Deplorable Excesses.

Our duty, however, prompts us to make a few observations of public order, has been of late such as to disgrace the character of our city. Scarcely a night has passed without the theatre or even some other influences, and sometimes all of these combined in them, to fill with the dread of every good citizen. Scarcely a night the house situated at the corner of Conti and Bourbon streets known as the Varieties, or the Union Rough and Ready Club of the Sixth Ward, Second Municipality, commanded by Christopher Lally, was not the scene of the most infamous and disgusting excesses. It is unnecessary for the reader to be told to state that this was one of the earliest formed in our city; that it is composed in a great measure of seceders from the Democratic party; that the efficiency and capacity of its members had recommended them to the confidence of the Democratic party, and that the Administration party had selected as the depositaries of its principles. Whether these observations be the causes of the disgraceful scenes which have taken place at the Union Rough and Ready Club House, we will not undertake to say; but we will say that the public voice has pointed to them as
