INSECT TENT.

A NEWLY invented article called an insect tent is now offered to the public at No 46 St. Charles street opposite the Exchange Hall, which is a delicate tent and net of firm and substantial construction, and on light portable and comfortable, that it must meet with universal approbation

As a complete protection against annoyance from all winged insects, without any exception the insect curtain, or bed room, this tent is all that the most fastidious could possibly desire. It will give to the inhabitants at warm climates a comfort and luxury now-a-days unattached by any other antiquito bedding. The tent is suspended from the ceiling of the room, limb or a tree, or any other thing to which it may be desireable to fix it, and may be easier for Lawrence of pleasure. It is so constructed, that it may be instantly folded up into a small bundle not larger than an umbrella and rise up to those thing and be as much out of the way as a suspended lamp or chandelier would be, and it may be as quickly unfolded and prepared for use. The time required to form, thereon or spread it out is not more than a minute, or quite more than one minute. It will be an ornament to a room instead of an unsightly mosquito net, owing to simple inside construction that it cannot get out of order. It is intended to be used for sitting, reading, dressing and sleeping under, and to be used in dwellings countings houses and offices, and may be used by travellers, sportsmen or parties of pleasure, when in the woods. People will never know the comfort that they be used in the open air this way in musquito country until they try one of these newly invented tents. They may be had in any required dimensions and of any desired richness or ornament. Those now made are low squared, or square and 5 feet 6 inches in diameter, 10 feet 6 inches high, and when folded up will make a bulk of 4 feet 6 inches long and not 10, to be in a number. The price of one is only $25.

The ladies should examine this new tent, especially as it will afford them many comfortable retreats in the summer season of the inconvenience of the present modes of protection against insects. The above article is for sale at one of the most useful and commercial countries across of the day and must soon be used by every family either in the cities or in the country.

The above description of the insect tent may appear extravagant and calculated to give a false estimate and coloring to the matter as is too often the case with notices and new publications, but the public may be assured that no such attempt has been made in this instance which people will be convinced by calling, at 46 St. Charles street.
