An Official Notification by the Republic of Mexico.
FOREIGN AND HOME DEPARTMENT
His Excellency the President of the Republic has communicated to the Secretary of State
Jose Joaquin de Herrera, President of the Republic of Mexico, to the inhabitants thereof. Know ye, by these presents, that Congress has approved of the following decree:
Article 1. Authority to the Government to contract for a railroad from Vera Cruz to Tehuacan or the Capital—thence to some port on the Pacific, with such branches as may seem convenient to other towns, under the following conditions.
1. The railroad must be finished within fifteen years, and the work commenced before two, calculating the time from the date of the contract.
2. To contractors the following privileges will be conceded:
First. For the road and its branches an exclusive privilege for fifty years.
Second. The trains, materials, and necessary instruments for its construction, the coal which they may require until that of the country can be brought into use, to be free of duties; the whole subject to the tariff and the formalities therein prescribed.
Third. Should the railroad pass over any of the public domains, the same shall be granted to the contractors for the construction of the road and its appendages; beside, the preference will be given to them for the establishment of colonies on both coasts, subject to the laws which will be dictated to that effect.
Fourth. Such private property and ground as may be needed for the construction of the road and its stations will be granted, subject to the rules prescribed by para. 24, article 31 of the constitution—This privilege or right will only be available for provided the contractors cannot come to an amicable arrangement with the proprietors.
Fifth. Should the railroad, after years after the date of the contract, reach that part of the country beyond Vera Cruz, where the yellow fever does not prevail, the government will grant an extension of two more years on the exclusive privilege, and if it reaches the point indicated before the expiration of the two years, a privilege of one year more for each month thus saved.
Sixth. In case the contractors allow twenty per cent of the profits to the public treasury, further extension of thirty years will be granted on the exclusive privilege, and at the expiration of this extension the terms of article five must be complied with.
3. Foreigners engaged in the undertaking must understand that, from this fact alone, they are looked as such cease in all parts of the country where this work is carried on.
Art. II. The government will aid and the contract to him or to those whose proposals are the most advantageous, and in keeping with the conditions of the preceding principle. For this purpose, there will be allowed for the receiving of said proposals, for the contract, and for the government to prolong the time stated to three months.
Art. III. In order that the preceding articles may be more explicit, the government will give orders that this decree be translated and published in those newspapers which have the largest circulation in Europe and North America, and the time stated by article two will commence from the day the packet leaves with copies of this decree.
Art. IV. Should the contractors for the principal road think proper not to construct the branches which may have been selected by the government at the time of contract, such may be done by others.
Art. V. At the expiration of the exclusive privilege the railroad, trains, and buildings will become the national property.
Art. VI. In those places where the railroad follows the public roads enough space must be allowed, as per decree of the 20 September, 1842, to permit carriages, &c., to pass. The passengers intent with no obstructions in their transit, and the goods should they not wish to avail themselves of the railroad.
Art. VII. The Government has the power to construct for the railroads they may think proper in any part of the republic, should the contractors, on this exception as to the time of completion and the length of the privileges, in which they must be governed by the 2d and 3d articles of this decree, they may have to overcome in their construction.
Art. VIII. Should the contractors solicit any concessions, the Executive will, if he finds it expedient to grant them, demand authority from Congress to grant such.
Art. IX. The authority granted by this decree does not interfere whatever with the liberty the constitution grants to the different States for the opening and improvement of public roads.
