City Intelligence. UNITED STAYES CIRCUIT COURT.—P. B. Conrad. amignee of Thomas Banks, vs. Wells, Forgey and others:—The arguments of Messrs. Hunt and Withdoontinued until three o'clock yesterday. Mr. Wilde will conclude to-day. Mr. Hunt contended, on behalf of the defendants, that at the time of the conveyances made by Thomas Banks to the defendants, viz: a few months before the torset went into banks until the first of the torset went into banks until the conveyance. made by Thomas Banks to the defendants, viz. a few months before the former went into bankruptcy, he had property to an amount, at a reasonable valuation, more than sufficient to pay all his debts: that consequently the conveyances were not made in contemplation of bankruptcy. He further contended, that by the evidence it appeared that the playfulf himself, who was familiar with the affairs of Banks, gave his opinion at the time that the latter had sufficient to pay his debts.

ficient to pay his debts.

St. Charles Teratre.—Mrs. Mowatt takes abenefit at this theatre to-night, and we sincerely trust that this accomplished and smiable lady may have an overflowing house. We have heard it stated that Mr. Crisp performing with this lady, is detrimental to her success on the stage. We are of opinion that Mrs. Mowatt has been so long acting with Mr. Crisp that they must now be familiar with each other's mahner, and so far aid each other as to make "points" in a piece tell with great force and effect. Though Mr. Crisp is not a first-rate actor, yet he is a very respectable one, and as such, can by no means, throw any impediment in the way of Mrs. Mowatt's advancement. If Mrs. Mowatt never becomes a great actress, it will not be owing to her having acted with Mr. Crisp. The pieces selected are Romeo and Juliet and the Weathereock.
