MESSRS. P. BLANCHARD & ACHILLE MILON, Surgeon Dentists of the Faculty of Paris and New Orleans, have the honor to inform their clients, that since the 1st of June, they have united their offices at No. 44 Royal street, between Bienville and Customhouse (residence of Dr. Milon).
They regret much they are under towards various institutions and the Convent of the city, to which they are attached, compel them to absent themselves a few days in the course of the month. They have, therefore, deemed it expedient to form a Partnership, as well on their own account as on account of their numerous friends, in order that one of the two may be always in town, ready to receive all persons who may honor them with their confidence. The superiority of their work, and the care and scrupulosity exhibited by them, induce them to hope for a continuance of the patronage of the public. 18

☞ This being THANKSGIVING DAY, no paper will be issued from the office of the Bee tomorrow.

THE MAIL filled yesterday from beyond Charleston.

Thanksgiving.

The solemnity of this day will be rendered more impressive by the reflection that the people of nearly every State in the Union have by common consent set it apart as a period of praise, thanksgiving and prayer. On this day millions of choral voices ascend in pious hymns of gratitude to the Giver of all Good for his bounteous and unceasing mercies. A nation that from the hour of their independent political existence seem to have been the peculiar subject of Divine care, have chosen this day to acknowledge their dependence on the protecting kindness of Heaven and to send up the incense of grateful piety to the throne of omnipotence.

It is fitting that every community should from time to time be called upon to remember that man is but an atom in the infinitude of space, and that the world he inhabits is but a speck in the immensity of the universe; but that though feable and powerless and helpless and insignificant in himself, he is yet the object of fostering care and endless beneficence to the all wise and merciful being who overhead this earth and all that it contains out of the dark and formless void; that breathed into the human race which he placed upon it, a spark of that divine intelligence of which He is the great source and fountain; that made him a moral and accountable being; that taught him the excellence of virtue, and bade him shun the allurements of vice. Though this globe of ours may be but as a grain of sand, compared with the innumerable and mighty spheres revolving at inconceivable distances in the abyss of space, yet as a portion of the universe under the guidance of, and protected by an almighty arm; we should not for an instant forfeit that protection by evil deeds, or cease to acknowledge the goodness of our Maker, and tender thanks for the manifold blessings we enjoy.

Peculiarly does it become the American people to evince their gratitude to God. To us Heaven has been prodigal of bounty. Every source of comfort, every external element of happiness has been ours.—Our country throughout its wide extended space has been marked by fertility, and the earth has yielded a bounteous harvest to the labors of the husbandman. While in the overcrowded populations of the Eastern Hemisphere want and misery have combined with misgovernment to bring sorrow and suffering upon the masses, in our own favored land plenty makes the people gladsome, and free institutions, with a liberty that knows no restraint save the wholesome barriers of the law, present us with political privileges inestimable in themselves, and which enhance the value of physical comforts. We are twice blessed—happy at once in the possession of every means and appliance for the enjoyment of life, and doubly happy that our minds and bodies are alike unfettered, and that we owe no human servitude for the gifts of God.

Let us then assemble beneath the dome consecrated to the Almighty and pour forth our gratitude for these priceless evidences of his goodness. Let us send forth the song of thanks, and as the murmur of many voices raised in psalms of love and harmony, wings its way to the fretted roof, and the sound lingers among the vaulted arches and ascends the tapering spires of His Temple, we may believe that no richer incense, no purer perfume, no rarer fragrance can be offered to Heaven, than the outpouring of the heart in token of grateful adoration.

Some few inaccuracies occured in the report published Mr. WEBSTER's recent speech in the Whig meeting at Faneuil Hall.

The passage which was otherwise reported, should have read as follows:—

"It is not the habit of the American people, nor natural to their character, to consider the expense of a war which they deem just and necessary; but it is their habit, and belongs to their character, to inquire into the justice and necessity of a war in which it is proposed to involve them.

"In a war like this, commenced by the authority of a President alone, while we look earnestly at the origin, we may properly regard, also, its probable expense."

Several loco-foco presses attacked Mr. Webster violently, in consequence of having, naturally enough followed the first report of his speech which said that the Americans were in the habit of counting the cost of war. Now that they know that Mr. W. said nothing of the kind, will these journals do him the justice to rectify their error. We shall see.

MEXICAN NAMES.—The proper pronunciation of the names of several impending Mexican places is given in an exchange paper as follows:—Chihuahua is pronounced Che-wau-wau, equal accent on the last syllable. Saltillo, Sahl-te-yo, accent on the last syllable. San Luis Potosi, Sahn Loo-is Po-to-se, accent on the second syllable of Potosi. Guanajuato, Guan-a-wat-o, half accent on the first, and full accent on the third syllable.

We find this valuable guide, the sound of the papers. If any body follows the directions contained therein, all we can say is he will pronounce Spanish after a fashion unknown to Cervantes, Lope de Vega and Quevedo. Strike out the final w, in the the two last syllables of Che-wau-wau, and the name will be correctly pronounced. The first syllable of Saltillo must be sounded exactly as in English. In San Luis Potosi the inflection of the voice must be placed on the last syllable, and the Spaniards usually write the word with a grave accent over the letter i. In Guanajuato, the accent is on the third syllable, and the letter g or h has a guttural sound somewhat stronger than the x in English, when fully aspirated.

The following inklings of news, reported and authentic, are from the capital correspondent of the Charleston Courier:—

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.

The great opposition of New York, who took the whole of the five millions at one and a half per cent. for two or three days, been the lion of the hour. He has been the subject of much envy on the part of the smaller capitalists, whose bids he has superseded.

Mr. Walker congratulated himself on enlisting such financial aid. It was generally supposed that the bid was made purely on foreign account. But this is a mistake, as it turns out. The bid was made solely on individual responsibility.

Edward H. Kershaw, having made the most favorable bid for the government loan, was notified by Mr. Walker on Friday, that his bid was accepted; and he will proceed to place the sum of three millions with the Assistant Treasurer in New York, on Monday morning, as the Government wished to use the money.

A messenger was also sent by the Department to complete the arrangements with this New York firm-child. The other bidders found that they were obliged to give way to this monopoly, and bore their disappointment, as well as they could.

Mr. Walker, in person, has been busy for three days, in telegraphing orders to New York, in respect to this offer of Mr. Kershaw's.

But this morning, the Secretary received a telegraphic despatch, stating that Mr. Kershaw was a man of straw, and had no foreign connexions, nor any desirable cause of failure in his character. The Intelligencer of Monday, mentioned that he was a hitherto unknown to fame; but this is not exactly so, for the advices received by the Secretary, represent him as possessing much notoriety—having been once indicted for swindling.

He had or could not have been rejected on this account, had he made it good; but it was represented to the Secretary that he had not deposited a copper, and that no one would trust him with a copper. The case, therefore, being thus, the disadvantageous offer, and the bond upon the million made at par, and a shade above. Of these he has more than enough to complete the loan.

The Secretary now threatens to prosecute Kershaw for banking high, and intentionally deluging the public treasury. The Secretary considers it as a sort of treasonable plot to embarrass the operations of the government in time of war.

The matter will make a great laugh in Wall street, to-day.

The official account of the Alvarado affair was received last night by the Government. The discomfiture or abortion is reported to be more than it was represented. We shall hear in a day or two, when Commodore Perry met with better fortune at Tampico.

To proceed upon Tampico will be more successful, as it is large.

The truth is that we have no vessel in the squadron that was well adapted to this species of service. The Fairwind could have done it, and her prolonged propeller is in the way now.

In the mean manner the marines, who have been drilled as infantry, will land and march into the place.

Some suppose that if we take Tobasco and Alvarado, we can hold them, when our force will be withdrawn to Vera Cruz, until Mexicans can send down their troops from the capital.

We have every reason to believe, that a portion of Gen. Taylor's army will be withdrawn to Camargo, Matamoras or Tampico.

Gen. Worth will probably be ordered to Tampico.—Gen. Taylor will not move at present further south.

Gen. Scott will probably be ordered to Vera Cruz.
