MEDICAL.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA.

Madame Deron, formerly a pupil and professor of the celebrated Royale de St. Denis," and graduated of the University of Paris, has endeavored to profit by the experience which she has acquired in the United States, to place her institution in the first rank of educational establishments in America.

Madame Deron, exclusively devoted to her pupils, applies herself not only to the cultivation of the mind, but also to the formation of the heart. She strongly desires that the young ladies confided to her care may be remarked for all those valuable qualities which constitute a really good education, such as the spirit of order and discretion, amiability of temper and solidity of judgment, nobleness of manners and a sympathetic disposition, and finally a grace and reserved elegance of manners. In order to cast in these results, Madame Deron has always employed as assistants lady teachers of well tried talent, constant use of emulation, and especially rewards the application and regularity in study. She is seconded by her daughter, Mademoiselle Deron, who has herself has always fulfilled the career of instructress: these two ladies watch with the greatest care over the daily progress of the pupils.

The locality of the institution well known and approved in the City of Orleans, as one of the most suitable and salubrious in the city, is perfectly well arranged; the class and study rooms and dormitories are spacious and airy, looking over several gardens, and there are besides a handsome yard and a terrace sheltered from the sun and intended for the recreation of the pupils.

The general instruction is given both in French and English; it embraces all the branches which constitute a finished education for young ladies. The English language is the object of special care, the pupils being required to speak in their communications with each other and with their professors, to speak the English language exclusively.

Mr. Otto will be the teacher attached to the Academy from its foundation, devotes a great part of his time to impart to the pupils of the higher classes a thorough knowledge of the English language and literature, the other classes are instructed in well qualified American governesses.

Madame Deron has reserved to herself the direction of the French classes. She has besides secured the assistance of an excellent Professor of the higher sciences, Monsieur H. Deron who devotes with Monsieur H. Deron and Mademoiselle Deron, the care of the Physical education of the pupils.

The Spanish language forms part of the system of study.

With respect to religious instructions M. Fabre Thodore, whose zeal so signally appreciated, continues to prepare the pupils for their first Communion in the chapel of the institution.

MUSIC:

The study of Music is the object of particular care. Madame Lavillebeuve, an artist of the highest order is attached to the institution as Professor of the Piano and Harp. A course of Vocal Music by one of the best Professors of the city.

As a means of emulation the institution has adopted monthly, yearly examinations at which pupils are invited to be present.

A Professor of Dancing is attached to the establishment.

Young Ladies' Academy.

Mme. TARNT has removed her pupils from Dauphine street, between Royal and Bourbon to No. 96, the house heretofore occupied by Mme. Gravier, and is ready for the reception of pupils, both day and day scholars. There is a very large yard, planted there with a garden for the young ladies to amuse themselves in. The apartments are very airy and healthy. There is every advantage and unincumbered attention to parents, as to moral and intellectual cultivation of the minds and their manners. Mme. Tarnt and Mlle. Tarnt are employed. Every branch of a solid and refined education, is taught in both languages; also, accomplishments such as Drawing, Painting, Embroidery, &c.

Professor Auchmuty, one of the principals of the English High School, has charge of the higher English classes and professor Gilbert of the Mathematical branches.

Mr. Gaulard has been engaged as a Teacher of Vocal Music.

For terms, apply at the institution. Parents are permitted to visit the institution on Sundays.
