NEW ORLEANS,
SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 21, 1832.

☞ The Members of the Judiciary Committee have agreed to meet again on the 22nd inst. at 10 o'clock in the morning, at the chambers of the undersigned.

JAMES WORKMAN,
Chairman of the said Committee.

The investigation of Mr. Dixon's claim, to a seat in the Legislature, came on yesterday, we understand, before the committee of elections. After hearing the counsels of Messrs. Dixon and Marigny, certain necessary testimonies not appearing in evidence, the committee adjourned until this day at twelve o'clock, when the subject will be resumed, and fully discussed, so as to allow a report to be laid before the House on next Monday.

The 22nd of February.—We are fast approaching the anniversary of our Washington's birth-day. A fact which many may not be aware of is, that this will complete the hundredth year, since the father of our freedom was brought into existence. A secular anniversary of the nativity of the sage of the revolution should be hailed with more than common veneration and notice.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 2.—We understand that the report of the destruction of the cargo of the steamer Atlantic, at Trinity was incorrect, her cargo not having been landed at Trinity, but 6 miles below that place.

Daring Murder.—On the night of Friday, the 9th inst. a man by the name Johnson, in the town of old Franklin, Howard county, was shot while asleep in bed with his wife and child. In the dead hour of the night his wife was awakened and found her husband struggling in the agonies of death, and the bed clothes on fire! The shot was discharged through a window of the room in which they slept. Much excitement prevailed in the town and vicinity, but we have not heard that any clue has yet been found by which to trace the murderer. The wife and child were not injured.—St. Louis Times.

TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 10.

On the 5th instant a natural phenomenon, such as few people remember, and the effects of which have been most destructive, filled with terror the inhabitants of this country, who are, at the same time, suffering under all kinds of evils. After an uncommon sultry night, threatening clouds rose about 6 in the morning, in the horrison to the South West, and a noise between thunder and tempest, and yet not to be compared with either, increased every moment, and the inhabitants of the capital, roused from their sleep, awaited with anxious expectation the issue of this threatening phenomenon. Their uncertainty was not of long duration—lumps of ice, as large as a man's foot, falling, first singly, and then like a thick shower of stones, which destroyed every thing that they came in contact with. The oldest persons do not remember ever to have seen such hail-stones. Some were picked up in half an hour afterwards, which weighed above a pound.

The dreadful storm passed over Constantinople and along the Bosphorus, over Therapia, Bujukdere, and Belgrade, and the fairest, nay, the only hope of this beautiful and fertile tract, the vintage, just commenced, was destroyed in a day. Animals of all kinds, and even some persons, are said to have been killed; an innumerable quantity are wounded, and the damage done to the houses is incalculable. Besides that, scarcely a window has escaped in all the country. The force of the falling masses of ice was so great that they broke to atoms all the tiles on the roofs, and shattered like musket-balls planks half an inch thick. Since that day the rain has not ceased to pour down in torrents, and, from the slight way in which the houses are built, almost wholly consisting of windows, and with very flat roofs that have nothing to keep off the wet besides tiles, innumerable families are not much more comfortable than in bivouac.

JEWISH TREATMENT OF CHOLERA.

The following is the mode of treatment adopted by the Jews of Wiesniz in case of cholera; out of 240 individuals in that town attacked by the disease, every one of them was saved by this mode, except two, who refused to submit to the plan proposed. The plan is communicated in a letter published in the Lancet of Saturday, and is this:—

"The several points of the remedy are as follows:—Take a point of strong spirits of wine, and half a pint of good white wine vinegar, add to them one ounce of powdered camphor, one ounce of flour of mustard, a quarter of an ounce of ground pepper, and a tea spoonful of bruised garlic, and, lastly, half an ounce of powdered cantharides: mix well in a bottle, and expose for twelve hours to the sun, or in a warm place, frequently shaking it. As soon as a person is attacked, let him instantly be put to bed under warm coverlids, and let his hands and feet be rubbed powerfully and uninterruptedly, with the liniment made warm. During this operation, he must take a glass of strong drink, composed of two parts of camomile flowers, and one part of balm mint. Persevere in this course, and at the end of fifteen minutes at the utmost (the patient's head and body being kept well covered beneath the bed-clothes) he will break out into a profuse perspiration, and must be kept in this state between two and three hours, but on no account be allowed to fall asleep. After this, remove the extra covering from the bed, and he will fall into a slumber, which will last six or eight hours, and be accompanied by a gentle perspiration; when he awakes, he will find himself weak, but the disorder will have entirely left him, and he will require nothing further than rest and moderate diet to restore him to perfect health. Especial care must be taken, after the operation of rubbing, that the patient does not so much as lift a finger above the bedclothes, for the slightest chill whilst the perspiration is upon him would be instant death. When there is cramp in the stomach, apply dry bags of bran and ashes very hot to the pit of the stomach, and then apply a bladder of hot water to the region of the naval. The great point is to produce a strong perspiration, and restore the circulation of the blood to the surface of the body, from which part the blood is drawn at the commencement of the attack, and thrown with frightful violence on its inward parts."

ALARMING.—The Small Pox at present prevails in Philadelphia. We conversed with one of our most respectable physicians on Saturday and he informs us, that several cases are already embraced within his practice. Those who have not been innoculated should beware. We know that it is the fashion with the daily prints, not to notice the appearance of this dreadful disease but we think this a culpable neglect on their part, and have, therefore, written this paragraph for the benefit of our country at least. Philadelphians are already aware of the fact of the disease being in the city.

Spunk and Peril.—There is a story, and which I believe is a fact, of two boys going to a jackdaw's nest from a hole under the belfry window in the tower of All Saint's Church, Derby. As it was impossible to reach it standing within the building and equally impossible to ascend to that height from without, they resolved to put a plank through the window; and while the heavier boy secured its balance by sitting on the end within, the lighter boy was to fix himself on the opposite end, and from that perilous situation to reach the object of their desire. So far the scheme answered. The little fellow took the nest, and, finding in it five fledged young birds, announced the news to his companion. 'Five, are there? replied he; 'then I'll have three.' 'Nay, exclaimed the other indignantly, 'I run all the danger, and I'll have the three.' 'You shall not,' still maintained the boy in the inside; 'you shall not. Promise me three, or I'll drop you!' 'Drop me, if you please,' replied the little hero; 'but I'll promise you no more than two;' upon which his companion slipped off the plank. Up tilted the end, and down went the boy, upwards of a hundred feet to the ground.—The little fellow, at the moment of his fall, was holding his grip by their legs, three in one hand, and two in the other; and they finding themselves descending fluttered but their pinions instinctively. The boy, too, laid on a stout carter's frock, secured round the nest, which, filling with air from beneath, bore him up like a balloon, and he descended smoothly to the ground; when, looking up, he exclaimed to his companion, 'Now you shall have three;' and with a will, sound in every limb, to the astonishment of the inhabitants, who, with inconceivable horror, had witnessed his descent.

Safety of Steam Engines.—The Society d'Encouragement of Paris have decided upon granting two premiums:—"One to him, who shall perfect and complete the means of safety, which have hitherto been employed or proposed, against explosions of steam engines and other boilers, or point out better ones; the other, to him, who shall invent a form, and a construction of the boiler, which will prevent or annul all danger from explosion."

Each of these premiums shall be two thousand francs, and decreed to any Frenchman, or foreigner, who shall be deemed most worthy of it.

The method proposed must have been tested by at least six months trial in a steam engine of high pressure, of ten horse power or larger, or on a boiler of equal force. The efficacy of the proposed improvement must be duly authenticated, and the inventor must renounce any intention of securing patent privileges. The memoirs, designs, or models, reports or certificates must be sent before the 1st of July, 1832.

Am. des Mines.

Thomas Scott and two other soldiers of Fort Independence, have been brought before the Police Court this week, upon the complaint of lieut. Vinton, for examination relative to the death of a soldier, found on Monday drowned, under or near the keel of the barge which they carried off from the Fort on Christmas night. There were some circumstances which led to the suspicion that the deceased had been beaten before he was drowned, and the Colonel commandant directed that the parties concerned should be carried before the civil authorities for trial. No sufficient evidence has yet been found to settle the question, whether the death was occasioned by accident or foul play. The deserters had possessed themselves in some way during the night of four kegs of rum, and were too beastly drunk to get it from South Boston beach to the Fort, which they were endeavoring to do when the man was drowned which was a little before daylight on Monday morning.—Jour. of Com.

Antiquities.—A cave of great natural curiosity has been recently discovered near Clonalee in this county. It appears from that celebrated historian, Dr. Keating, that it was known in the second century, upwards of 1600 years ago.—The modern discovery was made a few weeks since, by a shepherd, who kept his flocks adjoining the demesne of Lieut. Gen. Dunne, at Brittas. There is a stair of about twenty steps descent, which leads to a spacious hall, and other apartments, not inferior in point of magnitude and curiosity, to those of Dunmore in the county of Kilkenny. In one of the apartments is a large stone table, on which are several statues. In the immediate neighborhood are many things worthy the notice of some of our antiquarians. A few weeks ago, a flag was discovered by a man named Lalor, who, from motives of curiosity, moved it, and dug six feet beneath, where he found the skeleton of a man of enormous size, perhaps the largest ever found in the kingdom. We are not surprised to hear of the discovery of such a phenomenon, for this part of the country was the scene of many extraordinary engagements between the O'Mores, ancient proprietors of Leix, and the other petty monarchs who swayed the sceptres of royalty in the country.—Leinster Express.

Proclamation Respecting the Plague by the Lord Mayor of London.—The following curious proclamation was issued in the latter part of the year 1574, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth:—"By the Maior—For avoyding of the increase and spreading of the plague wythin this Cytie, so much as by good polycie it lyeth in us to doe: We the Lord Maior and Aldermen of this, the Queene's Maiesties cytie of London, doe straightly charge and commaunde in the Quaene our Soueraigne Ladyes behalf, all persons of what estate, decree, or condition soeuer they be, wythin thys said cytie of London or the suburbes of the same, that none of any house so infected wythin the sayd cytie of London or the suburbes of the same, wythin one moneth last past, or which shall hereafter be infected, doe come abroad into any streate, market, shoppe, or open place of resort, wythin thys cytie, or the lybertyes or suburbes of the same, at any tyme hereafter, vntyll the plague be ceased in the same house, by the space of xx dayes at the least, but that euery of them shall haue and beare in hys or their hand or handes openly one white rodde of the length of two foole, wythout hyding or carying the same close from open sight, vpon payne of forfaiture and losse of xl shyllyngs, and eury person not hauing wherwyth to satisfye and pay the same summe of xl shillyngs, to haue imprisonment by the space of xx dayes in ye cage."—The proclamation then proceeds to direct that the clerk, or sexton, of every parish shall, with all dispatch, fix upon the door of every house infected with the plague, a paper, wherein shall be written these words:—"LORD HAUE MERCY VPON VS;" and states, that if the paper is pulled down before the plague shall have ceased in the infected house a heavy penalty will be inflicted on the offenders.

ELISABETH NEFFER, vs. HENRY COMB, JR. HER HUSBAND.

I HEREBY CERTIFY, that on the 7th instant a judgment was entered in this court in the suit of Elizabeth Nefzer, vs. Henry Comb, Junior husband, in the words and figures following, to wit:—In this case the plaintiff has sued the defendant, her husband, for a separation of property, and claims from him the sum of two thousand eight hundred dollars, brought by her in marriage, as appears by the marriage contract, and the court being satisfied from the testimony and documents in the file, that her claim is well founded, and that she has fully evidenced the allegations in her petition contained, order, ad judge and decree, that judgment of separation of property be entered in her favor and against the defendant, and that she recover from him the sum of two thousand eight hundred dollars, the same to be paid to her by privilege and preference over any other creditor, out of the property now in possession of the defendant, and that the said defendant do first retrocede to her all the property which she brought to him in marriage, or such part thereof as may now be in his possession at the prices stipulated in the marriage contract, in part satisfaction of her claim, and that she have a privilege, as above mentioned, on any other property of the defendant for the balance. The costs of suit to be paid by said defendant.

ROBBERY—The undersigned begs leave to state his case to the public. Leaving New York in company with two Yorkshire men, brothers, William and John Smith, labourers, ages between thirty and thirty-five. William about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, stout, well made man, thin face, fair and fresh complexion. John about 5 feet 5 or 6 inches high, thin face, brown hair and darkish complexion, wore English made clothes of the labouring class. We hired a room in Faubourg Marigny, lived together in the most confidential terms; worked at the lower cotton press for nearly three weeks. On Monday morning left home very early in company with another man and went to work; the aforesaid men remained at home under pretence of business, knowing that I received some money on Saturday night as also that I had some in my trunk, the key of which I left in the room through implicit confidence; nevertheless they rifled the trunk of its hard earned contents—nine sovereigns, forty-two dollars in silver and fifteen in paper, and left me destitute of a dollar. I believe they went up the river or to Mexico.

Those who pity the distressed will please give this a place in their columns, being the only way left to bring the guilty to punishment, and restore to the injured.
