 63—together 15,735 bales. Cleared in the same time, to Liverpool 5002, Havre 1403, Marseilles 1430, Hamburg 480, Bremen 25, New-York 4556, Portsmouth 822, Providence 615, Philadelphia 262, Boston 178, Baltimore 4—in all 11,657, making an increase in stock of 4079, and now lying on hand, including all on ship-board not cleared yesterday morning, 80,152 bales. The sales of the week have been more extensive than for the same time during the season, and we estimated at full sixteen thousand bales of Louisiana and Mississippi, of all descriptions, at our last quotations, so as to average near 8 1-16 a 8 1-8 cents. Using the Liverpool classification, we quote for this description as before, viz,

Ordinary	7 a 7¼	good demand
Middling	7½ a 8
Fair	8¼ a 8½
Good Fair	8¾ a 9
Good and fine	9¼ a 10

As observed in our last, "the stock of Tennessee and Alabama still continue to increase." The sales of the week have been small and unimportant, and the principal operations were confined to shipping on owner's account. There is a respectable amount in store, limited at over the value that purchasers are willing to give, which causes this description to be neglected."

SUGAR, (Louisiana) of ordinary merchantable quality, is dull on the plantation and in the city, at five cents per lb, very choice occasionally commands more. Cleared this week, for Philadelphia 719 hhds., New-York 285, Charleston 273, Baltimore 250, Newburyport 6—in all 1538 hhds. For MOLASSES, we have been unable to hear of any heavy transaction, and quote as before, at fourteen cents asked, for that near the city. Planters at a considerable distance up the river are often compelled to sell lower, in order to meet the expenses of shipping towed by steamboats, when desirous to make a crop sale. Cleared, for Charleston 352 hhds. and 380 bbls., Savannah 84 hhds. and 75 bbls., New-York 23 hhds., Charleston 5 hhds. and 1 bbl., Baltimore 21 hhds, Newburyport 95 bbls., Boston 13 do., New-Bedford 10 do.—together 166 hhds. and 595 bbls. Cleared, coastwise, since 30th Sept. Mobile, Pensacola, &c. excepted, viz:

TOBACCO.—The high price of Freights depresses this article very much, and keeps many regular and old purchasers from adventuring at the asking rates. We have, in our country, heard of over one hundred hhds. crossed and seconds, changing owners at two and three cents, which, under existing circumstances is considered a good sale. Arrived this week, 811 hhds. Cleared, for Bremen 150 hhds., New York 123, New Bedford 70, Havana 14, Philadelphia 11 together 372 hhds.

FLOUR.—To use our old phrase, "arrives freely" and has met a fair demand. The ruling price of the week was at five dollars per barrel. Yesterday we found a few holders willing to sell at $4 87½, at which we quote. What it may be worth a week hence is entirely uncertain. Heavy arrivals and forced sales would be favorable to the purchaser, if the present value, which seems adequate.

BRANDY & WINE, from France of direct importation and good quality is in good supply—of the new crop we have no sales.

FREIGHTS.—Arrived this week, 4 ships, 11 barges, 7 scows, 2 schooners—together 24 sail. Cleared, 11 ships, 13 barges, 1 schooner, having passport yesterday not cleared, 32 ships, 58 barges, 15 schooners and 7 steamers; all of which have taken upward rates, engaged or loading. Our last rates were generally retained and more have since been given, and drive after cotton apparently accordingly.
