Tuesday morning, October 27, 1846. The downfall of the locofoco party in Pennsylvania places them in a sad quantury, as regards the policy hereafter to be pursued on the question of protective uties. The act of 1846 was passed in defiance of entreaties and the threats of the Pennsylvs elegation. Their own political brethrenintegration. Their own pointed distinct order own pointed from the following democrats, like, Foster, Broadhead, Finoneson, and others, warned them solemnly that demosylvania would be lost to them should they have the characters manning. persist in forcing upon her this obnoxious measure. Nevertheless the majority did persist, and the bill be-came a law. The dominant party were actuated by one of two motives—either from the constant habit of idering Pennsylvania safe for the democracy and from the unfailing alacrity with which she had er responded to the call of party leaders, they beireved that her credulity might still be successfully practised upon, and that they might easily soothe her emporary discontent and bring her back to her wont-ed drudgery in the harness. If such were not the otive of locofocoum, it was animated by a higher rinciple—by the determination to carry out Free Trade doctrines, regardless of consequences and eckless of the injury which the party would sustain by the discovery in Pennsylvania of the atrocious fraud palmed upon her yeomanry in 1844. It is more than probable, however, that the first of the cause assigned was the real one. The locofocos thought Pennsylvania too docile, too well trained, to rebel.— Mr. SEVIER, of the United States Senate, declared as much, when he affirmed that Pennsylvania would always vote the democratic ticket. The party thought was a patient and uncomplaining pack-horse which, though over-laden, would meekly obey the lash and follow wherever locolocoism listed. We shall ere long have an opportunity of discover-ing whether these were not the real motives which ed the locofoco party to repeal the tariff of 1849

If the new Tariff be the legitimate offspring of prin ple, no temporary reverses should tempt its framers alter it. Concessions in favor of this or that parfeular interest are out of the question. The locofocos have chosen deliberately to unfurl the standard of Free Trade, and they must stick to their colors, or exhibit a speciacle of flagrant political treachery and cowardice. We trust that for the sake of their own ney, if they would not be made the jeer and scotl of all parties, they will not seek to palter and traffe with the great principles they profess to advo-No truckling for expediency's sake! No eftotts to wan back Pennsylvania by increasing the du-ties on coal and iron'. Such a departure from their owed faith would be utterly despicable. The locolocos have chosen formally to repudiate the doctrine of Protection, and to enact a Tariff law based conedly upon the principles of Free Trade. When ever they become convinced that they have wander ed from the genuine tenets of a sound political econo hem repeal their miserable abortion and recivama by protecting her interests, while reci

No Southern demo would sanction it; and so well do we think of whigs of Pennsylvania that we are persuaded by would spurn the bribe it offered them. Win. Triturins in Pennsylvania.—The whigs have carried the city of Philadelphia. They have done so for many years past.

DROWNED.—An inquest was held yesterday grorn-g on the body of a black man, name unknown, and drowned in the Mississippi, opposite Hospital reet. Verdict accordingly. THE DUEL CASE—The parties engaged in the late uel, fought with small swords in the Orleans Bell toom, will be brought this evening, at 5 o'clock, beare Recorder Genois, for examination.

No WATER.—We understand that the Water Works Company have corked up tight the fountain or hydram aitualed at the extremily of the Thémé Market. This will tall rather heavily, especially during this dry spell, upon some poor inhabitants of the neighborhood, who had till now a fall supply of water free gratis pro deo. Would it not be possible to let them have the liquid at the same price as before?—They would return thanks to God and the Company.

BEFORE RECORDER BALDWIN .- Margaret Dunn, ac-cused of perry larceny, was committed for thirty days of the Workhouse, as being a vagrant as well as a hief hief. Workhouse, as terms to sell an article sup-hief. Henry Frisberger, for offering to sell an article sup-bosed to be stolen, also got thirty days to the Work-house on the same charge of vagrancy. We copy the following intelligence from the St.

Gen. Kearney, with shout 1000 men, left Santa Fe on the 3rd, for the Rio Abano, or the settlements below on the Rio Grande. It was understood that he would deacend to Socorro where he was to erect a fortification. On his route he intended to visit Albuquerque, seventy-five miles below Sants Fe, the resdence of ex-Governor Armijo. The position of the ex-Governor was not known. By some it was thought that he had gone south; others believed he was still in the riginity. Gen. Kearney expected to be absent on this expedition from fifteen to twenty

About three hundred men, with all the horses and cattle, not on duty, had been ordered to the Calestelocreek, fifteen or twenty miles from Santa Fe. Gen. Kearney was erecting a fort on an amineace to the northeast of Santa Fe, by throwing up a strong embankment, and covering the exterior with sun-dried bricks. A good road had been constructed up the cunicance to the fort. Its position is such as to command the town and surrounding country. The work was progressing rapidly. The General was rapidly winning the good opinion of the Meakana by his mild and conciliatory course. All dread of the army was fast leaving the minds of the people, and manyof them seem pleased with the change of Government, especially as Gen. K. had promised them protection from the Indians.

Upon the arrival of Cot Price's regiment and the battalion of Mormone, Gen. Kearney would set out for California. It was understood that the expedition would be divided into three parise, and would pursue different routes, until they arrive near the Pacific coast. One party was to take the northern route by Abique to the Green river, a branch of the Colorado. Another division would go by way of Socorro and descend the Rio Gila. The third would depart from the Passo Del Norte, and thence across towards the mouth of the Rio Gila. The third would depart from the Passo Del Norte, and thence across towards the mouth of the Rio Gila. The work of the country over which either expedition must ravel, is represented as burren and destitute of game and of subsistance for homes.

Dr. Craig met the advance of Col. Price's regiment leaving the Cimarone river. Col. P. had been sick, but was much better. He was two days march in the rear of the regiment, and from ten to fifteen days march from Sants Fe. The advance of the Mormon battalion.

Dr. Craig's carmy was attacked by a small party of Indians on the Arkansus—supposed to be the same that killed Sign Crain and they fled. Their purpose, it is supposed, was to steal the company's stock.

A few of the traders at Santa Fe had opened their goods, and were retailing to the citizens and troops. Those who took out stock for Chibushua, were suit at Santa Fe. Gen. Kearney would not permit them to leave until certain intelligence had been received to leave until certain intelligence had been received.
