OBEY A ORDERS Advice to Volunteers Let every volunteer read the following salutary advice, and bear it in continued remembrance it will make every man a solidies, and each advice, and bear it in continued remembrance. It will make every man a SOLDIKK, and each regiment as invulnerable as an "army with banners:"

In the first place, when a soldier shoulders his rife under the flag of his country, he must aurrender to that country his will, his whoms, tastes, faucies and prejudices; and the first, highest and most solemn duty he owes to that country is the most implicit and prompt obedience to the orders of his superior officers. Distincted to the orders of his superior officers. Distincted to the orders of his superior officers. Distincted the orders of his superior officers is sueed, that must be the end of inpurry. The success of a battle or campagin may depend upon the concessiment of the purposes of the command; and it may become accessary to punish with death an omission to observe that which may seem to be a very quimportant order to the soldier who does not understand it.

Obedience is not servibility—it is duty. It is, therefore, not cowardly, but honorable. The camp is no place for the manners of the draw-ingroom, and soldiers are proverbially blunt; therefore do not imagine if an officer speaks sharp to you that he wants to insult you or browbest you.

sharp to you that he wants to insult you or browbest you.

A Remarkalle Anomale.—Says the Memphis Approl: The following dispatch came over the writes yesterday to an exchange, from Abe Lincol's agents. It is really an astonishing tel-tire graph:

"A gentleman from Alexandria visited the President this morning, and assured bim that if President this morning, and assured bim that if these Unionists are in such a large, "majority," why do they desire to be "protected at the polls. The such a large, "majority," why do they desire to be "protected at the polls!" Grant that they outnumber the Secessionist by the alleged number of 1000, and can't under such circumstances claim their right to vote at the polls, they had better doff their puntaloons altogether, and betake themselves to petitiocate. The fact is, Old Abe ought to require his agents to tell plausible lies in carrying out the systematised scheme of telegraphic falsebuod which he has inaugurated. It ought to be done decently and in order.

The witness for the State were Dr. Danserau, Dr. Bousses, Dr. Royer, François Coite, James Foulhouse and Robert Johns on. The first named testified to the wounds on the person of the deceased, of which there were twenty-right, all mortal, besides which the body was multisted in a shocking and obsence manner. Dr. Royer testined that Father Saveill was in his house when they called him out to morder him. He advised the priest not to go, as he had besen in most of threats against him the day before, but Savelli went out. He then saw him surrounded by a crowd of mee, and afterwards found his body. O'mee had been in conversation and apparent antity with Saveill the same mortning in his house. Es-Judge Fonfhouse gave temportant testimony concerning the early proceedings in the case, and proved the voluntary written confession of O'mees, and proved the voluntary written confession of O'mees and proved the voluntary written confession.

of tymes again before him. This was submitted to the just.

The defense rested on the ground of Savel't's alloged adultery and its influence upon the mind of the prisoner. They desired to introduce testimony showing that such adultery was carrently reported, there being, of course, no positive proof of its committes. The Attorney Gan'ersit three upons the door to the whole subject, and permitted the testimony of Mrs. Marté and Armand Lartique, that there existed rumors of Savellie adultery with the wife of accused and relatives of the Doises. The State then brought in the rebutting vidence of Judge Foulhouse, Charles Bionvenu and Celestice Sarrat, to prove that these reports were only heard of sfire rate, to prove that these reports were only heard of sfire. Of this mode of warfare the United States cannot complain, for it was but recently that the great powers of Europe united in urging upon our Government to join with them in condeming privateering as piracy. This our Government perspiporily reduced to do.

We take no pleasure in all this. On the contrary, we turn from the whole scene heart-sick.

A GLIMFER OF RETURNING REASON.—We were shown yesterday by a gentleman of the city a letter received by him from a broker in New York, in which it was written, "within the list two months I have lost tweetly thousand dollars.
