Parish of St Bernard May 23d 1836.

OCTAVE S. ROUSSEAU, Judge.

Prospectus of the New York Classical and Commercial Institution.

The patronage and friends of the boarding school conducted by the undersigned, at No 7 Beaver st, and the public in general, are respectfully informed that it will be removed, under the above name, on the 1st of May to Bloomingdale, where a very desirable property of a out ten acres has been purchased for the purpose of continuing the establishment with such increased advantages as it is hoped will meet the approbation and merit the support of those parents who feel interested in the cause of education.

To combine effectually the benefits of a country and city residence, much care has been taken in selecting a suitable location. To accomplish which the 1st object was to obtain a healthy situation, sufficiently near to insure thorough attendance of the masters engaged in the most thorough and accomplished manner. It has formed an important part of the system heretofore adopted at this school, to have none but the best instructors in the several departments of French Spanish, Drawing, music, dancing and fencing, and as those cannot be induced to devote all their time to one establishment, it is the more desirable to be within such a distance of the city as will enable them to attend punctually and without inconvenience.

With regard, therefore, to the place selected, there no fold advantage, is united in the fullest extent. The of health has already been so well ascertained that it would be superfluous to dwell on the subject, except for the information of strangers, to whom it may be mentioned, the spring property was occupied for many years by Mr Bansell, and afterwards by Mr Dominguez, for a similar purpose, during all which time it has maintained the reputation of a most delightful and healthy residence.

On the whole island there could not probably have been a place chosen better calculated for a boarding school.

The house stands on an elevated site, commanding a view of the Hudson, from which it is distant about 1 a mile, 5 miles from the city, and within a mile of the Harlem rail road. It was built expressly for a school, and when the additions and improvements at present in progress are completed, the whole will form an establishment unsurpassed in any part of the state for the accommodations and advantages it will afford.

The plan of instruction and general system of education adopted by the undersigned, have been now before the public for 5 years. Sufficient time, therefore, has elapsed to judge of the beneficial results to be derived from them. The limits of a newspaper advertisement will not admit of entering at large into particulars on this subject; but those parents who may desire further information, can obtain a prospectus of the school on application to the principal in Beaver st, until the 1st of May and afterward either at the Institution at Bloomingdale, or at the bookstores of Messrs Wiley & Long, Berard & Mendon and E Lockwood in the city.

The following references also may prove satisfactory to strangers and those living at a distance, inasmuch as the testimony of those gentlemen is derived from experience and personal knowledge, and it is, therefore, with much confidence in their favorable recommendation on the establishment, that the annexed list is given.

The terms of the school are $400 per annum, payable half yearly in advance, on the 1st March and 1st September, and if a pupil is received at any intermediate period, so much of the time as remains, previous to the commencement of the ensuing term, will only be charged in order to bring all the accounts to the regular days but no boy will be admitted into the establishment for less than 6 months. The above charge includes board and tuition, and also the incidental expenses of washing, mending, stationary and the use of books.

Books, clothes and medical advices, are additional expences, depending upon circumstances which it is obvious cannot be anticipated. The vacations are the month of August, and one week at Christmas and at Easter.

The course of instruction is extensive and varied, including the Greek, Latin, French and Spanish languages, mathematics, writing, arithmatic and book-keeping, natural philosophy and chemistry, (for which a valuable apparatus has been provided), music, drawing, ancient and modern history and geography, Grecian & Roman antiquities, use of the globes elocution, reading, English, grammar, spelling, Latin, and English composition, epistolary correspondence, &c.

Dancing and fencing are also taught, but as extra charges.

From the foregoing list it may be seen, that the education of youth can be pursued to such an extent as to meet the wishes of parents. In the plan of the school 3 important features are constantly kept in view. First, that nothing is professed to be taught, which is not attended to thoroughly; and 2d, that no boy may rely with confidence upon the preparation of their children for whatever course of life they intend them. The French language is spoken not only during the time of recitations in that department, but also generally in the family.

The manner connected with the establishment is modern languages and accomplishments, as:

Mons Petit de Billier, professor of French and Spanish.

" Henri Picard, late professor of modern languages in the Albany Academy), resident French master.

Mr F Graine, professor of drawing.
Mr Alexander Kyle, professor of music.
Mr C arrand, professor of dancing.

These together with well qualified masters and assistants in the mathematical and classical departments, constitute a faculty capable of imparting such a system of general education, as it is hoped will meet the wishes of those parents who are desirous of having their sons instructed in whatever is necessary to lay the foundation of future usefulness, both as scholars and gentlemen, and who are aware of the great advantages to be gained by having so many branches of education taught at the same establishment.

The undersigned will receive applications for admission at his residence in Beaver street, until the first of May.
