FOR MAYOR.

A. D. CROXON.

The Provisional Government in France.

Our latest advices from Paris state that a Provisional Government had been established upon the ruins of the monarchy of Louis Philippe. The members of the new cabinet are all persons of great distinction, some of them enjoy a world-wide reputation—our readers will probably be pleased to learn something of the individuals who have had the opportunity and energy to contrive a temporary Government out of the confused and chaotic masses which the overthrow of Royalty has produced.

First in the list is M. DUBOURG de Tilly, President of the Council. He is an old and very able statesman, of the Chamber of Deputies, a warm and resolute man. He took an active part in the three days of July, 1830, but was soon disengaged with the majority and broken faith of Louis Philippe, and became a violent opponent of the Government.

It is almost superfluous to speak of Lamartine, the poet and historian, the author of the great work on the Considore. He, too, was a member of the Deputies, and though figure in the opposition was regarded rather as a dreamy and ideal Government, than as a strong and active one. He is now the head of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

FRANCOIS, Minister of War, is well known and justly celebrated astronomer and mathematician, whose every thought is to bring up to the highest degree the military science in his views, and in his influence over his colleagues.

The seal of France is entrusted to M. Cavalier, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, a leader of the Red Republicans, with the real and popular support of the Chambre.

LOUIS, Minister of Finance, is a brother of the celebrated Guizot, who was a leader of the republican party in France. He is a man of great talents, and his success in the ministry is likely to be of great service to the country.

GABRIEL, Minister of the Interior, is a Deputy from Maine, and has been prominent as a leader of the Red Republicans in that chamber. He is an old and very able statesman, and the leader of the radical party in France.
