THE DAILY GLOBE.
OFFICE 33 PARK PLACE.
NEW ORLEANS, MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 30, 1862. VOL. XVII—WHOLE NO. 10,014.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Arrival of Gen. Butler.

Gen. Butler arrived in this city on Saturday last, and assumed command of the Department of the Gulf on Sunday morning. He was received at the depot by Gen. Phelps and his staff, and escorted to the St. Charles Hotel, where he established his headquarters. The General was received with the most enthusiastic demonstrations of joy by the citizens, who thronged the streets in front of the hotel, and filled the air with cheers for the Union and the Stars and Stripes. Gen. Butler appeared on the balcony, and addressed the people in a few brief but appropriate words, which were received with cheers. He said he had come among them as a friend, and not as an enemy, and that he would protect all persons in the enjoyment of their rights, so long as they conducted themselves as peaceable citizens. He would not interfere with the relations between master and slave, except as they might affect the military operations of the Government. He would not molest any person in the exercise of his religious rights, and would protect the Catholic Church in the enjoyment of all its rights and privileges. He would not allow any person to insult the United States flag, or to utter treasonable words in his presence. He had come to restore the Union, and to punish those who had attempted to destroy it. He would not allow any person to be insulted or maltreated by the soldiers under his command, but would punish severely any one who should be guilty of such conduct. He had come to stay among them, and hoped that they would conduct themselves in such a manner as to render his stay agreeable. He would not allow any person to be insulted for his opinions, but would punish severely any one who should insult the United States flag in his presence. He had come to restore the Union, and would do so at all hazards. He would not allow any person to be insulted for his religious opinions, but would punish severely any one who should insult the United States flag in his presence. He had come to restore the Union, and would do so at all hazards. He would not allow any person to be insulted for his religious opinions, but would punish severely any one who should insult the United States flag in his presence. He had come to restore the Union, and would do so at all hazards.

Arrival of Gen. Phelps.

Gen. Phelps arrived in this city on Saturday last, and assumed command of the troops at Camp Parapet, on the Lake Shore, about seven miles from the city. He has a fine command, and is in the midst of a healthy locality. He has established his headquarters at the Camp, and will remain there for the present.

Arrival of Gen. Williams.

Gen. Williams arrived in this city on Saturday last, and assumed command of the troops at Camp Parapet, on the Lake Shore, about seven miles from the city. He has a fine command, and is in the midst of a healthy locality. He has established his headquarters at the Camp, and will remain there for the present.

Arrival of Gen. Weitzel.

Gen. Weitzel arrived in this city on Saturday last, and assumed command of the troops at Camp Parapet, on the Lake Shore, about seven miles from the city. He has a fine command, and is in the midst of a healthy locality. He has established his headquarters at the Camp, and will remain there for the present.

Arrival of Gen. Shepley.

Gen. Shepley arrived in this city on Saturday last, and assumed command of the troops at Camp Parapet, on the Lake Shore, about seven miles from the city. He has a fine command, and is in the midst of a healthy locality. He has established his headquarters at the Camp, and will remain there for the present.

Arrival of Gen. Sherman.

Gen. Sherman arrived in this city on Saturday last, and assumed command of the troops at Camp Parapet, on the Lake Shore, about seven miles from the city. He has a fine command, and is in the midst of a healthy locality. He has established his headquarters at the Camp, and will remain there for the present.

Arrival of Gen. Grant.

Gen. Grant