GENERAL JACKSON'S SECOND LETTER. At the request of several gentlemen, we this day are no pleasure in reproducing this peering and un-nanly outbreak of the ex-president, but as a part of the history of the times, it is worth putting upon re-mord. The public will perceive that General Jacason's rejoinder to Mr. Clay was allogather superfluous.— The response of the latter to the sharge made by Gen. Jackson, was as conclusive a vindication of his lan guage and sentiments, as it was temperate and digist ne familiar with the character of the ex-president, ursuc any object that has excited his hetroil. It is together probable that the appearance of Mr. CLAT, e man he most abhors, on the soil of Tennesse of the first. The general reiterates charges against Mr. CLAT, which the latter has incontrovertilly rex president, although Mr. Clay has, by the publica-on of his speech reperted by himself, the correctness which is corroborated by the testiment of thounds, dimpoved all General Jackson's accur hose who have read his first epistic, and Mr. CLAY's anly and triumphant reply will need no argument to x president, broken with age and infirmities, on the om self-respect and the invasiable practice of his pre hat survives the imbecility of dotege. How dignifed, how proper, how praise-worthy is the position in which then I Jackson stands—a position never sought r enview by JEPPERSON, MADISON, OF MONROE!

How truly democratic and republican!

Thanks to the moderation of Mr. Cl.47 and he good sense of the people, this latest effort o divert the public mind from the size of the diministration, and to prop the sinking fortunes he whige, has proven abortive. The time has gene by, when Gen'l Jackson could direct the gase of the tion upon his altercations with his political foes, and rn them to good account. The doom of locofee

Master, or whether any is to be appointed. Why this long delay in making public the appointment is more than we can tell. Perhaps the multifarious ap-plicants embarross the executive, and leave him at a less to whom the handketchief shall be thrown. One would suppose, by our worthy collector being compelled to attend to the duties, that the government feared to appoint a post-master, lest another defaication might take place are the fourth of March. We will answer refaco in New Orleans.

On reference to our columns it will be hat a reward of FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS is offered for information that may lead to the appre-hension of an individual named JOHN C.
