TEXAS.—A LEGISLATIVE MESSAGE.

We are indebted to the politeness of Governor [illegible] for an advance copy of his message to the Legislature of Texas, which assembled at the Capitol of that State, on the 12th inst. The Senate was [illegible] at Austin on the 12th inst., 19 Senators and 34 Representatives being present. On the 13th, Gov. BELL transmitted his message to them, which we proceed to lay before our readers.

The message commences by explaining the importance of the reasons which impelled the Executive to convoke the Legislature at so unusual a season of the year. All objections to the course he considers neutralized by the superior consideration that "a serious wound would be inflicted upon the honor of the State, and great detriment about to accrue to her most important interests." Gov. BELL then goes briefly over the two Houses a detailed narrative of recent events in connection with the attempt of Texas to organize the counties of Santa Fe, Worth, San Patricio and Presidio, at the mission of Major Neighbors, of the exploring expedition of Col. Monroe in that direction, and of the subsequent unpleasantness had by that officer to the effort to extend the jurisdiction of Texas over that territory. He discusses the conduct of Col. Monroe in instructions received by him from the General Government, to repudiate the rights and authority of Texas, and complains that he has not been punished by the President, as sanctioned the proceedings of Col. Monroe, had remained in command. This part of the message might [illegible] be considered as introduced by the supposed consideration that "a serious wound would be inflicted upon the honor of the State, and great detriment about to accrue to her most important interests." Gov. BELL proceeds briefly to answer and satisfactorily [illegible] Texas, and that in no respect [illegible] right to complain of a lack of courtesy and attention on the part of the Federal Government.

The Governor at the conclusion of these statements of the Legislature, what course of duty, honor, patriotism and a just appreciation of [illegible] obliged him to the consideration of [illegible] He arrives at the conclusion that [illegible] and embarrassing as they are, [illegible] it must be met [illegible] Nor can she, by further [illegible] with Federal authorities, [illegible] appeals to their generosity, [illegible] a long [illegible] or [illegible] that [illegible] yet be exacted [illegible] Texas, in the sanctity and dearest rights [illegible] a prudent maintenance of [illegible] We can commander all the rods and the last extremity.
