NEW-ORLEANS:

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 27, 1844

CLAY CLUB.

NEW ORLEANS, 26th August, 1844.

A meeting of the members of the Clay Club, will be held to-morrow evening, 27th instant, at 7 o'clock. The WHIGS in general are invited to attend.

C. C. WILLIAMS,
JULES DAVID,
ALF. ROUSSEAU, } Secretaries.

CLAY CLUB.

We need scarcely remind our whig friends that the Clay Club meets this evening on important business, and the attendance of every good whig is expected.—The time for action is nearly at hand. Let us prepare in season for the contest.

"HELP ME CASSIUS OR I SINK."

The sly coquetting and courtship between the Polk and Tyler parties have at length reached the desired dénouement. Tylerism hath consented to be absorbed into Polkarry; to be henceforth a mere mensory, a sound, nec plurimus nihil. It hath gently expired in the warm embrace of its ardent lover. The astounding and overwhelming moral and political influence of the Tyler party in this city—an influence commanding, we question not, at least a dozen votes—is to be thrown into the scale of JAMES K POLK, to assist that gentleman in the consummation of his ambitious aspirations.

Yesterday's Republican contains the important announcement that that Journal, heretofore the organ of the forlorn hope of Tylerism in New Orleans, had concluded to lay its patron up in lavender and give an "unqualified and unwavering support" to the ticket of POLK and DALLAS. Accordingly the name of JOHN TYLER is taken down from the head of its editorial columns and those of the locofoco nominees substituted.

We sincerely felicitate the "harmonious democracy" on this important accession to their ranks. Propped up by the powerful lever of Tylerism, locofocoism may yet derive some encouragement to persist in the hopeless struggle it is maintaining against HENRY CLAY and whig principles. We have no doubt that CLAY will fully 1000 votes to the Polk party in the city, and will of course diminish the latter's majority to that extent. Besides, it will relieve the Tyler press from an awkward and cramped position. Its sympathies have ever been enlisted on the side of locofocoism; and it can now do battle in behalf of POLK'S Tariff and anti-Tariff views, his Sub-Treasury and Bank opinions, his newly found "Chickasaw" and all his other consistent, undeviating and unchangeable publican doctrines, with renewed energy and vigor. The New Orleans Republican, moreover, will no doubt be the ablest (it was one of the ablest locofoco papers, but not that paper) supporter of the locofoco ticket, and it will do yeoman's service in the cause which it has at last resolved to espouse.

While, however, the annihilation of the Tyler party may bring infinite comfort to the locofocos, surely breathed as is that interesting faction, it cannot but be deeply mortifying to the immaculate patriot, the tried statesman and the virtuous ruler now at the head of the Government. His career is drawing to a close—he hath filled his term—the acre and yardline is run—and a locofoco successor, the choice, perhaps, of freemen, but chosen by the agency of agents he must not look to have. The Theseus of Texas annexation will be well appraised supporters who cling to him now he sacrificed to a miserable ambition such mere trifles as moral standing, truth, principles, veracity and consistency, desert him at the very crisis of his fate when he most needs the practical evidence of their attachment. They abandon him to give success and consequence to a party which first flicked from him the paternity of the annexation issue, the Texas question, and then nominated an electoral ticket in support of their own succedaneum for every political principle Truly Mr. TYLER is to be pitied.

☞ The National Intelligencer of the 9th instant, contains the powers of attorney, appointment and warrings from which we quote the following concluding passage. The allusion will of course be understood:

"The poet Keats is said to have died of criticism, but for a statesman to perish in that way is something new. We ourselves know one that has stood that sort of thing more than thirty years—the last twenty of which has been an incessant storm of lacerations and fair hits. Yet when has he ichnicked before it all? And lo! what counsels at last? Something for which it was worth while to withstand asbestos! the populous North, the demogogue rear, the howl of slanderers, the very thunder of an almost unresisted tyrant. The tempest has blown away its own breath, overwhelming many that aided to raise and thought to ride forever on it: the winds have sunk into but the glad murmur of a people's returning admiration; the serene skies look out once more; and though the croak of many a democratic frog still attempts to chide the returning sun, far above the flying clouds springs up to sight, once more, the landmark of the nation which they have assailed and hidden in vain—

As some tall cliff that lifts its awful form,
Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm,
Though round its base the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head"

THE ELECTIONS.

The mail yesterday does not add materially to the accounts published heretofore, though it confirms the fact of a whig majority on joint ballot in the Indiana Legislature.

KENTUCKY.—We stated yesterday that Mr. Owsley's majority in 81 counties was 6,581. We have reason to believe from the returns published in the Louisville papers, and transferred to those of Baltimore, that the majority is larger. The Louisville Journal of the 15th instant puts it down at 8,000, and says it will not be greatly varied by the vote of the remaining counties.—The returns for members of the Legislature, as far as heard from, show the election of 8 whigs and 3 locos to the Senate, and of 61 whigs and 22 locos to the House. Whig majority 47 thus far. The remaining counties will probably increase the majority. Last year the whig preponderance was much smaller.

INDIANA.—Some of the papers make the Senate a tie others give the locos two majority, and others again state that the whigs have two majority. All the papers concur in allowing the whigs a majority in the House and a majority on joint ballot, which gives them a United States Senator. The Cincinnati Atlas of the 15th contains the latest, and, we doubt not, the most correct information. It says:

We deem it unnecessary to continue our Legislative tables. That of the House, published in yesterday's Atlas, we believe to be correct to a figure, except that of Vermillion, which, after all, as we learned by letter yesterday, has chosen Mr. Holcsteiter, (L. C.) an exceedingly popular man, by a majority of 36 votes. The whig Senator (Mr. Foley) is chosen by a majority of 20. With this correction, our table should stand 23 whigs, 41 locofocos. Since then we have returns from the following counties:

	1843. W.	L.	F.	1844. W.	L.	F.
In 73 counties, corrected,	44	51		53	41
Fulton and Marshall,	0	1		1	1
	44	52		54	42

The Senate, we think, will show a tie on a party vote—though three members are still to be heard from. We have certain information of the choice of 24 whigs to 23 locos.

MISSOURI.—A slip from the Missouri Reporter, (L.) received at Baltimore, furnishes the following information. Twelve members to be heard from. To the House, 47 whigs are elected; 21 Benton-men, 10 Anti-Benton, and 10 doubtful. The whigs had but 26 members last year.

BEDFORD, (PA.) MASS MEETING.—The Bedford Enquirer gives a graphic account of the Whig Mass Meeting held there on the 7th inst. I numbered fully 3000. A large delegation attended from Cumberland, Md., composed mostly of members of the Clay Club, with their banners, &c. Among the speakers were the Hon. T. M. T. McKennan, Hon. Walter Forward, and Hon. A. Stewart, who severally addressed the vast concourse assembled at "Barclay's Grove" adjoining the town. At night, an immense crowd assembled at the public square, where addresses were again delivered by Moses Hampton, Esq., of Pittsburgh, and George A. Pettie, Esq., of Cumberland.

☞ Mr. Thomas Chrystal—the shoemaker who lately addressed a locofoco meeting at Belleville with so much effect, has written an able letter in reply to an invitation to make a speech at a Polk and Dallas gathering in which he renounces all sympathy with the self-styled democratic party, and declares his intention to vote for Clay and Frelinghuysen. Thus do the mighty, the boss and editor of the country, show their gratitude to men and independence

LORD PITT.—We learn, says the Charleston Courier of the 21st, that an old woman named Almond, died at or near Indian Field, in this city on the 10th inst., at the [illegible] old.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

☞ The examination of Henry Williams alias Taff and English John, charged with committing a robbery on board the barque Josephine, and of Parsotta Lopriste, the Spaniard, charged with receiving the stolen property will take place this morning before acting Recorder Caldwell.

☞ The examination of the negress Lucy and the colored boy Edward, charged with beating the incendiaries who fired Banks' Arcade, has been postponed until this morning before acting Recorder Baldwin.

☞ Charles Eggar, who was arrested on a charge of larceny, has been sent to the workhouse by Recorder Genois, for a time not "named in the bills," as an incorrigible and thieving ragabond.

☞ Manuel Zamora, and his brother Jean Zamora were yesterday sent before the Criminal Court, by Recorder Genois, to answer to the charge of having about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, unprovokedly assaulted, beaten and severely injured another f. m. c., named B. Felix, a painter, who keeps a store on Chartres street

☞ F. Cubicke, was arrested yesterday evening, by Captain Youenes, on a charge of larceny. The particulars of this case are somewhat singular, but we forbear giving them until Recorder Genois has investigated the matter.

☞ We are informed that an affray took place yesterday morning in the Parish Prison, between two prisoners, in which one of them was severely stabbed, and he now lies in a dangerous state.

☞ A man named Brown, a laborer on the Levee, residing near St. Mary's Market, who we learn has been some time sick, died yesterday, and as he had on the evening previous been engaged in a fight with a man named Purcell, living in the same neighborhood, a Coroner's Inquest was held on the body, and it being the opinion of the medical men who attended the Inquest that the man's disease was a sufficient cause of death, yet the blows he had received in the fight might have accelerated his demise, a verdict in accordance with the facts was rendered by the jury. Purcell has not yet been arrested.

MEXICO.

Two individuals who arrived yesterday from the interior of Mexico, state with apparent certainty, that from 16,000 to 18,000 Mexican troops had assembled at San Louis de Potosi, some three weeks since, and were on their way to begin the contemplated invasion of Texas. We are informed from the same source, that the army in question was well provided with artillery and cavalry.

☞ We have received from J. C. Morgan, of the Literary Depot, Exchange Place, a copy of "The Smugglers of the Swedish Coast; or, The Rose of Thistle Island," a romance, by Miss Emilie Carlen. Translated from the original Swedish, by G. C. Hebbe & H. C. Deming. Miss Carlen is a competitor of Frederick Bremer in the field of romance, and is said to be a powerful writer.

NEW CONSTITUTION.—The vote on the new Constitution of New Jersey was taken a few days ago. There is no doubt of its ratification by the people.

[illegible] EXPLOIT.—The following is from the three sea [illegible] of the 19th inst: "Sometime between [illegible] daylight yesterday morning, some villians [illegible] a sailing sail boat, the Henry Clay, belonging to [illegible] members of a Fishing Club from the City Block, and filling her with shavings, set her on fire, and let her go adrift. She was burnt to the water's edge.

☞ Hon. ABBOTT LAWRENCE, of Boston, has contributed $2,000 to the English High School of that city, towards the establishment of a permanent fund, the interest of which is to be applied to the bestowment of prizes among the pupils who may excel in the various branches of learning taught in that valuable institution.

HORRIBLE MURDER.—In Baltimore, on the 18th instant, some lads were standing on the wall of the railroad, near Bath street bridge. A butcher named David Andrews, joined them, in a most unprovoked conversation, and the boys began to pledge him, when he drew a butcher knife and plunged it into the head, above the right eye, of a youth about 17 years of age, named John Breaman. The knife was driven with so much force, that great exertion was required to pull it out. The lad died in a few hours. Andrews was arrested and committed.

EXTRA SESSION.—The National Intelligencer in noticing the report of the probability of an Extra Session, contains a powerful article on party spirit and its workings from which we quote the following concluding passage. The allusion will of course be understood:

"The poet Keats is said to have died of criticism, but for a statesman to perish in that way is something new. We ourselves know one that has stood that sort of thing more than thirty years—the last twenty of which has been an incessant storm of lacerations and fair hits. Yet when has he ichnicked before it all? And lo! what counsels at last? Something for which it was worth while to withstand asbestos! the populous North, the demogogue rear, the howl of slanderers, the very thunder of an almost unresisted tyrant. The tempest has blown away its own breath, overwhelming many that aided to raise and thought to ride forever on it: the winds have sunk into but the glad murmur of a people's returning admiration; the serene skies look out once more; and though the croak of many a democratic frog still attempts to chide the returning sun, far above the flying clouds springs up to sight, once more, the landmark of the nation which they have assailed and hidden in vain—

As some tall cliff that lifts its awful form,
Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm,
Though round its base the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head"

THE ELECTIONS.

The mail yesterday does not add materially to the accounts published heretofore, though it confirms the fact of a whig majority on joint ballot in the Indiana Legislature.

KENTUCKY.—We stated yesterday that Mr. Owsley's majority in 81 counties was 6,581. We have reason to believe from the returns published in the Louisville papers, and transferred to those of Baltimore, that the majority is larger. The Louisville Journal of the 15th instant puts it down at 8,000, and says it will not be greatly varied by the vote of the remaining counties.—The returns for members of the Legislature, as far as heard from, show the election of 8 whigs and 3 locos to the Senate, and of 61 whigs and 22 locos to the House. Whig majority 47 thus far. The remaining counties will probably increase the majority. Last year the whig preponderance was much smaller.

INDIANA.—Some of the papers make the Senate a tie others give the locos two majority, and others again state that the whigs have two majority. All the papers concur in allowing the whigs a majority in the House and a majority on joint ballot, which gives them a United States Senator. The Cincinnati Atlas of the 15th contains the latest, and, we doubt not, the most correct information. It says:

We deem it unnecessary to continue our Legislative tables. That of the House, published in yesterday's Atlas, we believe to be correct to a figure, except that of Vermillion, which, after all, as we learned by letter yesterday, has chosen Mr. Holcsteiter, (L. C.) an exceedingly popular man, by a majority of 36 votes. The whig Senator (Mr. Foley) is chosen by a majority of 20. With this correction, our table should stand 23 whigs, 41 locofocos. Since then we have returns from the following counties:

	1843. W.	L.	F.	1844. W.	L.	F.
In 73 counties, corrected,	44	51		53	41
Fulton and Marshall,	0	1		1	1
	44	52		54	42

The Senate, we think, will show a tie on a party vote—though three members are still to be heard from. We have certain information of the choice of 24 whigs to 23 locos.

MISSOURI.—A slip from the Missouri Reporter, (L.) received at Baltimore, furnishes the following information. Twelve members to be heard from. To the House, 47 whigs are elected; 21 Benton-men, 10 Anti-Benton, and 10 doubtful. The whigs had but 26 members last year.

BEDFORD, (PA.) MASS MEETING.—The Bedford Enquirer gives a graphic account of the Whig Mass Meeting held there on the 7th inst. I numbered fully 3000. A large delegation attended from Cumberland, Md., composed mostly of members of the Clay Club, with their banners, &c. Among the speakers were the Hon. T. M. T. McKennan, Hon. Walter Forward, and Hon. A. Stewart, who severally addressed the vast concourse assembled at "Barclay's Grove" adjoining the town. At night, an immense crowd assembled at the public square, where addresses were again delivered by Moses Hampton, Esq., of Pittsburgh, and George A. Pettie, Esq., of Cumberland.

☞ Mr. Thomas Chrystal—the shoemaker who lately addressed a locofoco meeting at Belleville with so much effect, has written an able letter in reply to an invitation to make a speech at a Polk and Dallas gathering in which he renounces all sympathy with the self-styled democratic party, and declares his intention to vote for Clay and Frelinghuysen. Thus do the mighty, the boss and editor of the country, show their gratitude to men and independence

LORD PITT.—We learn, says the Charleston Courier of the 21st, that an old woman named Almond, died at or near Indian Field, in this city on the 10th inst., at the [illegible] old.

COL. WM. L. STONE.

We copy from the N. Y. Express the following brief notice of the life of Col. STONE:

"He was born in Otsego county, in this State, and served his apprenticeship in the office of the Farmers' Journal, at Cooperstown. During the war, and before he became of age, he contributed largely to the editorial columns of that and other political papers. His habit of writing was begun early in life, and it is to this habit that we are indebted for his constant and useful labors. Soon after, or during the war, Col. Stone removed to Hudson, where he conducted with great efficiency a paper in that city. Immediately after the war, Theodore Dwight, the venerable editor of the Connecticut Mirror, one of the best papers in New England, removed to Albany and commenced the publication of the Albany Daily Advertiser. Col. Stone became his successor in conducting the Mirror, at Hartford, and continued the high reputation of that paper for two or three years. In 1817, Mr Dwight relinquished the Albany Daily Advertiser and removed to the city, and with one of the editors of the paper, commenced the publication of the New York Daily Advertiser. Col. Stone was again Mr Dwight's successor in the Albany Daily Advertiser, a paper which he continued to edit with great ability, during a very fierce and violent political contest, and at the period when such men as De Witt Clinton, Ambrose Spencer, Elisha Williams, Judge W. W. Van Ness, D. D. Tompkins, and a host of similar minds, guided the political destinies of this State. In the small compass to which we are confined by the requirements, that annal this galaxy of talent, he was relied on with others to sustain his political friends. Col. S. continued at Albany until about the year 1820 or 1822, when he, with the present proprietor, Francis Hall, purchased the Commercial Advertiser and Spectator of the late Zechariah Lewis, and since that time he has been the able and efficient editor of that paper. For more than twenty years he has filled the editorial chair of a journal that was established by that extraordinary bibliographer, Noah Webster, and it is no slight credit to his talents, that this journal which has always stood high, has, under his labors, increased in circulation and in repute."

WHAT THEY CAN AND WHAT THEY CAN'T.—The following brief article, from the Louisville Journal, expresses a great deal in a very little space, and characterizes the locofoco party so truthfully as any thing we have seen. The editor might have added that they could find constitutionality—and in the Constitution, but in no other territory to the United States, but none whatever for improving what we have, or that which they would add to it:—

"It is a little remarkable, that the locofoco leaders cannot find constitutional authority for any thing that is good, but can find abundance of it for every thing that is bad. They cannot find constitutional authority for making a bank, they cannot find constitutional authority for opening roads and improving rivers; they cannot find constitutional authority for the protection of and encouragement of American industry; they cannot find constitutional authority for the distribution of the land money among the States (which is before us); but they can find constitutional authority for the Rhode Island rebellion, they can find constitutional authority for a big treasury and its big treasurers, they can find constitutional authority for indiscriminate spending of money, they can find constitutional authority for defeating the Congressional representation, they can find constitutional authority for setting at naught a law of Congress, and creating representation in defiance of that law, they can find constitutional authority for obliterating the records of the Senate, by way of flattering a party leader; they can find constitutional authority for tampering on the right of petition, they can find constitutional authority for quartering on the country a standing army of 200,000 men;—in short, they can find constitutional authority for every thing that is bad, but they cannot find constitutional authority for any thing that is good—in fact a dispensation of Providence has been exercised in the very opposite direction. The mode in which India rubber, or gum, elastic are manufactured at Para, in Brazil—(the place from which, we believe, they are obtained exclusively)—is thus described in a letter to the New York Journal of Commerce from an American citizen who visited the interior where the operation is carried on:

We found Senhor Anjolico a family, like himself, very hospitable and very talkative. After the usual civilities were shown over the place, and entering the neighboring forest, were shown the CAOUTCHOUC tree. The gum, in general, is found in the highest state of purity on the top branches, then branching, run up fifteen feet higher. The trunk is about six inches long—thin, and shaped like a keel of a pear boat. The Indians working by the number of hands, or hands were made by them, and a regular factory, that idea a cow
