THE FIRST CONCERT of the Sloman family on Monday night attracted a respectable, though we regret to say, rather a slender audience. The advanced state of the season, the oppressive warmth of the weather and the all absorbing excitement on the subject of and the all absorbing excitement on the subject of our Foreign Relations, shabless operated adversely to the success of these distinguished artists. Such, however, was the enthusasan creased by their truly brilliant and beautiful performances, that we indulgs arrong hopes that not even these causes will bereafter interfere to prevent the public from patentising their exhibitions with a liberality commensurate with the claims of the interesting and gifted family.

Of the Misses SLONAN it may be remarked that while both manifest vocal and instrumental talest of a link order, the eldest (Miss E. SLONAN) is in all respects the superior artist. As a performer on this very effective but difficult instrument—the Harp—the ranks higher than any we have ever heard. Hat touch combines associating vigor, purity, buoyancy and precision with a rapidity of fingering that can only be the result of careful study and natural genius. To these qualities must be added exquisite sensibility and tenderness, and that unrestrained enthusiasans to ber profession which imparts a wrapt intensity to her napiration and light up her countenance with the most vivid and varied emotions.
