For Congress: let District, CH. GAVARRE, 21 J. MES BRADFORD, 3d J. WALKER.

Well and authorized to annuamous Mr. J. J. Mescess as a andidate for alderman of the Sth ward.

We are cut off ontirely, and have been, and probably will be, unless our grievances are thundered louder than they yet have been in Mr. Barry's ears, from all communication with the north: No mail has been received here for nearly, B. Wrek past. This irregularity is not of a weeks date but is of months and months standing, and in fact began ever since the present Post-master, General assumed the duties of his department.

N. B. Since the above was in type, we understand that a gaw of the delinquent mails have arrived via the Arkan" sas territory. Of comeso, the foregoing remarks are not the less upplicable.

Mrs Rowe, an estimable lady in private life, and an ac ress of great ver-a illig of talent, takes a benefit this evemag. It is due to her expertions to please the admirers of the dramit, that her claims should be properly acknowleled, and that her friends should lend their presence upon the occasion, to cheer her on to renewed exertions in er ardions profession. Mrs. Austin, whose voice and monre of sugging are so insum ting, has volunte-red ler services, and will arguer with Miss Nelson.

OPINTON OF THE COMMITTEE On the Report of the Civil Engineer, on the means to pre-vent the city of New-Orleans from inundations of Lake Pontcharti at.

The Committee to whom was referred the Civil Engineer's Report on the means of protecting New Orleans from incom-nations, has attentively examined the various parts of this typo), so creditable to the action, and is of opinion that it is used by wholly adopted. If the wisely combined works contemplated in it should be executed, they would reach the portain object which we desire, of improving the heal hose city by draining import marshes, the dangerous extallaimportant object which we desire, of improving the least a which curve by draining inpure marshes, the dangerous extallations of which, (info particularly in the summer,) taints the grand give rise to contagious diseases which fill the city exercise with anomaling by outing off a number of our criticals, or compelling many to consult their safety by flight; of bringing under cultivation these very marshes where in the data of the safety which is the data of the safety where it is the bount of results and consonous stend of strength waters, the haunt of reptiles and poisonous add to the comfort of our citizens. This important result worthy of an antightened administration, is entitled to the serious attention of the state and the city council, and deserves the concurrent aid of the inhabitants, and most of all. of the proprietors. The expenses for this great undertaking are astumated by the crist, significant at $64,000; a very insig-mineral sum compared to the advantages to be derived from caizens, will subscribe to this company and pay in money the amount of their shares. These lands after draining will be sold for the company; and the considerable profits to be obtained from this scale, will be devided between the stockholders in properties to the number of shares that they may possess. This undertaking would easily be divided and sub-divided into sections; these sections alone whose proprietors would have subscribed to the management, would be improall chizens would enjoy the same privilege of become ng subscribers for the same charpany.

We were led at first to suppose by the latitude of its premises, that all the accurations which its fertile annu action has concaved within and if the wit was relisted it was nover forgiven. the fast twelve mentils, were to be substantiated by this same testimony, and we were con-iderably strengthened in this hyperide why not perceiving that the evidence adduced was applicable to one charge more than all the rest, or in other words, that it would have been more efficacious to be invaked for one rather than the whole of them. To confess the truth, we' felt capsalarable surprise that any one being compos mentos can'd - 1 and by imagine that the exposure of a prigate letter perfectly conocent in its nature, and showing merely that the housene and benevolent disposition of the author had been imposed upon, and that he had recommended a man to another nawo thy of confidence, would be at all serviceable in operating against his pretensions as an apblicant for an office which every one, with the exception of those personally interested, admits him capable of filling magazar in the view we here took of the matter. Many personne, among whom were not a few of our political opposonte argued that the exposure of private letters was under most aircumstances reprehensible, and could only be justified hy come important disclosure therein, which if publicly known; would brand their author with infamy and cover any pretensions that he might urge to the favor of his fel ow citizens with shame and confusion. It was in vain that they conned the letter of recommendation over and over to bring it under this saving clause. Far, far from it, a subsequent letter which it seems was written in consequence of some reproaches from Marschalk, and which is published with the former, contained a manly, dignified and natisfactery defence of any slight blame that could possibly have attached to the act itself, and sufficiently showed that Marschalk's consures for the part the writer had taken were hoth unmerited and undeserved. The conclusion was therefore irresistible, that as nothing contained in the letter excheed the breach of faith implied in avery private correspondence, it was a violation of confidence and delicacy to appead it before the public, and that so far from operating against Judge Dawson it would recoil with a double force on with credit to hinaself and profit to the state. We were not those who could resort to such pitiful and objectionable means to attain their onds. But to recur to what we set out with in the beginning of this article: we find that the Louisiana is not prepared to substantiate all its charges against Judgo Dawson by the correspondence with Marschalk, and that its declaration that that correspondence "nailed every count writter arninst him irretrievably at his door," is no more than an against aim arternevably at his door, is no more than an indiacreat baset. It says that its principal view is "to show that he (Dawson) is connected with the Gordon cottene."

Elife clarge considered in itself is ridicidous, amounting to including a dimitted. Let us suppose for argument sake, it is also at made at principally by city grocers and western methods. Let us suppose for argument sake, it is now including a dimitted. Let us suppose for argument sake, it is now including a dimitted. Let us suppose for argument sake, it is now including a dimitted. Let us suppose for argument sake, it is now including a dimitted. Let us suppose for argument sake, it is principally by city grocers and western methods and his friends in the purchase are made at prices ranging from 4 to centure, and a selections of a context of context indiscreet boast. It says that its principal view is "to show digitinst, whom the dough-bullets of our opponents are chiefly. Arrive B. directed, we cannot for the soul of us nee what private in icement he has, or how he expects to be personally bunefitted more by the election of one candidate than the other. Assuredly, there is much hetter reason to believe that the prominent friends of Mr. White are induced mainly to support him from selfish considerations, than to suspect any of those gentlemen of improper motives in their adherence to their candidate. We shall not imitate the Louisiana in dragging private individuals before the public, because we deem the same exceptionable. If we were to do so, we could name at least fire gentlemen in this city who are in the expectance of snug births in the event of Mr. White's election.

It can therefore at once be perceived that the accusation harging Judge Dawson with being connected with any or ion of his friends, about which such an outcry is raised s unworthy of notibe, on the ground that such a connexion if it does exist, has not been shewn to be sorded or interested and moreover that we have equally as much right to infer one in Mr. White's case, with the same concomitants, as they have to uffer one in that of Judge Dawson's.

In conclusion our readers must be of opinion, that so far from "all the counts that ever have been written against Judge Dawson being laid irretrievably at his door," not even the ore which it is pretended the evidence adduced more particularly applies to, has been established, if we are to understand it as implying, as doubtless it was intended i should, any thing to his disparagement. Our opponents have their five spec fications to make good against him, an unless they bring better evidence than that which we have been noticing, we can't but commisserate, however much we may despise their folly.

A rather curious case is now pending in the Court of Common Pieus, now setting in Boston, in which the plaintiff sies a captain of a vessel for an alligator, which had been entuited to his keeping and consequice from the Mississippi to that past, but which died on the passage.— The object of the plaintiff iese obtain the value of the animal from the captain.
