NEW-ORLEANS BEE.

BY ROBERT MOORE & CO.

NEW-ORLEANS:

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 30, 1839.

HENRY CLAY.

BY NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT OF THE N. O. BEE.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JULY 27, 1839.

Mr. Clay arrived in this city on Thursday evening, and was received with the most enthusiastic demonstrations of respect and affection. In addition to the numerous committee appointed by the Whig Convention, which met him at Albany, and escorted him to this city, a committee of twenty-four gentlemen, appointed by the Whig Young Men's General Committee, met him at Peekskill, and escorted him to the city. The steamboat Swallow, which conveyed him down the river, was accompanied by a large number of steamboats filled with citizens, and by a splendid display of fireworks. On his arrival at the city, he was received by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Assistant Aldermen, and by the Whig Young Men's General Committee, and was escorted to the City Hall, where he was welcomed by the Mayor in a brief address, to which he replied in a few appropriate remarks. He was then escorted to the Astor House, where he was received by the Whig Young Men's General Committee, and by a large concourse of citizens, who had assembled in front of the house. He was welcomed by Mr. Morris, the chairman of the committee,
