Mr. Chey theat turned to another part of the spoech of Mr. Alten—that which manifested the spirit of the struction so rife of late. He seted it as a sign of the inner. It was a new one—that the borsons of salt reporty are not to sell at the prices they can precent; with out being demounced as monopolise! The great salt property at difference, is, according to these gen-fremm, a monopolise—the senator from should Caralina, (Vir. Presion.), one of the owners of the great salt recepts in the state of Virginia, its be jest down as a unnepublist—the senator from should Caralina, (Vir. Presion.), one of the owners of the great salt recepts in the state of Virginia, its be jest down as a unnepublist. And how, (salted Mr. Clay) are they to be put down? By presenting the detice on salt—by training off six cents a bushel.

Mr. Clay protected against these dectrines, and this lames, which it is assisted of being monopolists. He and the southern convengion that had recently according to the salt of the purpose of increasing the value and he price of their staples, was, in the garden, a salt of the control of their products. He could not their southern the summary of the could not have such dectrines without meeting them at the threshold, and demounting them as imprired by the leveling, deleterious, destructive spirit abroad, which at acked one insettution to day, another to morrow, and which, unless arrested, would overrun all these degrees, enrivious in their character, and sham insible in the insequence.

During the present context between the prople and the throne, the Mediconien has been a most powerful auxiliary. It supports in good faith and with containing the property of the property of the South. If the people wish a political paper that addition to the claims of emissent takent, and on degree prints in the United States, they would do well to encourage the Mediconies. It is a nest intropal advocate of popular rights, and a manhing thorn in the side of the blooated parasite of the Globe. Its columns are een standy curiched with its jornant information, and no paper is more assistance in rejelling the theories and calumnies by which a hareling press seeks to high the reputation of the whig candidate for the presidency.
