Strange Opposition.—That the Chicago Times and the St. Louis Democrat should oppose each other on the Presidential question, was to be expected. The Times has been Conservative in its intensely copperas degree, and the latter Radical to a hot less than zero. But it was, until quite recently, scarcely to be regarded as within the range of rational conjecture, that the Conservative paper would speak in behalf of a Radical Presidential ticket to which the Radical organ refused either support, encouragement, or recognition. Yet such is today the strange attitude in which the two journals stand with respect to the nomination of Frenfont and Cochrane by the Cleveland Convention. The Chicago Times professes to see in Fremont the "head of a party, honest in its desires," laboring for two or three highly virtuous ends, and declares that the "sympathy of no good man will hesitate a moment in its choice" between him and the Baltimore nominee. The St. Louis Democrat has not yet seen the matter in this light, but refuses to sanction the Cleveland nomination, and intimates in various ways its purpose to advocate the Republican ticket nominated in Baltimore.

Constitutional Convention.

Wednesday, June 15, 1864.

Eighty-three members answered to their names at roll call and the Convention proceeded to business in earnest.

The subject of the Judiciary, which has heretofore proven a pons asinorum to other Conventions as well as this, was safely passed, and it seems is now definitively decided as follows:

The Supreme Court is to be appointed, for a term of 8 years for the United States and 10 years for the Associate and inferior Judges. The salary of the Chief Justice is fixed at $7,500, and that of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court at $7,000 per annum.

The salary of the District Judges and Justices of the Peace are left to the Legislature.

The Attorney General and all the other officers of the Judiciary, except the Supreme and District Judges, are to be elected by the people for a term of four years.

We come be some to be satisfied with all of the constitution of the Convention on the subject of the Judiciary, yet every one seems to be satisfied with the conclusion as a whole.

The bill has passed its third and final reading and a motion having been made to reconsider and the motion having been tabled the question is now settled, at least so far as the Convention is concerned.

Later from the North via the River.

Official Dispatches from Secretary Stanton.

To Major-General Dix—

Washington, June 8.—A dispatch from Mr Dana, at Grant's headquarters, dated last night at 8:30 P. M., announces a victory by Gen Hunter over the rebels beyond Staunton, and of the rebel General Jones was killed on the battle field The dispatch is as follows:

The Richmond Examiner of to day speaks of the defeat of General W. E. Jones by General Hunter, twelve miles beyond Staunton, Virginia. General Jones was killed on the field. His command retired to Waynesboro, and now holds the mountains between Charlottesville and Staunton.

The paper further states that hospital stores were captured by Gen. Hunter. Another dispatch announces that our forces occupy Staunton.

(Signed) E. M. Stanton,
Secretary of War.

Mater-Gen. Dix—

Washington, June 8 Gen Hunter's victory and our occupation of Staunton is confirmed by the following dispatch just received from Gen Hunter:

All quiet on my line. Richmond papers, June 7th, have intelligence of a fight at Mount Crawford between Hunter and Jones, in which Hunter was victorious, and Jones, the rebel commander, killed. Staunton was afterwards occupied by Union forces The fighting was on Sunday. E. M. Stanton.

Additional from the Army of the Potomac.

Headquarters, Army of the Potomac, June 7.—The Richmond papers of June 7th, are received. The dispatch speaks of the arrival of 850 Yankee prisoners, and says on Friday fourteen assaults were made by Grant on the right of their line, held by Kershaw, Hoke and Breckinridge—all repulsed, with great slaughter, and over 500 lost in ten or twelve thousand, with one thousand prisoners. Their men charging almost naked, but acknowledges we gained partial success against Breckinridge, but they rallied, finally recovered the ground.

Headquarters Army of the Potomac, June 7, 1864.

The rebels attacked the second corps and a portion of the Sixth last evening, but were repulsed after a desperate struggle. They advanced to the attack several times, and each time their lines were cut to pieces in the ravines in front of our works.

Their losses must have been fearful, for our men shot them down at short range, while the batteries mowed them down in masses. Our loss was very light. A shell exploded among the members of Hancock's staff, one of whom lost a leg.

Troops are guarded all the way from Whitehouse to the front, principally by colored troops. Our men are busily engaged in digging towards the works of the enemy, and all night was made last night on one of our working parties.

New York, June 8—The Times' special says of the rebel attack Sunday night: The rebels made an attack just after dark in front of Smyth's brigade of the 2d corps. The whole lower comb of the cornsphere was a dense mist.

Under cover of this the enemy advanced in strong line of battle and succeeded in reaching a point within pistol range of our works, before they were discovered by the advance pickets.

He seems did the outposts give the alarm than rose a sheet of fire belched forth from our ranks on the front and both flanks of the enemy. In about half an hour the enemy fell back, leaving the ground covered with dead and wounded.

Our loss was small.

Gen. Seward to-day took position as Chief Engineer of the Army.

The Herald's correspondent with the Eighth corps, says: Our line now runs nearly parallel to the Chickahominy to its new direction, but is exceedingly irregular in consequence of its entire length.

Another correspondent says a large number of reconnoissances arrived this evening (8th.)

The reconnoissances outnumber our losses, and were conducted with great skill.

John Morgan in Kentucky.

June 8.—A rebel force, supposed to be under command of John Morgan, made its entrance into Eastern Kentucky a few days ago, and this morning captured the town of Mount Sterling.

They also destroyed bridges and tore up the track of the Kentucky Central Railroad between Paris and Forte, and cut the telegraph wires. Trains coming north returned safely to Lexington.

Another says attacked a passenger train on the Louisville and Lexington railroad this morning, near Smithfield. Two passenger cars and the baggage car were burned, and the express car scorched, and engine thrown off the track.

The Baltimore Convention, 2d Day.

Baltimore, June 8.—The Convention reassembled at 10 o'clock. President Dennison in the chair.

The Committee on Business reported, and after amendments, was adopted

The minority made a report which concurred with that of the majority, except the exclusion of delegates from Virginia, Arkansas, and the Territories of Colorado, Nevada and Nebraska from the right of voting. That part of the last forty report that relates to uncontested delegates was adopted.

Several amendments regarding the manner of admission of Missouri delegates were rejected

The question then recurred on the adoption of the majority report.

A call for the vote by States was made and resulted in the unanimous adoption of the majority report, admitting the Radical delegation from Missouri. Yeas 440, nays 4.

After the admission of the Missouri delegates the remaining proposition offered as an amendment by Mr. King, the delegates from Tennessee, Virginia, Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas, and all the Territories which the majority report proceeded to admit to seats without the right to vote, should have the right to vote, was put to the Convention.

Mr Lane acted a division of the question; to admit to the States first, and then on the Territories.

A second division was called for and the house asked to vote as to Tennessee having the right to vote, or not to vote. I ask

Fremont's Letter.—Gentlemen—In answer to the letter which I have had the honor to receive from you on the part of the representatives of the people assembled at Cleveland, the 31st of May, I desire to express my thanks for the confidence which led them to offer me the honorable and difficult task of being their candidate in the approaching presidential election.

Very honorable, because in offering it to me you act in the name of a great number of citizens, who seek in advance to oblige the good of their country, and who have no sort of selfish interest in view. Correspondence Between Grant and Lee.

War Department,
Washington, June 7, 10.15 P. M.

To Major-General Dix—

Several letters have passed between General Grant and Gen. Lee in respect to collecting the dead and wounded between the armies. The substance is that Grant has telegraphed that all his efforts for alleviating the suffering of wounded men left on the battle field, have been rendered nugatory.

Two officers and six men, sent out to search for the wounded of their command, were captured in consequence of the enemy not desiring them to enter after the hour he had named had expired

General Grant has notified General Lee that they will be treated through as prisoners standing, and will not be held as prisoners, but will be returned. No other military intelligence has been received. E. M. Stanton.

From New York.

New York, June 8.—The Commercial says Mr Chase is in the city in consultation with bank officers with a view to negotiate at once a temporary loan. The amount he desires to borrow is not stated.

The Post says the anticipation that the pay ment of the loan will derange the loan market is groundless. Money is actually as low as at the commencement of the month. The number of lunatics and [illegible]

The results are less rendered apt by Mr. Gibson:

In the progress and civilization and prosperity of Europe the idea peasantry the nonsuit have no share. They have been the military army in the field. Twice there is no longer use in wasting life upon a hopeless struggle, and the [illegible] from the country will have there is no field of industry for them. They have acted manfully in the crisis. They are tarnished [illegible] from the country will have because they are giving up the struggle for the land As an Irishman, I lament that the laws under which we live do not permit them to remain at home. Under the present laws no Irishman is able to read and write ought to remain in Ireland. If Ireland were an independent country, and the peasantry would ultimately obtain the property in the land, as they have obtained in Switzerland and in France.

A Mormon Settlement in Western Virginia.—The Wheeling (Va.) Intelligencer says: Quite a number of Mormons in the town of South Wheeling a society of Mormons, who practice upon all the tenets of that sect except that of polygamy. We have had a conversation with an Englishman of this faith, who is a shoemaker, who firmly believes in all the peculiar notions of the latter-day Saints. He says he was converted to the faith by a preacher of that denomination. In his opinion, the churches to which the generally attach themselves are wonderfully corrupt.
