THE BOND OF COMMUNICATED GUILT.

That a bond of communicated guilt has united the members of the Republican party and those of the Democratic party who have become their allies, has been patent to all who have, since the end of the war, observed the course of public affairs. Events could not be otherwise accounted for than by attributing them to the existence of a union, which bound together for good or evil all those who were connected with them nearly or remotely. In this we have but repeated the history of former times. Thucydides, in his history of the Peloponnesian war, narrates the events of a period during that long contest which find a parallel in the history of the United States since 1865. The following extracts from this history, which we take from Smith's translation, might be almost as appropriately written of our own times (if we except the murders) as of the Corcyreans and Athenians. We begin with the 5th year of the war. Says Thucydides:

Some perished merely through private enmity; some for the sums they had lent, by the hands of the borrowers. Every kind of death was here exhibited. Every dreadful act usual in a sedition, and more than usual, was perpetrated now. For fathers slew their children; some were dragged from altars; and some were butchered at them. And a number of persons immured in the temple of Bacchus were starved to death. So cruel was the progress of this sedition, and so excessively cruel did it appear, because the first of so black a nature that ever happened. But afterwards the contagion spread, one may say, through the whole extent of Greece, when factions raged in every city, the popular demagogues contending for the Athenians, the aspiring few for the Lacedæmonians. In peace, it is true, they were void of all pretext, of all opportunity, to invite these rivals. But now, amidst declared hostilities, and the quest of alliance to afflict their enemies, and add an increase of strength to themselves, opportunities were easily found by such as were fond of innovations to introduce the side they favored. The consequence of this was sedition in cities, with all its numerous and tragical incidents. Such were now, and such things ever will be, so long as human nature continues the same; but under greater or less aggravations and diversified in circumstances, according to the several vicissitudes of conjunctures, which shall happen to occur. In the seasons of peace and affluence, communities as well as individuals have their tempers under better regulation, because not liable to that violence which flows from necessity. But war, which snatcheth from them their daily subsistence, is the teacher of violence, and assimilates the passions of men to their present condition.

By these means were cities harassed with seditions. And those to whose fate the later commotions fell, through inquiry what had happened in such instances before, grew enormously ambitious to suppress the machination of others, both in policy of attempts and extravagance of revenge. Even words lost now their former significance, since to palliate actions they were quite distorted. For truly, what before was brutal courage, began to be esteemed that fortitude, which becomes a human and sociable creature; prudent consideration, to be specious cowardice; modesty, the disguise of effeminacy; and being wise in everything to be good for nothing. The hot fiery temper was adjudged the exertion of true manly valor; cautious and calm deliberation, to be a plausible pretext for intended knavery. He who boiled with indignation was undoubtedly trusty; who presumed to contradict was ever suspected. He who succeeded in a roguish scheme was wise; and he who suspected such practices in others, was still a more able genius. But was he provident enough, so as never to be in need of such base expedients; he was one that would not stand to his engagements, and most shamefully awed by his foes. In short, he who could prevent another in executing villainy, or could persuade a well-designing person to it, was sure to be applauded.

Men now, who were allied in blood, were less valued or caressed, than such as were connected by voluntary combination; since the latter, unscrupulous and unquisitive, were more ready to embark in any scheme whatever. For now, associations were not formed for such mutual advantage as is consistent with, but for the execution of such rapines as are contrary to human laws. In mutual trust they persisted, not out of any regard to religious obligation, but from the bond of communicated guilt. To the fair and honest proposals of adversaries, they hearkened indeed, when such, by active strength, could control them, but never through candid ingenuity. Revenge upon another was a more valued possession than never to have suffered injury. Oaths, if ever made for present reconciliation, had a temporary force, so long as neither knew how to break them; but never when either party had power to abet their violation. He who, at inviting opportunities, durst first incur the perjury, if the adversary was off his guard, executed his rancor with higher spirit than from enmity open and avowed. Such a step was thought most secure; and, because he had thus surpassed in guile, it was certainly extolled as a master-piece of cunning. Large is the number of villains, and such obtain more easily the reputation of dexterity than their dupes can that of goodness: the latter are apt to blush; the former most impudently triumph.

The source of all these evils is a thirst of power, in consequence either of rapacious or ambitious passions. The mind, when actuated by such, is ever ready to engage in party feuds. For the men of large influence in communities avowing on both sides a specious cause, some standing up for the just equality of the popular, others for the fair decorum of the aristocratical government, by artful sounds, embarrassed those communities for their own private lucre. Both sides, intent on victory, carried on the contention with the keenest spirit. They most daringly projected, and then regularly executed, the most dreadful machinations. Their revenge was not limited by justice or the public welfare; it aimed at more ample satisfaction. Either side constantly measured it by such retaliation as was judged the sweetest, either by a capital condemnation through an iniquitous sentence or by earning the victory with their own hands, in which they were always ready to glut the present rancor of their hearts. And hence it was that the pious and upright conduct was on both sides disregarded. And, when any point of great importance was before them, to carry it by specious collusive oratory was the greatest enhancement of their credit. Yet all this while, the moderate members of such communities, either because they would not meddle, or envied for unobnoxious conduct, fell victims to both. Seditions in this manner introduced every species of outrageous wickedness into the Grecian manners. Sincerity, which is most frequently to be found in generous tempers, was laughed out of countenance, and forever vanished. It was become the universal practice to keep up a constant enmity of intention against one another, and never to believe. No promise was strong enough, no oath sufficiently solemn, to banish such mutual diffidence. Those who excelled in shrewd consideration, rejected all hopes of any lasting security, bent ahead ever on their guard against whom it was impossible for them to trust. But persons of meaner understandings took more effectual care for their preservation. Living in constant apprehension, from their own inferiority and the craft of their opponents, lest by words they should be over-reached, or that such subtile heads might execute their treacherous plots upon them unaware, they boldly seized the present moment and fell to action. Whilst the men of superior minds, too confident that they could foresee the blow, and thinking it too much on their own penetration, and that it was superfluous to gain a thing by action which they might compass by policy, were taken more unguarded, and so destroyed. AMUSEMENTS.

THE ST. CHARLES.—This venerable institution offered an attractive entertainment last evening. "The Forty Thieves" was produced for the second time with new scenery, properties and music. The orchestra took occasion, during an interlude, to give one of the old tunes which many in the audience had followed to victory in other days. Loud applause was drawn down by the inspiring air, and the audience was put in excellent humor to listen to the burlesque. Miss Arnot takes a benefit to-night; we trust it may be a bumper.

THE ACADEMY. — "Frou-Frou" appears as popular as "East Lynne" to judge by the audiences which crowd the Academy. So admirable an actress is Miss Western that no play whatever which she appears in cannot but be certain to succeed.

SOCIEDAD UNION ESPANOLA.—We have the honor of thanking the gentlemen of this society for an invitation to attend their celebration on the 22d inst.

CALICO SOIREE.—Our compliments are due to the Deutsche Company for a ticket to attend at their Hall, on the corner of Bienville and Exchange Alley, on the 21st of January.

Grant, Sherman, and Sheridan were only the hands of Stanton. "I have no Generals," said the great War Secretary, "but I have men, and I will crowd them in until this thing shall be accomplished." And so he did. The march to Richmond was made a highway of bones, and this famous General lost in killed, wounded, and missing more than Lee had under him.—Tom Pratt.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Another Coal Oil Horror.—We are again painfully called upon to record another victim to this inflammable fluid. At five o'clock, last evening, a fire originated at No. 87 Rampart street. The house was occupied by Tony Christiana as a fruit and oyster stand, and the upsetting of a coal oil lamp was the cause of the fire. John Almeier, a boy, was badly burned about the face and body. The boy was sent to the "Circus Street Infirmary." The damage to the building was slight.

Before U. S. Commissioner Weller.—There was nothing but a series of steamship and steamboat cases, in which members of the crew felt themselves aggrieved on the score of disputed wages. Among the vessels' names we noticed the steamship Mississippi, the steamboats Florence and Alma, and the bark Bina.

Although not material, these questions of sailors wages require a nice distinction on the part of the Commissioner. A clever opportunity for the study of human nature in its various phases may be obtained by a visit to his office!

A case of assault and battery of the United States vs. John Neal, second officer of the steamship Mississippi, was up Friday morning before the Commissioner. Thos. Hillier, the seaman prosecuting, withdrew the charge, and the accused was discharged. Looking, at first, like a summary proceeding, it closed a summary one, through the forgiving qualities of the prosecutor.

A Policeman Beaten.—Mr. Flood, who does duty under the Metropolitan Police bill, on Carondelet street, was badly used up yesterday morning, about one o'clock, by several citizens with whom he came in contact. The officer was sent home, and Thomas Kelly was unfortunate enough to be arrested as one of the parties who assisted in knocking him down.

Feloniously Entered.—Mr. D. E. McConnell, who has his establishment at the corner of Claiborne and Poydras streets, has the pleasure of knowing that a burglar walked into his house and walked out again without carrying any plunder with him.

Sentence of Death Commuted.—Governor Warmoth has commuted the sentence of Richard Farragut from death to imprisonment for life at hard labor in the State Penitentiary. Farragut was tried before Judge Pardee, in the parish of Jefferson, for the murder of one Nosay, convicted and sentenced to death. The mitigation of the sentence was based upon a petition of the counsel for the accused, seconded by the representation of the District Attorney, Zuinglius McKay, Esq.

The Killing of Donovan.—We take from the Evening Times the following: The John Reilly Donovan, who died Wednesday night at Hotel Dieu, from the effects of a stab in the abdomen, was wounded on the 2d ult., at Comas Landing, near Bayou Sara, and was a deck hand on the E. L. Hodge. The boat had landed to take in wood, and some difficulty arising between the deceased and John Price, the latter drew a knife and inflicted the wound. Price immediately escaped to the woods, and Donovan was brought to the city and sent to the hospital. The Coroner's jury cannot return a verdict until they have heard the testimony of the officers and crew of the Hodge. The deceased, a short time previous to his death, had been discharged from the United States ship Tuscarora.

Supposed Poisoning.—James Mitchell, a negro about 25 years old, was found on Thursday night in a condition which led Dr. Bell, who attended him, to believe that he had been poisoned. It is said that he was poisoned by a man known as Pierre and who is said to have been instigated to the act by a woman known as Eliza, who had been heard to say that she would poison the whole family.

Since the above was written (information furnished entirely by the police) we learn that Dr. Bell has decided that the man was not poisoned but was afflicted with an over-dose of Benzine (whisky.)

First District Court.—In the case of Wilson and Taylor, charged with stealing from a man who had treated them and was robbed in their company, as alleged, but whom the jury acquitted, the counsel who had defended them applied for an order on the property clerk for the return of the money. Judge Abell properly refused this demand, as one of the acquitted gentry is already in the Parish Prison again on a charge of vagrancy, and the other "client" is greatly wanted on the same charge.

In Matt. Hogan's case his counsel made a motion to quash the indictment, which was overruled.

Burglary.—The coffee house, corner of Baronne and Union streets, was visited by burglars and robbed of three dollars, two revolvers and other property.

Stolen Property Recovered.—At half-past four o'clock, yesterday morning, Bernard Dixon was arrested with a gold watch, a silver ... mounted cane, ... pistol, ... wearing apparel ... supposed to be stolen.

Finance—Favorably for the relief of R. Rovier, of St. Landry.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Pinchback, in regard to the resolution relative to the Press Delegation, desired to state that the introduction of the resolution was not intended as an insult, as represented by one of the daily papers, to the Press Delegation, but simply introduced for the purpose of obtaining a fair statement of their visit and what they might see in this city, as the Press Delegation that visited this city last year made statements which were not founded on fact.

Mr. Pinchback observed that if any Senator upon the floor considered the resolution insulting to any party he would withdraw it. If no Senator considered it so, he would move its adoption.

Mr. Smith seconded the motion.

Mr. Ingraham considered the resolution necessary under the circumstances described.

Mr. McMillan considered the misrepresentations which were spread abroad last year by the Press Delegation that visited this city a sufficient cause to vent indignation by those who had been thus misrepresented, but without the presence of the articles written and the knowledge of the Senate in the case, he could not vote for the resolution.

Mr. Coupland was in favor of a division of the resolution. The preamble he would not vote for, the resolution he would.

Mr. Pinchback remarked again, that if any Senator upon the floor considered any portion of the resolution an insult, he would ask the unanimous consent of the Senate to withdraw it. Representations were made by the Press Delegation that visited this city last year, that the offices were filled by negroes, and that the Legislature had a majority of negroes in it. Mr. Pinchback only hoped that he and his people should be rightly represented. As it seemed to be the wish that the resolution should be withdrawn, Mr. Pinchback asked unanimous permission of the Senate to withdraw it. Resolution withdrawn by unanimous consent.

By Mr. Smith—That in contested election cases, all evidence be taken ... Lies over.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The Apportionment bill came up as the unfinished business, as the order of the day.

The Senate was much divided between the original bill and the substitute.

Pending consideration, the Senate adjourned.

The House.

House called to order at 12 M. Speaker Carr in the chair.

Ninety-three members present.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

The reading of the journal was dispensed with.

The clerk announced the following as the committee to investigate the affairs of the lessees of the New Orleans Company, in place of the late Horace Jordan, of Richland: James M. Thompson, of St. Tammany.

R. Buchanan, of Orleans. B. A. Cochrane, of Lafayette. J. H. Burch, of Baton Rouge. J. C. Moncure, of Caddo.

A resolution was adopted to furnish each member with postage stamps to the amount of $7 50.

The House was at least three quarters of an hour in [illegible] on the reference of several bills, unimportant to the public at large.

The Speaker called Mr. Peter Hanlon, of St. Charles, to the chair.

A number of bills were read by title and referred, on their second reading, to the appropriate committees.

The regular order of business was suspended for half an hour in order to allow the introduction of new bills.

A message was received from the Governor accompanying a number of reports from various public departments. Four hundred and fifty copies were ordered to be printed.

Several attempts to adjourn were voted down by the House.

On a motion to adjourn the ayes and noes were called for with a loss of the motion by a vote of 34 to 59.

After some further introduction of bills the House adjourned.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 20th, 1871.

The Money market continues quiet and easy, with a moderate fair demand for discounts and an ample supply of funds available at bank for the accommodation of A1 borrowers. There has probably been more difficulty within the past few days in negotiating paper on the street at outside figures, and this is attributed mainly to the reluctance of lenders to part with their money unless at more remunerative rates, and not to any decrease in the supply of money. Besides this, considerable amounts are taken up in carrying fancy stocks and securities refused as collaterals by the banks. With these remarks we still quote on street rates 10@12 ℔ cent. ℔ annum for A1 notes with unquestionable collaterals, and A1 and first class business paper without collaterals. Mortgage paper still rules at 10@11 ℔ cent ℔ annum for A1, and 12@14 for second grade.

Gold opened at 110⅝@110⅞ (against 110⅝ at New York), and closed at 110⅝@ (against 110¾.) The sales included $9000 at 110¾, $10,000 at 110 7-16, $4000, $10,000 and $30,000 at 110⅝, and $12,000, $9000 and $9000 at 110¾. In Silver a small amount, about $500, in American halves sold at 106@106¼, and at 106¾ and 4000 Mexican dollars at 112.

Sterling Exchange was quite active, and with an improvement in Domestic bills and Gold, the market advanced by the close ½ ℔ cent. The sales included about £100,000, including £— bill of lading sold clear at 119¾@119⅝, £3000 bill of lading at 119½, £800 ship's bill, £1500 clear and £4000 bill of lading at 119¼, £1000 and £6000 A1 clear, and £6000 A1 bill of lading at 119⅝, £7000 bill of lading, and £15,000 and £15,000 A1 clear at 119⅝, £25,000 A1 bill of lading at 119½@119⅝, £7000 first class at 119⅝, £3000 sight at 120, £3000 bank at 120⅛, and £3000 at 109, gold. Sterling may now be quoted at 119⅝@119¾ and 119⅞ for good to A1 bill of lading and clear, and 120@— for bank, 120 A1 commercial Francs changed hands at 4.75⅝.

Domestic Exchange was in moderate supply and ruled higher. The banks checked on New York for remittance at ¼@⅜ ℔ cent. discount, and we noticed sales of $10,000 private bankers' sight on New York at 7-16 discount, $50,000 commercial, $20,000 and $50,000 private bankers' and $10,000 and $40,000 bank at ¼, $10,000 and $40,000 commercial at 5-16, $20,000 at ¼, and $2000 sight on Boston, without grace, at 5-16.

The reported transactions in stocks were 285 shares Mississippi Valley Levee Co. at 90c, 200 at 90c, 500 at 90c, 150 and 200 do at the same, 25, 75 and 100 do at $1. 50 Bank of New Orleans at $90 50, 100 Navigation Co. at $4, 25 Slaughter House at $22 75 and — Union Bank at $80 50.

Nothing reported in Bonds.

$300 City Jury Warrants sold at 97½c, and $540 new State at 70½c. Dealers bought new State at $70@70¼, and new Metropolitan Police at $70@71, and asked for the former 70@71, and for the latter —@98.

Dealers' rates for City Treasury notes were 28 ℔ cent. discount buying, and 26@ — selling.

COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE BEE,
FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 20, 1871.

COTTON.—The market to-day continued to rule ... at easier prices ... there was hardly any ... the higher grades. We now quote low ordinary at 12½@13c, ordinary at 11@ —, good ordinary at 13¼@13⅜, low middling at 14@14¼, middling at 14¾@ —, strict middling at 15@—, and good middling at 15½@15¾c.

We have been compelled to give an unusual value to good ordinary, clean, everything ... commanding ... more ... mixed and dusty. The latter, ... sold, and down to 12c, and even cotton classed the strict good ordinary (but which ought to grade between strict good ordinary and low middling) at 13c. Low middling was reported down to 13¾c, and strict as selling freely at 14¼c, but the latter also sold at 14⅛, and exceptional lots of even-running with good staple at 14⅜ and even 14½c. Although we retain our previous quotations for this grade, the advantage was sensibly on the side of the buyer.

Adding 25 bales to yesterday's report, the sales for the past three days sum up 47,650, against 48,450 last week and 40,180 the week before. Week's receipts 98,183 bales, embracing 3746 from other delivery ports and 50,303 proper, against 44,896 proper last week and 41,637 last year. Receipts proper since August 31st 802,347 bales, against 582,150 last year. Week's exports 70,941 bales, embracing 39,070 to Liverpool, 7351 to Cork and 1857 to Queenstown, for orders, 4253 to Antwerp, 6097 to Bremen, 3849 to Barcelona, 908 to Malaga, 1912 to Genoa, 1690 to Trieste, 1638 to Boston, 1468 to Providence, 2976 to New York and 347 to Philadelphia.
