"Truth is omnipotent, and Public Justice certain."

FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

HENRY CLAY.

(Subject to the decision of the American People.)

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

WINFIELD SCOTT

FOR GOVERNOR

HENRY JOHNSON.

NEW-ORLEANS:

TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 19, 1842.

THE MAIL failed yesterday beyond Charleston.

The Madisonian, in common with the Tyler squad, in and out of Congress, is endeavoring to cast upon Mr. Clay whatever anger may exist in the public mind at the dilatory proceedings of the national legislature. The amount of the argument of these worthy disciples of Janus is this: Had the whig majority in congress gone to work and voted blindfold for every proposition of the Administration without debate, examination or enquiry, the exchequer bill would now be a law, the loan bill would have been inscribed upon the statute book and the distribution act would long since have been repealed. The whig party, according to these wiseacres, ought to have converted both Houses of Congress into recording offices to register the decrees of the President, and the functions of the legislators (of the whig portion especially) should have been confined to the supervision of executive bills, that no mistake was made in enrolling them.

It is to the absence of this truckling spirit upon the part of the whigs that the Madisonian attributes the loss of Connecticut, and with a degree of effrontery that becomes the organ of a shuffling executive, adds that had congress adopted measures to restore the currency, replenish the treasury and revive industry, Connecticut would not have backsliden.

Did not the Whig party pass two bills at the Extra session having for their object the restoration of the currency? Did not Mr. TYLER veto both? But says the Madisonian, Mr. TYLER's conscience(?) and consistency(??) would not admit of his approving either of these bills. Does not the Madisonian know that the Whig party have for years repudiated the Treasury bank scheme in whatever shape it presented itself? With what face then can it ask the Whig members of congress to violate their consciences! Have not the members of congress as much right to a conscience as Mr. TYLER's has? And if the country requires that some body must be damned to furnish a currency, is it not better, we ask the Madisonian, in all sincerity, that one man should go to the Devil than one hundred and sixty? We put the question as a matter of ethics; and according to our arithmetic, Heaven would be a gainer by the first alternative.

The defection of Connecticut is easily enough accounted for. To sum up the facts in a few words, the whigs elected a nincompoop to the office of President, proved himself more knave than fool, and now the party is reaping the fruits of their folly. It is no use to mince matters. The disasters of the whigs have arisen from the attempt of the Executive and five members of Congress to rule this nation despite of Congress and the people. A President—quizzically enough dubbed "the People's President:" for whom not one man of the two million five hundred thousand suffragans who voted at the Presidential election, cast a ballot as Chief Magistrate of this Union; and five members of Congress, who profess neither the capacity nor the temper to govern a colony of serfs, much less a nation like this. The whigs of Connecticut have suffered themselves to be paralized by the defection of the President; they have failed to attend the polls, and thus lust the State. It has been there as elsewhere.

As to the consumption of time by Congress, the five TYLER men in the House bluster more, make more speeches, and offer greater embarrassments to legislation than thrice their number of either of the other parties. Mr. WISE's amendment to the loan bill, at taching the repeal of the Distribution Act to it, occasioned a vast consumption of time. When the House rejected that amendment, we wonder that he did not move to amend the bill by sticking the exchequer upon it. One motion was just as proper as the other. If the Administration want money, let them bring in a bill to raise it. For what earthly purpose do the peculiar friends of the Administration endeavor to lumber up a simple proposition for a loan with difficult immaterial questions, but to procrastinate business and throw the blame upon the innocent.

When the whigs introduced the "hour rule" to cut off idle and unnecessary debate, these TYLER men were more furious in their denunciations against it than even the locofocos. What can the whigs in Congress do to escape the obloquy of the administration, short of bending the knee in abject submission to the Executive? They are blamed for every thing—even for Mr. TYLER's own duplicity and treachery.—The Madisonian charges upon Mr. CLAY the loss of the Bank Bill! The whigs are now accused on account of the consumption of time in useless debate by the very men that voted against the "hour rule." They are attacked let them do what they may, and will be to the end of Mr. TYLER's term. The President's course signally illustrates the truth of the saying that the most implacable enemies are the ungrateful.

MEXICO.

By the schooner Virginia Antolnette we have received papers from the city of Mexico to the 26th ult. They are destitute of any thing calculated to throw light on the relations between Mexico and Texas.—We learn that when the Virginia Antolnette left Vera Cruz, the U. S. Revenue Cutter Woodbury, with the Hon. WADDY THOMPSON on board, was entering that harbor.

P. S.—We have just seen a letter to a commercial house in this city, dated "Vera Cruz, April 7th," stating that the rumor prevailed and was generally accredited, that SANTA ANA was negotiating a loan of $7,000,000 with the British government, on a pledge of the peninsula of California. This is important intelligence, and if true, will hasten a rupture between this country and Great Britain. Give the English a foothold in Mexico, and they will soon stride over the entire republic.

Business was excessively dull at Vera Cruz. The people there were under apprehensions that the Texan squadron would entirely interrupt or destroy the coasting trade of Mexico.

Considerable excitement exists in Baton Rouge in regard to the murder of Pierre Debancens. The Gazette says:—"According to the evidence before his honor the Mayor, there were two persons in the house of Debancens at the moment of the murder—one, a mulatress, living with him as his wife, the other a mulatto named LeClerc. Debancens was in the act of drawing some whiskey from a barrel behind his bar, when the blows were inflicted. His skull was fractured in three different places. The blows were pertaps given with a loaded cane. LeClerc, (who is now in prison as accessory or accomplice in the crime,) states that he was within three feet of the deceased when he was struck, but did not see the man who struck him. He even states that he heard the first, second and third blows, but did not, although professing the most friendly feelings for the deceased, take sufficient interest in his life to turn round to see who was his murderer! There is something equally mysterious and unnatural in this statement."

SOME COMFORT FOR REPUDIATORS.—The Vicksburg Whig says—The Repudiators of Mississippi will doubtless be glad to learn that villainy thrives in some other place besides Mississippi. The liberal, enlightened, refined and honest government of Mexico, has repudiated a debt of $12,000,000, for a loan contracted during the Presidency of Bustamente. The grounds upon which Mexico repudiates is fully equal to that assumed by Mississippi, and that is, that the terms of the loan were "prejudicial to the interest of the National Treasury, and an insult to the public morals !!"

Mississippi and Mexico! McNutt and Santa Ana!!"

A GOOD EXAMPLE.—Our columns within the last few days have informed our readers that the Male Orphan Asylum at Lafayette is in a state of destitution, for want of funds to meet the expenses for the daily support of one hundred children.

We have just been informed that a poor man who read this statement, called yesterday and han ded one of the Directors ten dollars for the orphans. This person had his house burnt down about a year since; lost every thing, having no insurance, and was on that all, lost a part of his family by the fire. Yet he came forward and gave ten dollars to the orphans. How many of our wealthy citizens will go and do li kewise.

☞ Yesterday morning between 2 and 3 o' clock, a fire broke out in a three story brick house, at the corner of Old Levee and St. Philip streets, and de stroyed the building. But little property was saved.
