That they were regularly organized on the first of May last.
That they gave their immediate attention to flue affairs of the company.
That as soon as it learned practicable the title deeds of the ground purchased for the erection of the hotel were executed and payment made of the same by four hundred dollars in cash, and the bonds of the company payable at 20 years, for sinety four thousand dollars, bearing seven per cent per annum interest, payable seniannually; and that for the whole of said interest, dividend warrants were issued at same time and payable as above.

That the next step which the board took was to engage the services of competent persons to superissend the execution of the contemplated work; and they trust they will be found to have consulted the true interests of the country in the choice they made for this purpose of Messrs Gallier and Dakin, gentlemen whose professional acquirencents and assiduity are too eminant to render it necessary to dwell thereon in the present instance. That the directors then flattered themselves with the prospect of commencing their operations immediately; but that they regret to state that difficulties aross in consequence of the occupant of the premises purchased, refusing to surrender them, and that considerable delay occurred before they could be adjusted, and that it was only about the list July that they were put in possession of thems. At which time, it will be recollected, the rain which prevailed for such a length of time last season, commenced, and which proved the more adverse, as the operations of the company were then chiefly under ground, rendering it impossible to prosecute the work with advantage, and indeed obliging them to suspend it altogether for a considerable time. That these untoward circumstances combined with ethers of minor importance will fully account to the apparent slow progress made in the execution of the work, but that they have good reason to believe that notwithstending the disspiporimments above alluded to that the building will be got ready so as to be occupied in all the month of October next by Messers Spencer, Gloyd and John McDenald, to whom the board have agreed to lease it for the term of five years, at a rater equal te seven per cent interest, on the cost of the landing building—the leasees perige all repairs, taxes, and five insurance desing the constituence of their lease.

That the board are happy to asy, thas they are indebted for the prospect of this result to the cheerful cooperation of the stockholders, who so liberally submitted to an extremely burthensome mode of paying up the instalments, in order to place the means at their disposal of currying ent he work with a spirit worthy of its object, and which will be as creditable as a monument of art, as it is to the patriotic spirit of its projectors. That the board will abstain from entering into any forther details on the subject of this edifice, as the accompanying statement of the affairs of the company, made up to the first instant, and report of the architect, which show be gleave to submit, will, they trust, prove highly satisfactory.

The board also beg leave to inform the stockholders, that the charter granted to them last seasion, which for various causes well known to them, the commissible results and the inadequacy of the same amount.

The fiberality of the legislature is the more gratefully acknowledged, because by the increase of their present capital, the ample means which will be put at the disposal of the company, will reduce to a certainty the success of an undertaking, histhert problematical from the inadequacy of t ENTABLISHMENT

But private correspondence contradict all the assertions of the Russo-German publicist. A letter, dated Lemberg (Gallic a) contains the following paragraph. The republic of Cravocy is now soliciting the emperors of Russia and Austria, and the king of Prassin, for an acknowledgment of its independence; but Russia will not consent to it but on such onerous terms, that Cracovy cannot submit to them. An answer is expected daily from Viennas.

We learn from the confines of Poland, that the birthday of Nicholas had occasioned some disturbances in Cracovy. The government of that republic, well aware of the public spirit of the citizans, dis not require of them to illuminate on that night, as if has slways been the practice on the birthday of the avereigns who style themselves Protectors of Poland. It was even initiasted to them, that they had better not do it. One single inhabitant of Cracovy, but not a citizen, persisted, and illuminated his house.

The people rushed towards the house, broke all the windows, and would have hid the whole building in ruins, had it not been for the timely interference of the magnetrates. But the infatuated man who had occasioned the disturbance, being discovered, was fired at however without any shot traing effect.

As the Session of Parliament is now approaching, it becomes necessary that we should give the same advice to the Reformers, that the Times, with no great hopes of success, it should seem has lately been giving to the Conservatives. To the former then, we say, be early and late at your posts—do so neglect an opportunity; do not throw a chance away—but contest resolutely every inch of ground, just as if you had gained nothing but all was yet to be gained. But while we thus urge the Reformers to be active, are we therefore desirous that the Conservatives should be indifferent? Not a bit of it. We would address them in precisely the same language that our Tory Contemporary has addressed them. We would say to them, as Machet says to the rebellious-Thanes—come one, come all, put forth your best efforts—assemble in your largest numbers—make your longest speeches—and divide with your strongest divisions:—do this, gentlemen, and do more if you can; for your energies will be attended with this happy offect—it will convince us of our strength, and your weakness—it will show us, is fact, not so much what you can do, as what you cannot do.
