

In addition to the account which we published some days ago concerning the loss of the whaling brig Master, of New Bedford, we inform our readers that the brig Agreica, captain Cottle, arrived last evening from Boston, discovered on the 14th ult. the wreck of the Master... John Simmons and Joseph Sanford, seamen, who had remained below during the squall, and had been consequently consigned to dust.

We have not been able to obtain an account of the deliberations of yesterday evening's meeting of the stockholders of the cotton press to be established in the lower part of the city, but have been informed, indirectly, that a tract of ground situated below the property of Madam Villarosa, has been selected for the place of erection of said cotton press.

The Ward Committee appointed to collect subscriptions for the sufferers at Fayetteville met last evening and reported collections to the amount of $3171.95 cts. The members of committees who did not attend the meeting, are requested to hand to the Mayor the amounts which they may have received, as it is intended to forward the amount collected without delay.

FAYETTEVILLE.—The sum of $1000 has been collected in the 1st ward of New-Orleans, for the relief of the sufferers at Fayetteville. The citizens of Norfolk have subscribed $2500, for that object. To this sum, two of the Masonic Lodges of that borough have added fifty dollars each. The committee appointed by the citizens of Boston, advanced the sum of two thousand dollars on the amount they expected to collect. At Petersburg (Va.) seven hundred dollars have been collected. At Philadelphia, Washington, Charleston and almost every city in the Union, large sums of money have been subscribed or already collected.

TROUBLES EXPECTED.—The Court Journal has the following paragraph: "Other papers speak of the quarrel alluded to as of an alarming character, but furnish no further particulars."

We have to state with regret, that we have learned from a source which we cannot question, that a serious difference has taken place in India between Lord Dalhousie, Governor-General, and Lord Dalhousie, Captain-General of the Forces. Such was its extent, that the Governor-General deemed it his duty to place Lord Dalhousie under arrest. The important results of this proceeding scarcely admit of calculation; as the European officers have generally sided with the Commander-in-Chief, and refused to attend Lord Dalhousie's parties. The moral influence of such a conduct of authorities, upon India at large, may be viewed as a most important nature; and we anxiously await further intelligence on this painful subject.

We may expect to hear in consequence of this petty quarrel provoked no doubt by the haughty and intractable disposition of the ex-governor of Canada, that a rebellion had broken out in India; and that Lord Dalhousie, at the head of the natives, has proclaimed the independence of that country. Such an event might prove salutary warning to the English government, against rewarding instead of punishing the governors of their transatlantic possessions; whenever their subjects complain of despotism or oppression.

The Elkton Press (Pennsylvania) of the 11th ult. gives an unfavorable account of the state of the crops in that vicinity. Owing to the absence of rain, not enough having fallen within the last six weeks to moisten the ground an inch beneath the surface, it is supposed that the average crop of wheat, oats and grass will not equal one half the usual quantity.

The United States Telegraph publishes a list of sixty-six steam boats built at Pittsburgh in the year 1830, and finished with their entire outfit at that port. There are several others built at Marietta, Cincinnati, and elsewhere, which received their engines at Pittsburgh.

It is announced at Charleston, S. C. that the friends of Cotton and State Rights, to read at their celebration of the 4th July, the Farewell Address of Washington.

The Newport Mercury of the 11th June, says: "This number completes seventy three years since the Newport Mercury was first published in this town (June 12, 1758), by James Franklin, brother of Dr. Benjamin Franklin."

It is calculated by a Mr. Jacob that the thousands bankruptcies have been declared in France since the revolution in July.

ENGLAND.

PORTSMOUTH, May 14. The sanguine hopes we indulged in last week, of his Majesty's honouring this port with a visit on the 7th June, will not be realised. His Majesty has caused it to be commanded that he has abdicated that intention, and it is reported for the same reason (one deeply deplored by his loyal subjects) which impeded his Majesty to decline his visit to the present in the Lord Mayor and the good citizens of London—viz, his state of health. Considering his Majesty's affection for the sea, and the encouragement for so many months of our sailor King from that element in which he so much delights, a visit of his Majesty to his fleet would greatly (we think) contribute to restore him to strength and health. We earnestly hope his Majesty's medical advisers will recommend the quarter deck as one of the means to this anxiously wished for end. It is surmised that the King will visit the fleet on his return from the summer's cruise.

In Edinburgh, and Glasgow, as well as in a large number of the principal towns of Scotland, the strongest manifestations of joy were made by the people in favor of Reform. Processions, marches, with all the inspiring which usually characterize the warm and generous burst of Scottish feeling were conspicuous. The feeling is almost universal in favor of Reform—the King and his Ministry are hated in terms loud and strong—the people with them, they must be triumphant.

It is stated in the Court Journal that the Speaker of the House of Commons is about to retire from his distinguished station. Mr. Latimer, the Member for Staffordshire, is spoken of as likely to be his successor.

The experimental squadron as it is termed, which is about to depart from Portsmouth, under the command of Vice Admiral Sir Edward Codrington, is the first naval armament of similar magnitude which has left England since the occasion that preceded the attack made on Algiers by Lord Viscount Exmouth. The following is a list of the ships already commissioned: Caladonia, 120 Vice Admiral Sir Edward Codrington, Captain Curzon; Prince Regent, 120 Rear Admiral Parker, Capt. Dundas; and Britannia, 120, expected daily from the Mediterranean.

In Ireland, the disorders seem to be far from being quelled. The Limerick Chronicle complains that its columns are burdened with a mass of outrages from the county of Clare. "No content with the murder of citizens and policemen, the insurgents have turned their arms against the King's forces. The host of conspirators now arrayed in Clare have set at defiance every obligation of law or religion."

According to the London Times of 16th May, France continued tranquil; the accounts which the French government received from the several European powers are of an entirely pacific character. The great review of the National Guard, which had been postponed for a week, would, it is said, certainly have taken place on Sunday the 14th May; if not for Louis Philippe will proceed on his continent, but rapid through various parts of France. There had been a slight disturbance in Paris previously in the Rue Vendome, arising from the dispute about the July decorations. Some of the papers intimate that the King had lost popularity with the actors in the revolution by the course he had taken in distributing these honors as marks of distinction conferred by royalty. Negotiations, it was said, were rapidly carrying on in relation to the Pope, but of what nature it is not known. The funds, perhaps the most important of the confidence reposed in the government, were high.

Promotions to the Peerage.—The following announcements are from a provincial paper. We find no confirmation of it in the latest London Journals. Earl Fitzwilliam will, it is said, be created Marquis of Rockingham, and the Marquis of Cleveland elevated to a Dukedom and Lord Selkirk, Lord Clonmurry, Sir Francis Barden, Mr. Coke, of Norfolk, and Lord Kim will, called to the Upper House, as Peers of the United Kingdom.

The following announcement is official. Whitehall May 12.—The King has been pleased to direct letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal, granting the privileges of Baron, Viscount, and Earl of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, unto George Fitz Clarence, Esq. Colonel in the army, and Fitz heirs male of his body lawfully begotten, by the titles, names, and titles of Baron Fitz Clarence, Viscount Fitz Clarence, and Earl of Munster. Sir Walter Scott.—We fear that the accounts we have had of the illness of this illustrious man are by no means founded. The Court Journal of the last day says, "It is with infinite concern that we announce, in contradiction to the newspaper statements, that this distinguished writer and excellent man still languishes in a very precarious state. He had an attack of decided apoplexy to-day. Mr. Lockhart tells us for Abbotsford at the beginning of the week, immediately on the receipt of a letter from his lady, containing the alarming intelligence of her illustrious parent's illness. The accounts have been rather more favorable within these few days. Major Scott, we believe, is still in town."

Trade in Holland.—The commercial letters from Amsterdam announce that a new tariff is under consideration, which promises much benefit to the trade and manufactures of this country. It is with infinite concern that we announce, in contradiction to the newspaper statements, that this distinguished writer and excellent man still languishes in a very precarious state. He had an attack of decided apoplexy to-day. Mr. Lockhart tells us for Abbotsford at the beginning of the week, immediately on the receipt of a letter from his lady, containing the alarming intelligence of her illustrious parent's illness. The accounts have been rather more favorable within these few days. Major Scott, we believe, is still in town.

Miguel has exhibited his utter folly and imbecility, as was necessarily expected. An English suspicion appeared of the Tagus on the 26th. On the day preceding, the English Consul (who received despatches by a steamer, upon which he acted immediately; and depending on the help of his government, that the Judge Conservator at Oporto, Lameira and Sa, should be arrested, and the case decided by the resident British agent, and the recognition of the British flag, and the publication of the Lisbon Gazette; who detained the St. Helena Packet, and the vessel should be dismissed, and other reprimands; that several soldiers should be punished and their officers dismissed for the same cause; and that compensation should be made for various exactions at the custom house, and also to a large amount in the nature of vindictive damages for unlawful arrests and detentions. The Consul was instructed that the demands admitted of no modification or negotiation. All these demands, being as they must have been to the arrogant but helpless tyrant, were speedily complied with; and announcements of the dismissal of the officers complained of appeared in his own official gazette on the 4th of May. He had been allowed exactly ten days for consideration. The Morning Herald says:—

"At the first summons his dastard spirit sunk within him; all the efforts of Count Bastos, a Minister of his guilty pleasures, and the empty parade of a few additional troops upon the Castle of Lisbon, could not raise a sure him, and before the expiration of the allotted time, Don Miguel surrendered at discretion. This is a great triumph, and the English interest in Portugal, but unfortunately, nothing for the general cause of humanity and liberty. Had the insurgent been more strongly advised to resist, his obstinacy and his usurpation might have met with a common punishment; but, as the matter now stands, there is too much reason to fear that his cowardly tampering will screen him a little time to go from a well-merited retribution, and subject Portugal still to his domination. Something may, however, be expected from the American and French squadrons, which have still their accounts to settle with him, and which are hovering about the mouth of the Tagus. As we respect to ourselves, the victory can excite no exultation, for there is no longer any prospect of a forward; but it is necessarily provoked feelings of surprise, indignation, and disgust, that an abominable ruler, which is shaken thus easily should be suffered by the tortuous politics of any Administration to acquire such a consistency as that of Don Miguel has done."

It would also appear that Miguel had complied with the demands of the French Government. The Messenger des Chambres, of the 10th says:—

The Finistere Journal of Brest, contains the following article:—"We learn from a source which may be deemed authentic, that Don Miguel has agreed to give France the satisfaction and indemnities she requires. This will sufficiently explain the suspension of the levy of marines ordered by the Minister of the Navy Department, and prove to that Government that France shall be respected and obeyed every time she assumes an attitude worthy of herself."

FRANCE. It would also appear that Miguel had complied with the demands of the French Government. The Messenger des Chambres, of the 10th says:—

The Finistere Journal of Brest, contains the following article:—"We learn from a source which may be deemed authentic, that Don Miguel has agreed to give France the satisfaction and indemnities she requires. This will sufficiently explain the suspension of the levy of marines ordered by the Minister of the Navy Department, and prove to that Government that France shall be respected and obeyed every time she assumes an attitude worthy of herself."

SWITZERLAND. Accounts from Switzerland, received at London on the 16th May, mention that a great struggle for influence has taken place in the Diet, between the French and Austrian Diplomats at Lucerne. The predominant influence was at first formally given to Austria, and the Congress of Vienna; France considering the Bourbon restoration, that she could always command a sufficient ascendancy through the means of the Swiss military contingent which she retained in her pay. This influence being since the late revolution destroyed by the discharge of the Swiss troops from the pay of France, a diplomatic effort was lately made to restore it, and the last efforts say with some effect. At all events Switzerland is determined to put herself in a condition to maintain her important neutrality; and the following is the last military arrangement made by the Government at Lucerne:—

The armistice is decreed and ordained by the Swiss Diet as follows:— 1st. Art. put into activity the grand staff of the Federal Army; of the engineers; artillery, the staff of the divisional corps; and left the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 31st, 32nd, 33rd, 34th, 35th, 36th, 37th, 38th, 39th, 40th, 41st, 42nd, 43rd, 44th, 45th, 46th, 47th, 48th, 49th, 50th, 51st, 52nd, 53rd, 54th, 55th, 56th, 57th, 58th, 59th, 60th, 61st, 62nd, 63rd, 64th, 65th, 66th, 67th, 68th, 69th, 70th, 71st, 72nd, 73rd, 74th, 75th, 76th, 77th, 78th, 79th, 80th, 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th, 86th, 87th, 88th, 89th, 90th, 91st, 92nd, 93rd, 94th, 95th, 96th, 97th, 98th, 99th, 100th.

Dr. James Eschscholtz, author of the Medical Companion, or Family Physician, announces that his intention to move from the city of Washington to New Orleans, commencing on the 1st of July, will, from this period, be directed to the latter place.

Dr. Eschscholtz, of his professional brethren, who have the welfare of their fellow citizens at heart, to communicate frankly to him such suggestions as may be an improvement to the Medical Companion, and which may have come under their knowledge, not only in regard to the management of diseases, but also in relation to the virtues of our medicinal plants. The principal object he has in view of locating himself at New-Orleans, is to render his work more acceptable to the public, by ascertaining whether the diseases of that part of the country vary much from the treatment of those already described, incident to the Southern and Middle States. Although he has been hitherto required, in a pecuniary point of view for his devotion to the public good, yet he anticipates, if his life be preserved, to publish the early part of next year, an edition of the Medical Companion, with the last improvements that will ever be made by him and which there is no doubt will be acknowledged by every reader to surpass, very far, any of the former editions, which he has hitherto published. This, and such other additions as may hereafter follow, will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers, beyond the reach of party-makers, printers, book binders, and itinerant agents; and by his judicious arrangement, it is to be hoped he may at least participate in the emoluments arising from the sale of the work. Instead of realizing a fortune, as he ought to have done from the sale, and as he had every reason to expect from the popularity of the Medical Companion, his only reward, for loss of time, expense of labor, and the sacrifice of a heart to the service of his fellow citizens, is a meagre remuneration for his services, which will be placed in the hands of respectable book-sellers