

S. E. WISNER, Proprietor
No. 22 Chambers Street,
New York.

DAILY PAPER (one year in advance) $25.00
COUPON BOOK (one year in advance) 50.00

In all cases the subscriber must give name and address, and we will not begin to publish until we receive it.

THE DAILY BEE
OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE STATE.
Monday Evening Book, No. 1, 1852.

FOR PRESIDENT
WINFIELD SCOTT,
or For Our President

FOR VICE PRESIDENT
WM. A. GRAHAM, or Our Vice President

Election for President and Vice.

First District—JAMES BOUTWELL, of St. Paul; (substitutes) J. H. WELCH, of Philadelphia.

Second District—CHRISTIAN ROSENBERG, of Orioles; (substitute) CYRUS DEPON, of Detroit.

Third District—GEORGE F. KIRK, of Asylum; (substitute) FREDERICK GARDNER, of Jefferson.

Fourth District—GEORGE W. WATERTON, of Livingston; (substitutes) J. B. BROWN, of West Feliciana.

Fifth District—ALEXANDER DE CLOUTRE, of St. Martin; (substitute) J. K. KELZ, of New Orleans.

Sixth District—JOHN R. COOPER, of Calcasieu.

Seventh District—GENERAL PIERCE, of the Union.

THE UNION—WHILE WE STAND.

The series of acts of the Slave Owners, commonly known as the recovery of fugitives from the Union, have been received and examined by us with the deepest interest.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We have been pleased to have it in our power completely to satisfy you that our political Bill was taken up and amended to meet your wishes.

Mr. Hamlin moved to take up the light-house bill, which motion was disagreed to.

The Senate then proceeded to the election of a Speaker. Franklin, of the Whig party, was chosen.

The following day, Mr. Hamlin moved to adjourn.

Mr. Moore and Landry, however, had referred their support to Gen. Scott. The following day, Mr. Hamlin moved to adjourn, and the following day, Mr. Moore and Landry, had referred their support to Gen. Scott. The following day, Mr. Hamlin moved to adjourn.

The Indian appropriation bill was then taken up, and the amendment made by the House, which was to prohibit the Indians from encroaching upon the public lands, was agreed to.

The bill was passed.

At the close of the session, we have never given a moment's thought to the slightest credence to the slender "Campaign Express."

Washington City, Aug. 21st, 1852.

To Henry Clay, Esq., Editor of "The Courier."

—As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.

Your obedient servant,

John Moore and Landry.

We the People of Louisiana:

It has been our desire and regret that we now announced in several Democratic papers of Louisiana, that we were opposed to, and would not support, the Slave Owners in their recovery of fugitives from the Union.

We were surprised, however, before leaving the Convention, to find that the Slave Owners, as far as their own interests were concerned, would not stand by their slaves, and that they would not even stand by their own slaves.

As there seems to be some doubt in relation to our position on the Presidential question, may we, in this paper, state our position, and that of our friends, with the address beneath.