THE DAILY BEE.

LOUISIANA ITEMS.

THE DAILY BEE.

Friday Morning, July 10, 1858.

THE TRUTH.

As the Press is the all pervading topic, we shall not attempt to say much upon it, but will content ourself with repeating a few facts which have come under our own observation. Within the last day or two, the difficulties which have existed between the Board of Health and a portion of the Press, have assumed a more serious aspect. The Board of Health, in its efforts to stay the progress of the Yellow Fever, has found it necessary to adopt certain measures, which, in the opinion of a portion of the Press, are calculated to injure the commercial interests of the city. The Board of Health, in the discharge of its duties, is responsible to the public for the measures it adopts, and the Press, in the discharge of its duties, is responsible to the public for the manner in which it criticises the acts of the Board of Health. Both are responsible to the public, and to the public alone. Neither has any right to dictate to the other, and neither has any right to complain of the other, so long as each confines itself to the discharge of its own duties. The Board of Health has no right to dictate to the Press what it shall say, or what it shall not say, and the Press has no right to dictate to the Board of Health what it shall do, or what it shall not do. Each is responsible to the public for the manner in which it discharges its duties, and to the public alone. The Board of Health has no right to complain of the Press, so long as the Press confines itself to the discharge of its own duties, and the Press has no right to complain of the Board of Health, so long as the Board of Health confines itself to the discharge of its own duties. The Board of Health is composed of gentlemen of character and standing, who have been appointed to their positions by the Mayor, with the approval of the Board of Aldermen, and who are responsible to the public for the manner in which they discharge the duties of their positions. The Press is composed of gentlemen of character and standing, who have established themselves in their positions by the manner in which they have discharged the duties of their positions, and who are responsible to the public for the manner in which they discharge the duties of their positions. The Board of Health has no right to dictate to the Press what it shall say, or what it shall not say, and the Press has no right to dictate to the Board of Health what it shall do, or what it shall not do. Each is responsible to the public for the manner in which it discharges its duties, and to the public alone. Neither has any right to complain of the other, so long as each confines itself to the discharge of its own duties. The Board of Health has no right to complain of the Press, so long as the Press confines itself to the discharge of its own duties, and the Press has no right to complain of the Board of Health, so long as the Board of Health confines itself to the discharge of its own duties. The Board of Health is composed of gentlemen of character and standing, who have been appointed to their positions by the Mayor, with the approval of the Board of Aldermen, and who are responsible to the public for the manner in which they discharge the duties of their positions. The Press is composed of gentlemen of character and standing, who have established themselves in their positions by the manner in which they have discharged the duties of their positions, and who are responsible to the public for the manner in which they discharge the duties of their positions. The Board of Health has no right to dictate to the Press what it shall say, or what it shall not say, and the Press has no right to dictate to the Board of Health what it shall do, or what it shall not do. Each is responsible to the public for the manner in which it discharges its duties, and to the public alone. Neither has any right to complain of the other, so long as each confines itself to the discharge of its own duties. The Board of Health has no right to complain of the Press, so long as the Press confines itself to the discharge of its own duties, and the Press has no right to complain of the Board of Health, so long as the Board of Health confines itself to the discharge of its own duties.

NEW ORLEANS PRICES CURRENT.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

COMMERCIAL.

PUBLIC NOTICES.