In the SENATE on the 27th, various positions were presented, among which was one by Mr. Johnson, of La., from James B. Davenport, asking confirmation of his title.

Mr. Webster's resolution relative to the communiand after some discussion was postponed till the 29th The bill to establish post routes in Texas was read a third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. Fairfield, the Senate took up the bill providing for an augmentation of the naval force of the United States. Mr. Hannegan moved as an aunendment to the bill, to apply the proceeds of the salest of the jubble lands, amounting to two militors and seventy seeven dollars, to build ten additional steam weakled for An intergrating delater followed. Mr. Fairfield supported the bill upon various grounds. If was should ensue, the proposed increase would be indispersable—if peace should be preserved, our widely increasing commerce and the protection due ourselves would fully justify the measure. Mr. Pairfield alluded to the Oregon controversy, maintained our indisputable right to the whole territory, argued that Great Britain would not recede and was preparing to enforce her claim, and that it was contained our indisplatable right to the whole territory, argued that Greag Britism would not recede and was preparing to enforce her claim, and that it, war our bounden duty to place the country in a state of fitting defence. He wasopposed to Mr. Hannegan's amendment and could not vote for it.

Mr. Benton nealt addressed the Senate. The bill had been brought forward as a war measure, and was advocated as a war measure. They were now, it appeared, brought to a point when words were to stand for things; when the Senate of the United States was to protounce, in the face of Europe and the world, their opinion on the question of approaching war. That was the question, and he was one ready to pronounce upon it, and he did so most emplatically, by going against the bill in toto. Mr. B further opposed the bill, because it would require an apenditure of thereies or fourteen millions. If a peace measure, it was insufficient. He was unwelling to punge into a war measure, when the state of things around us was peace. Mr. B. moved to defer the consideration of the bill to the first Monday in May. Mr. Dickinson of N. V. defended the bill, conceiving it necessary had just.

mr. incurion of the vice energed the oil; conceiving it necessary had just. Though war was not at this moment anticipated, our foreign relations were in a critical position, and it was abundantly necessity to put the country in a proper state of defence. Mr. Thomason, of Pennsylvana, went into a specel of great humor, which kept the committee in convul stons of merriment. He ridiculed the probability of a war, and showed many reasons why we need no apprehend staconing, nor fear it if it came.

Mr. Holmes, of South Carolina, is next entitled to the floor.

and relation to the bill. Mr. Speight then took the foor, and the Senate, after a brief executive meason, adjourned. In the Horse or Representatives, that body having gone into Commutee of the Whole, and resumed the Origin question, Mr. Owen of Indiana, addressed the commutee at length in vindication of the course of our Government on the Origin question, addressed the commutee at length in vindication of the course of our Government and quotations in support of his british clauns, which he contended were stretly destined to foundation. He repelled were stretly destine of foundation the repelled were stretly destined to be; but expires at his confidence like the were not as ready for war as a free Government ever ought to be; but expires at his confidence like the week was likely to grow out of the executing state of things. Mr. O. was followed by Mr. Thurman, of Ohio who went unto an argument to show that the giving of notice for the termination of the convention for the point occupancy of Oregon belonged to the legislative department of the Government, and that the leaving it to the discretion of the President would be in the atmost degree indiscret and dangerous. He gave sundry reasons why such notice ought to be given and secuted the idea of waiting till preparation should first be made, by arming our fortifications and buildirst bemade, by arming
