REMOVANDA.

The Jane was detained at Matamoras 26 days by order of Gen Fernandez: the neutrality of the American flag is such, the sails of the vessel unbent and taken on shore; the captain imprisoned & and otherwise most grossly maltreated, for what cause he could not learn, he having complied with every requisition of the Mexican government, and possessing, previous to his detention, every paper required by said government and his order for the pilot to take him to sea.

The fourteen prisoners who were sentenced to be shot on the 25th April were reprieved to the 31st, and it was hoped that they would be finally pardoned, the most strenuous exertions being made in their behalf by all the foreigners of the place. The names of the prisoners are as follows:

Without meaning to justify the capture or detention of the American brig Pocket by the Texian armed schooner Invincible, we may direct attention to the article under our commercial head relative to the treatment of American vessels by the Mexicans. This is but one of numerous instances of the like nature.

It is high time that the American commerce in the Gulf of Mexico should be protected, both from Texians and Mexicans; and unless the general government interpose, the evils will be of a very serious magnitude. Nothing can justify the capture of the Pocket; but certainly nothing can justify even in appearance the Mexican treatment of American vessels and seamen, in all their ports. Our commerce should be protected from all; no matter who owns ships, fights or conquers. Merchants value not the mere cause of belligerency; they deal with marketable commodities; and those must be preferred who give the best terms.

The drama of the Jewess as performed at the Camp street theatre deserves what it receives—a numerous auditory, and warm approbation. We are of those who cannot sit out a play; yet we were induced to witness this drama till its termination on Wednesday last.

Without alluding to the merits of the play itself which are many—we can safely assert that the personation of the Jew by FARREN verifies and enlarges our opinions of his real merits; and if he acted Shylock, we ought say as Pope did of Macklin,

This is the Jew
That Shakespeare drew.

Farren has abased himself by his own lack of ambition. Few could better represent King Lear, few the broker of Bogota, few Sir Giles Overreach, or few even Sir Peter Teazle better than this same George Percy Farren; yet he will not stoop to conquer. But let the ambitionless go; for blessed are the poor in spirit.'

The part of Rachel the Jewess by Miss RUSSELL, elicited talents of the highest grade. That young lady is rapidly ance ding the height of her profession; but she must forget what the burly quack taught her.

'Albeit unused to the melting mood,' we have been interested the condition of our northern brethern on account of their long winter this season. By our various exhange papers we find that even on the 18th of last month, the coldness of the weather was extremely severe: 'frat it snew, then it blew, then it thaw, and then it friz horrid.

Now in order to prove our condoling propensities to our eastern brethern, we gratuitously and (of course) generously inform them that at that period and some time previous, blackberries, strawberries, new potatoes and such other vegetables, abounded in the markets of this city: nay even icecreams had become common.

It is however true that during the last days of that month, we had some of the most singular species of spring showers that we have ever witnessed. Thunder and lightning accompanied the floodgates from heaven; and almost inundated the town: but we have now got rid of those visitations; and enjoy delightful weather. This summer will be very healthy in New Orleans; for indeed we are firmly persuaded that the usual endemic diseases of the place have been conquered, in consequence of the many improvements made and in progress.

A LADY'S GIFT, or woman as she ought to be. By Jane Kindesly Standford. Published by Carey, Lea and Blanchard of Philadelphia; and sold by Mr Bancroft, Camp street.

Woman as she ought to be! How many a time and oft has such been the object of our pursuit, the desideratum of our life! But who can speak of woman as she is with any certainty, being variable as the shade

By the light quiv'ring aspen made;

and much less, who can decide what woman should be? With every man,

The mind is its own place, and in itself
Can make a hell of heav'n or heav'n of hell;

what then must it be with woman, who is an enigma from the cradle to the grave; who fools to foil, and is foiled to fool?

But in order to see how the riddle is developed by Miss Standford, we may at leisure peruse her little volume—

With sad civility then sit, and read
With trembling anguish and an aching head.
