CONGRESS.

In the SENATE on the 10th, the bills from the House making appropriations for revolutionary and naval pensions were taken up and passed.

Mr. Soule called up the bill for the establishment of a line of mail steamers from New Orleans to Vera Cruz. He said it was important that the bill should be passed immediately, as he had just learned that the British steamers from Mobile to Vera Cruz had discontinued carrying the mails.

After some debate, the matter was postponed, and on motion of Mr. Douglass, the bill for the admission of California was taken up.

Mr. Yulee having still the floor, resumed his speech against the bill, and the debate was continued until the hour of adjournment.

In the HOUSE, the Texas Boundary bill from the Senate was received. The House then resumed itself into Committee of the Whole, and resumed the consideration of the Civil and Diplomatic Appropriation Bill.

Mr. Houston, of Del., concluded his speech in defence of the President's late message.

Mr. Moore then took the floor. He maintained that the President was bound in every sense of duty to lay before Congress and the country, such a message, after the threat made by Texas that she would deprive the United States by force of arms of the Territory conquered from Mexico in the late war. He said it would be the duty of the President to maintain, by the military force of the country, authority over the territory which Texas had set up a pretension to. There was never a more baseless claim than that by Texas. He would not vote one dollar to that State as a consideration for the relinquishment of the Territory in dispute; but would be willing to settle the matter by voting her the money as a consideration for the custom duties which had been relinquished by the act of annexation. And so far as he was concerned, should Texas commit one overt act of aggression against the United States, all peaceable negotiations should be at an end.

Mr. Haralson addressed the House an hour upon the slavery question generally, and in opposition to the views of the President in regard to the Texas boundary.

Mr. Pearce offered an amendment to the bill to provide for the payment of the claims of New Hampshire for interest on advances made by that State to the United States. He addressed the House in favor of the proposition.

Mr. Woodward then spoke an hour to show no difference between the Clayton Compromise bill and the Hamilton bill, in regard to slavery in the Territories, and to show the superiority of the former over the latter in giving protection to the rights of South. He defended the title of Texas to all the territory claimed by her.

Mr. Carey then moved that the Committee rise. The Committee rose accordingly.

Mr. Schenck moved the usual resolution to close debate at 2 o'clock Tuesday on the Civil and Diplomatic bill.

Pending this question, the House adjourned till Monday.

MISSOURI.

We have carefully figured up the returns from Missouri. They leave no doubt in our mind of the election of Messrs. DARBY, PORTER and MILLER, (Whigs) to Congress. From the two remaining districts the advices are imperfect, but they justify the hope that one, if not both, will be gone Whig. The Legislature thus far stands as follows: Whigs 13; Benton Democrats 10; Anti Benton 11. Whether the Whigs will obtain an absolute majority in the Legislature is still uncertain. It appears beyond question that BENTON will be in the minority.

MORE NEW COTTON.—Sunday's Mobile Tribune says: The steamer Clara brought in last evening two additional bales of the new crop. They were shipped from the planta'n of W. J. Herron, Clarke county, and came consigned to B. F. Marshall. The bales weighed about 150 pounds each. The samples show the cotton to be pretty well matured—quality, good middling.

☞ There is good reason to hope that the statue of Mr. Calhoun will be recovered from the wreck of the Elizabeth. All efforts to discover the position of the box enclosing it were without avail up to a day or two since, when it was ascertained by Lieut. Maxwell Woodhull. The box has not yet been raised, but has been identified by the cloth from its exterior.

NAVAL.—Lieut. Arthur Sinclair has been ordered to the U. S. ship Pennsylvania, and Lieut. John S. Taylor is to be attached to the Coast Survey.

The sloops Saratoga and St. Mary's are fitting out with despatch for sea.

The U. S. brigade Raritan, Captain Charles Stewart, is ready for sea, has received orders to sail immediately for the Pacific Station, and join the Squadron of Com. McCauley. The original design of making the Raritan, the flag ship of a new station in the South Pacific, we understand, is for the present abandoned.

☞ An attempt was made on Thursday week, to launch the great Government Floating Dry Dock at Portsmouth, (N. H.) but the ways broke when partly launched, and it now lies partly in the water and on the ways. Its weight is 3,200 tons.

LATE FROM PORT AU PRINCE—FRATRICIDE BY THE GOVERNOR.—We learn says the N York Evening Post of the 10th inst., from Captain Wood, of the schooner Mary Elizabeth, which arrived here this morning, that a brother of the Governor of Port au Prince, had been taken out by the Governor's orders, and publicly shot for speaking openly against the Governor and his proceedings. The fratricide took place on the 15th ult.

☞ Yankee Sullivan, the notorious prize-fighter, whom Tom Hyer bruised so badly a few months ago, has met with an untimely end, says a California correspondent of a New Jersey paper, at Sacramento City. Sullivan, it is stated, struck a man a blow with his fist, and was shot dead by the person assailed.

CANADA VS. STEAM.—The ship "Sea Witch," Geo. W. Fraser, sailed from New York for Valparaiso April 11, 1850. She took Lieut. Maury's route, crossed the Equator in twenty-two days, sighted Cape Frio the 30th day out, and the 25th day thereafter, notwithstanding she encountered a continuous gale from the westward for nine days off Cape Horn, she anchored in Valparaiso. Total number of days from New York fifty-nine. This is believed to be the shortest passage on record; it exhibits the unprecedented average speed under canvas of upwards of two hundred nautical miles a day, or more than ten statute miles an hour for fourteen hundred consecutive hours.

MR. TOOMBS' MAN.—The Republic says: It will be remembered that in the trance of Thursday night, this individual escaped. On Saturday morning he returned by himself to this city, and surrendered himself at the jail. He had wandered till then without relief. The only shot he had received was in the hand, making a rather bad wound, though not dangerous.

☞ We learn by special telegraph from Washington, says the N. Y. Courier & Enquirer of the 10th, that there is nothing in our difficulty with Portugal to excite serious apprehensions. Portugal offers to pay all claims of American citizens, excepting that for the loss of the General Armstrong, and this she at least consents to refer to any arbitrator our Government may choose to appoint. She originally proposed to submit to arbitration the claim she now volunteers to pay. In demanding his passports under these circumstances, Mr. CLAY must have felt constrained to act in strict accordance with the exact letter of his instructions, and perhaps withal under a keen sense of certain indignities of which he had been the subject. Nevertheless, all difficulties now admit of diplomatic arrangement, and it is confidently believed that the matter will be speedily and amicably settled.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT occurred in Philadelphia on the morning of the 10th inst. A large five storied brick double store house, on the North side of Granite street, below Dock, filled with Government stores, fell in with a crash that was heard for squares. At the time of the casualty, six men had just entered the building to commence the work of hoisting into the upper stories box sugars. One of these men was on the first story, two on the second, and three on the third. The first, Alexander Brady, being struck with some of the falling bricks and timbers, was forced clear across the street, and though severely hurt, escaped fatal injury. The other five were buried in the ruins. They were all extricated in about half an hour, and the injuries of two of them, Samuel Mickey and Michael Murphy, were found to be mortal. Two others, Thomas Mickey and John Hagerty, were seriously injured, and the fifth, Patrick Anderson, slightly.

The accident is attributed to the imperfect construction of the building.

Letter from Kossuth

The heroic defender of Hungarian freedom has addressed the following manly and touching letter to Gen. Cass. We publish it as written:

KUTAYA, (ASIA MINOR,) May 25, 1850.

General—It is already ten months that I have the anguish of exile to endure.

Nature has man's mind with wonderful elasticity endowed. It yields to many changes of fate, and gets accustomed even learns to inure itself—to the pangs of exile.

You remember you patrician of Venice, who, when banished, feigned high treason, that he might at least from the scaffold cast over the Rialto a glance once more.

This fond desire I can easily understand. I can do the more, because you Venetian, though exiled, knew his fatherland to be happy and great; but I, sir, carry the dolor of millions, the pains of a down-trodden country in my wounded breast, without having even the sad consolation to think that it could not otherwise be. Oh! had Divine Providence only from treason designed me to deserve, I swear to the Almighty God the threatening hillow of despotism would have fallen like foam from the rock or my brave people's breast. To have this firm conviction, sir, and, instead of the well-deserved victory of freedom, to find one-self in exile, the fatherland in chains, is a profound sorrow, a nameless grief.

Neither have I the consolation to have found instructions of this great at the hospitable hearth of a great free people, the contemplation of which, by the imposing view of freedom's wonderful powers, warms the despondent heart, making it in the destiny of mankind believe.

* * * * * * *

It is not a coward lamentation which makes me say all this, General, but the lively sense of gratitude and thankful acknowledgements for your generous sympathy. I wanted to sketch the darkness of my destiny, that you might feel what benefit must have been to me your beam of light, by which you, from the capital of free America, have heightened my night.

It was in Brousa, General, that the notice of your imposing speech has reached me: on your dear Hungarians, where Hannibal bewailed his country's conquest, and foretold the fall of its oppressors—Hannibal, exiled like myself, but still unbappier, as he was accompanied in exile by the ingratitude of his people, but I by the love of mine.

* * * * * * *

Yes, General, your powerful speech was not only the inspiration of sympathy for unmerited misfortune, so natural to noble, feeling hearts; it was the revelation of the justice of God—it was a leaf from the book of fate, universal for the world. On that day, General, you were sitting, in the name of mankind, in tribunal, passing judgment on despotism, and to show the superiority of the former over the latter in giving protection to the rights of South. He defended the title of Texas to all the territory claimed by her.

Mr. Carey then moved that the Committee rise. The Committee rose accordingly.

Mr. Schenck moved the usual resolution to close debate at 2 o'clock Tuesday on the Civil and Diplomatic bill.

Pending this question, the House adjourned till Monday.

[From the Buffalo Express]

DANIEL WEBSTER.—A week or ten days ago there appeared in the Republic newspaper of this city a part of a brief article in the Express, relating to the appointment of Mr. Webster as Secretary of State, accompanied by some rather harsh strictures upon the conduct and character of that gentleman. The Republic intimated or assumed that he was the author of that "thoroughly detestable political maxim 'of taking care of the rich and the rich will take care of the poor.'" We knew that Mr. Webster had never uttered any such sentiment as the Republic imputed to him, although the charge has been made times without number. But instead of resting it on our own unsupported assertion, we preferred to obtain his authority for the denial.

The following is his reply to a note directing his attention to the subject:

WASHINGTON, August 2, 1850.

DEAR SIR: I have received your letter of the 29th ult., and an extract from the Republic, of Buffalo, implying that I am the author of the political maxim which recommends "taking care of the rich, and the rich will take care of the poor." You are entirely correct in your impression. I am not the author of that saying, nor of any such doctrine or expression; on the contrary, I trust that the political labors of my life show that my object has been, steadily and always, to relieve the poor and laboring portion of the community from the evils which usually affect those classes in other countries, and to place them in this country in a situation of comfort and of independence.

Very respectfully yours,
DANIEL WEBSTER

BIRTHS AND DEATHS IN LONDON.—From a statistical table, just published, showing the the births and deaths for the first half of the present year in London, it appears that the total number of births, the week ending January 5 to June 29, amounted to 19,083 males and 19,292 females, being an increase of females over males of 209; whereas during the same period of last year the births of males were 19,377, and of females 18,892, being an increase of males over females of 485. From same return the number of deaths from all sources during the above period was 12,317 males and 12,140 females; from January to June last year the numbers were 14,040 males and 14,038 females. The total births during the present six months amounted to 38,375; the total deaths to 24,457, being an increase of births over deaths of 13,918.
