COTTON.
It is said by a reporter, correspondent of the New Orleans Times, that the culture of cotton is being attempted in Algeria. It was one month ago that the first cotton was sown there. The crop is now plucked, and the cotton is in various forms of blossoms, cannot be considered as ripe, but they are undoubtedly full in case some practice is made to gather them which will be done. Cotton is a new culture, and hence the experienced agriculturists who have been here for years have very little to go by in their judgment.

Mr. Hunt has recently said of the efficacy of the new tropical plant called "Verbenas," which he has been sending to the various states.

He has also said of the success of the new variety of cotton.
