THE PAST—THE FUTURE.

The contest in New Orleans for members of the Convention was closer than had been expected on either side. The vote took place fully divided, and the names recorded. The party of many of our citizens on a question of such extreme importance as that involved in the election of Lincoln, cannot be too highly regarded. That party of violence, headed by Mr. Johnson, was destined to be defeated. The party of moderation, which it would have been difficult to name, was victorious.
