A few weeks before the trini of Corral. Patrick Jordan, a native of Ireland, but lately from the city of London, a soldier in the American battalion, had, in a drunken frolic, shot a native bey, in order to exhibit his skill as a rideman. He was prespectly triad by court martial, found guilty and executed by his new comrades. Before he was abot, he addressed a feeling letter to his fellow-soldiers, General Corral signed his death warrant.
