DAILY MORNING, AUGUST 22, 1856.

"The foundation of my preference is, that Millard Fillmore has administered the Executive Government with signal success and ability. His views, well tried and found true, faithful, national and conservative."—HENRY CLAY.

"Where he (Mr. Fillmore) is known, North or South, who can administration for the North, as for the South, or for the South as against the North, they are not the men who should be entrusted with the destinies of the country. For my own part I love my country, my whole country and nothing but my country."—MILLARD FILLMORE'S ADDRESS ON HIS LANDING AT NEW YORK.

The Mail failed yesterday from Mobile.

THE CANVASS—OUR DUTY.

The Fillmore Rangers on Saturday night was a remarkable evidence of the strength of MILLARD FILLMORE in this city. We believe, as well on the Hall numbers of gentlemen of the selections had uniformly democratic party, but who have no political connections, that of which we know no South, no North, no East, no West, but a true conception of nationality, and gathered together to rally to the only National ticket, hundreds of old-line Democrats, at the meeting in Lafayette Square, was cheering. It consisted of the substance, men from the Territory, and destroying their property.

"A battle took place near Potawattomie on the 14th, in which fourteen Abolitionists were killed and sixteen wounded. no account as to who commenced the fight, or what the pro-slavery loss was.

Georgia colony had been pillaged and burnt by Brown's company. Seven or eight persons lost their lives on this occasion.

It is rumored that Captain Treadwell and his party have been captured.

The excitement in the border towns of Missouri is intense and hourly increasing.

A large body of Missourians will soon enter the Territory, when we may expect bloody work.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—Accounts received last night from Kansas confirm the capture of Franklin, and mention other serious outrages.

The excitement in Western Missouri continues to increase.

An army is assembling in Jackson county, and will march into the Territory forthwith.

WRECK OF THE NAUTILUS.

SOUTH-WEST PASS, Aug. 21, 10½ o'clock, A. M.—A piece of wreck, about 30 feet long and 12 wide, painted lead color, and having a freight port such as Messrs. Harris, Morgan & Co.'s boats have, has drifted ashore in West Bay, near this station, and is supposed to be a part of the Nautilus.

THE FALSEHOOD NAILED.

Our readers have reason to remember the dispatch from Washington, published recently in one of the city papers, and which was to the following effect:

WASHINGTON, August 14.—The Southern Americans generally give up Fillmore for Buchanan. The Northern Fillmoreites hold a caucus to-day, and will hold another to-morrow, preparatory to withdrawing Fillmore.

A similar dispatch was transmitted to the Augusta Sentinel, and published in that paper of Friday last. The editors of the Sentinel, being satisfied that it was a base falsehood, telegraphed the Hon. N. G. FOSTER, a member of Congress from Georgia, to ascertain the facts, and received from him the following reply:

WASHINGTON, August 15.

There is no truth in the report that Mr. Fillmore's friends in Congress have held meetings to abandon him, but are still of opinion that pressing his claims is essential to SAVE the Union.

N. G. FOSTER.

This settles the question, and proves the falsehood of the previous dispatch.

There appears to be a systematized plan of operations on the part of the Locofocos to render the telegraph a medium of conveying the grossest forgeries and invention calculated to injure Mr. FILLMORE. Look at the stupendous lies about the Kentucky election. Kept up with the utmost tenacity, until being exposed, they suddenly stopped. Look at the story of a Democratic victory in Mobile, sent to all the Northern papers, when, in reality, on a very light poll, the American majority was over four hundred! We must caution the friends of FILLMORE against putting faith in telegraphic reports. They generally bear the aspect of Locofoco concoctions. Wait for the mail, and then you will be enabled to get at the truth.

Kentucky Election.

The following letter from a Kentucky gentleman deserves to be attentively read at this time:

WASHINGTON, August 13, 1856.

MR. EDITOR—Although a stranger to you, yet I shall offer no apology for this intrusion, and respectfully ask you to insert in your paper the following facts touching the late election in the section of the South from whence I came, and where I took an active part. I shall be as brief as possible and to the point. As a citizen, a voter, and a Whig of Mason county, I claim the right to be heard, a sanctioned of the Star of this city, which says, in the district composed of Mason, Flemming, Lewis, Whitley, Greenup, and Boswell counties, Thistor, old-line Whig and Democratic candidate, has beaten Wadsworth, Know-Nothing, for Judge. In the first place, Thistor has never been a Democrat, but always a Clay Whig, and is still a Whig, and for Fillmore and Donelson. Thistor was often elected Mayor of Maysville, is very popular, and a man of superior abilities, eminently fitted for the judgeship, to which he has been chosen almost by acclamation. Mr. Wadsworth, though a very gentlemanly and clever man, is very unpopular. This district gave Morehead for Governor last August 2,000 majority, and Phaster gets 2,000. Whigs, Democrats and Americans voted for him in preference to the Know-Nothing candidate. Mr. Wadsworth's defeat is a glorious triumph for the old-line Whigs and Democrats, and the only way to restore peace and quiet to the country is to lay them both on the shelf, and elect Fillmore, a man in whom both Whig and South have implicit confidence. This district is going rapidly with all classes. I heard a gentleman remark a few days since that the way that brought the news of the election of Fremont as President, to New York, would be a day in which the property of the city would decrease in value one hundred millions of dollars; a gentleman standing by remarked that the election of Buchanan would have the same effect. I merely state this to show the feeling existing here. The sentiment of the State of New York is ours. [Ed. Bee.

The editor of Martin Van Buren to carry the Empire State for Cass, and Marcy to be a dead failure; they will go for Fremont. The occasion at Syracuse, between the Softs and Hards, excites little or no attention here. It is generally understood that it will have no effect upon the masses. Under all these circumstances is it not the duty of all conservative men, men who love their country, to rally around the standard of Fillmore and Donelson and elect them? and would it not be good policy for the South to withdraw Buchanan from the contest? He certainly stands no earthly chance of being elected. It does seem to me that his withdrawal itself would tend greatly to allay the bitter feeling existing between the two sections—Indeed, I may say hope and good feeling would be restored at once.

OLD-LINE WHIG.

A Rumpus.

We are authorized, say the Augusta (Georgia, Chronicle, to offer a reward to any man who can find the following paragraph of Buchanan's letter to Stanbird published in any Southern Democratic journal:

"Any other construction of the letter would render it entirely inconsistent with itself. Having opposed the adoption of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, the intervention of Congress, in any opinion, possesses the power to legislate upon the subject of slavery in the Territories. What an absurdity it would then be, if, whilst assuming this sovereign power in Congress which power, from its nature, must be exclusive, I should, in the very same breath, declare the Missouri restrictional power for the population of a Territory in an unorganized capacity."

It is a remarkable fact, yet nevertheless true, that no Southern man in Congress have ever seen, has had the honesty to publish this paragraph. Why is this? They profess to desire to enlighten the people, yet they publish an important letter from their candidate, and leave out the most important paragraph in it—that one which defined clearly his views as to the power of Congress over slavery in the Territories. What a commentary upon the truthfulness and patriotism of the Democratic organs! Ay, and how completely does it convict them of the purpose to deceive the people and betray the Union of the South, to secure the triumph of party—thus sacrificing whatever is dear to the South for the mere spoils. Great, indeed, is the responsive properties of the public plunder, when they can lead men conspiring the important and responsible position of Democrats thus to betray their section.—Courier, Opelou.

The Albany Whig Convention.

ALBANY, August 14.—The Straight Whig Convention assembled here to-day, and is largely attended. Among the prominent delegates are Francis Granger and General Tallmadge.

The Convention was spontaneously organized by the nomination of Millard Fillmore for President, with Mr. Granger for Vice President, which nominations were received with unanimous applause. Speeches were made by the Whig leaders present, and in an organization, 194 many Whigs still remained who were true to their country and would never desert their principles. He exhorted all true Whigs in the present crisis to emulate the noble example of Webster and Clay.

A committee of ten was appointed to prepare and report resolutions, when a recess was then taken.

ATTENTION!—THE DEMOCRACY.—Fremont's Biography.—A millionaire without a dollar—a statesman without a speech—a legislator almost without a vote—a military chieftain without a battle—the man who is nowhere in the right place at the right time.

The Ohio Democracy—while Millard Fillmore occupied the Presidential chair—had a Governor, North or South, received an applointment of honor or profit. The conservative men, disgusted with the Democracy, left it, and starved out when he left the office. His successor came in and lavished the patronage of the government upon Abolitionists, Secret Societies, Foreigners, and the Union is consequently ruined.

Our readers should peruse the above comparison a second time. It is well worth it, for it contains nothing but FACT, the truth of which is proved by our national records.

STARVATION MYSTERY.—The New York correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, writing on the 6th inst., says:

Yesterday there was much excitement in Brooklyn, in consequence of death, from hunger, of an Irish emigrant girl named Mary McCready, who arrived in this city with her family, 276 Hudson avenue. On her going over from this city to Brooklyn, on Wednesday afternoon, the girl in the ferry boat observed her shaded appearance, and requested her to be introduced to some female friend, in order to ascertain the cause of her illness, whereupon she informed her that she had not been drinking, but that her painful aspect was caused by a sore which had been formed upon her person. The girl then went to the house through Boulevard street, New York, and in 13 o'clock, noon, several sailors, who she applied for assistance, refused to give her any, obstructed her way, and upon her endeavoring to be allowed to pass, they still refused until she had fought her way through the crowd, at which time she was found in the doorway, and upon being removed to the house, was found to be dead. Coroner Hills was notified, and upon his arrival, pronounced that death had been caused by starvation. The deceased was about 20 years of age. Her husband is now in this city, and knows what I have done for him. At the time she was found in the doorway, and when the sailors refused to give her any assistance, she made her way to the ferry, and while crossing, begged for food, but upon her arrival in Brooklyn was refused by a number of persons, as above stated. She continued to grow worse until about 6 o'clock, when she died. She was the mother of two children, one of whom is now in this city. Her husband is employed in the Navy Yard. Oh! my God, there exists no language to express my feelings at the sight of this horrible affair. Oh! my God, there exists no language to express my feelings at the sight of this horrible affair. Oh! my God, there exists no language to express my feelings at the sight of this horrible affair.

SUMMER LIGHTNING.—Lucky flash, who has written a book of Florida travels lately, says:

"I was in the Shah's half-sister, a beautiful girl of fifteen, who lived with her mother in a palace on the banks of the Tigris. She was in by the daughter of the monarchy by reason of her beauty. She was highly lovely, this, with three international she enacted to within four or five months of the time when the Shah's sister was married.

"The Americans say, and say truly: 'We have no large fleets of war vessels like England and France; we have only a few line-of-battle ship in commission; only a few of war, therefore, we must rely on our merchant vessels for carrying on hostilities, at least for the first six or twelve months; and we should call upon our citizens to arm every private ship into a vessel of war. Thomas pen call upon the Americans to do their
