A NEW COUNTERFEIT

Government Employees at Washington Make "Queer" Money.
Chief Wilkie's Most Startling Discovery—Patent Office Photographic Apparatus and Materials Used—Bills Circulated in Cuba.

Sensational developments have been brought to light at Washington in connection with the floating in Cuba of photographic counterfeit bills of the denominations of one dollar, five dollars and ten dollars, current series. The spurious money was manufactured in the photograph gallery of the United States patent office, by government employees, with government apparatus and material, and during the government work days. Chief Wilkie and his secret service detectives are working on the case, and are much elated at their success. The negatives of plates from which the counterfeit notes were made were discovered last Friday in a dark room in the subbasement of the interior department by a boy named Tucker, who is employed in the patent office as copy puller.

Chief Wilkie was promptly notified of the important find, and the plates were removed to his office in the treasury department the following day. One of the men summoned by Chief Wilkie is authority for the statement that a large number of the photographic counterfeits were successfully floated in several of the provinces of Cuba. He said the negatives were exceedingly good, having been produced by the finest government apparatus and material in the patent office.

They were taken direct from the originals and were consequently as near perfection as possible. The bogus bills were not produced in the manner of photographs taken for mounting, but simply as blue sun prints, and it was possible to make a thousand bogus notes each day from the plates. The blue surface was turned into a money green by submerging them in acetic acid. The seals on the bills were made by means of a pen and carmine writing ink.

The amount of photographic "queer" money floated in Cuba is not known, and it is said the government photographers who made the bills had confederates on the island who did the "floating." Chief Wilkie has several clues of these in the possession of a thumb plate was sensitive before it had received a coat of varnish.

ANTI-IMPERIALIST'S BIG GIFT.

Anonymous Stranger Contributes $10,000 Toward Mission Work.
During the absence the other day of Rev. Dr. J. L. Barton, secretary of the American board of foreign missions, Boston, a man entered his office and inquired for him. Being informed that the secretary was at lunch, the visitor handed an unaddressed sealed envelope to Mr. Wiggin, the treasurer, and departed.

Mr. Wiggin was busy, and thinking that the letter was an ordinary business communication, finished what he was doing before opening it. Then he found that it contained ten $1,000 bills. When Mr. Wiggin saw this large sum of money he ran out to intercept the stranger, but it was too late, and no trace of the generous donor has been found. The letter inclosed with the money referred to a published statement of Dr. Barton in opposition to the imperialistic policy, and added:

"As an expression at this time of the purpose and spirit of the board, and as reflecting the true attitude of the 'church' in its missionary effort toward all people, it seems to me to be distinctly timely and valuable. As an agency for the use of the missionary funds the value of your board is strengthened, I think, by the publication of your letter, and in token of this feeling, I beg you to accept the inclosed, to be used by the board in the way which, in its judgment, will best promote the interest of the Master's kingdom." The letter was unsigned.

MILITARY STATION ON YUKON.
Capt. Ray Laying Plans for Placing an Army Post Near the Boundary Line in Alaska.
Capt. Ray, who will be placed in command of the military district of Alaska, has been busy about the war department getting everything in readiness for his departure, which will take place in July. He will sail from San Francisco or Seattle with supplies for a company for one year. He expects to establish headquarters on the Yukon at Mission Creek, which is near the boundary line. Here he will build a regular military station for the accommodation of his troops and supplies. A military reservation will be established there, the boundaries of which will depend upon the judgment of Capt. Ray. A forest reservation also will be established, so that there may be no question about a plentiful supply of timber for the military station. Capt. Ray will take two sawmills with him to manufacture the lumber which will be necessary for the new station. He will go by boat by way of the mouth of the Yukon river and will have all his supplies taken in that route. Capt. Ray expresses no doubt as to the practicality of the Copper river route, which Assistant Secretary McMillan has ordered established and which will be examined by Capt. Abercrombie. Capt. Ray has a plan for the establishment of stations along this route, 20 miles apart, placed in charge of natives. By this system he believes, it will be possible to reach the Yukon county at all seasons of the year.

WOULDN'T PLAY TILL HE LEFT.
Miss Arthur's Protest Caused Drunken Oiler to Be Ejected from New Haven Theater.
Miss Julia Arthur introduced some entirely new "business" at the Hyperion theater in New Haven, N. Y., the other evening, when she appeared in "A Lady of Quality." In the midst of the third act she stopped the performance, and, walking to the footlights, addressed the audience.

She said there was a man in a certain seat on a certain aisle and row who was annoying the women in the cast. She pointed the man out, so that the entire audience could see him. She said the performance would not proceed until this man left the house. Miss Arthur then rung the curtain down. The eyes of the audience were turned upon the objectionable man, and he arose and hurriedly zigzagged up the aisle and out of the theater. Miss Arthur waited until he had gone. Then she said: "I regret that it was necessary to delay the performance, but this part is a difficult one, and my company cannot act until we have the attention and respect of the audience."

LONG DRESS CAUSES DEATH.
New England Society Woman Dies from a Peculiar Accident.
Mrs. Charles F. Eastman, of Littleton, N. H., wife of the treasurer of the Profitee house corporation, and a wealthy and well-known society woman, died the other morning at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, from injuries received in an elevator accident at the hotel. Late at night she tripped on her skirt and fell into the elevator car, striking the lever with her hand, and the prompt action of the colored elevator boy prevented her from being out in two. As it was, her right hip was broken and her back bone fractured.

The Lash for Wife-Beaters.
The crime of wife-beating has become so common of late that some extraordinary punishment seems to be needed for its suppression. When garrotting became common in the streets of London some years ago the restoration of the whipping post for those convicted of the crime proved an effective remedy. The New York Herald thinks perhaps a temporary resort to it here in the case of wife beaters would prove efficacious.

Long-Lived Ballet Dancers.
A German statistician has discovered that ballet dancers, as a rule, attain an age much above the average. Carlotta Grisi is 77 years of age and Andalia Ferraris 78. Tagliioni was over 80 years old when she died, and Fanny Elssler was 74. Rosita Mauri, well over 50, is still dancing at the Paris grand opera.

Fiji Sunday Scholars.
There are 40,000 native pupils in the Sunday schools of the Fiji islands.

Algerian Iron Ore in France.
The quantity of Algerian iron ore imported into France during the last year is returned at 68,248 tons, compared with only 62,100 tons in 1897.

COLOR PICTURES FROM EGYPT.

The Egyptian department of the Haskell oriental museum at the University of Chicago has just received a valuable addition to its material by the receipt of 150 negatives, taken by the latest process of color photography, of inscriptions and remains in the land of Pharaoh. The pictures were taken by a student, Charles Cresswell, who went to Egypt prepared to secure photographs which would be of especial help to the museum. The pictures were sent to Curator James J. Breasted, who said of them:

"The plates are very valuable to us, since they make it possible to publish many reproductions which have never been satisfactorily made. Mr. Cresswell is only a beginner in the art of photography, but the views include many exposures in museums and a collection of systematic views of remains as far as the first category. Of course, the art of the printer is not sufficiently advanced to make the plates of use for printing, but they can be used perfectly as lantern slides.

"By the old process these pictures would be colored by hand at a heavy expense. Inaccurate coloring is common, even in the most careful publications, and this distresses the value of the reproduction. For example, many of the inscriptions in recent monographs are illegible on account of faulty coloring. Photography avoids all of these inaccuracies. A comparison of the cost shows that the pictures cost little more than ordinary photographs, while the cost of hand coloring is enormous. The work of Lepsius for the German government cost at least 400,000 marks, and is inaccurate."

Word has just come to Dr. Breasted that he has been appointed collaborator in the production of the new dictionary of the Egyptian language, which has been endowed by the German emperor.

NO EXTRA PAY.
Chief of Capt. H. L. Draper Is Turned Down by the Assistant Controller of the Treasury.
Mounted officers in the army or marine corps receive more pay than those on foot, and recently a marine officer claimed the extra compensation. Capt. H. L. Draper insisted on mounted pay while serving as first lieutenant of the First marine battalion, which was sent to Cuba. The assistant controller of the treasury decided that to entitle an officer of the marine corps to mounted pay it must appear on his duty record that he was mounted during the period for which he claims such extra pay. The particular duties of marines on board ship, and when called to serve upon land, unless cooperating with the army by direction of the president, their services as such must be limited. It cannot be assumed, therefore, that because an adjutant of an organization in the infantry of the army is required to be mounted the adjutant of a corresponding organization in the marine corps must be so mounted. It does not follow because officers of the army are required by their duties to be mounted that officers of the marine corps of corresponding grade must also be mounted. As Capt. Draper did not, in the comptroller's opinion, furnish sufficient evidence that he was mounted during the time for which he asks mounted pay his claim is rejected.

TO REDUCE SEAL HERDS.
The California Fish Commission Will Send Out Killing Expeditions.
The Pacific coast seal herds are to be reduced without interference by the government. The treasury department has indorsed the movement, and instructions have been issued to Commander Sebree, of the Twelfth light-house district, to allow the California fish commission to send delegates to the Farallones, Ano Nuevo, Point Reyes and other reservations for the purpose of killing seals.

A GIGANTIC SCHEME.
Syndicate Buying West Timber and Mineral Lands in Virginia and East Tennessee.
A gigantic scheme appears to be on foot to buy up the vast timber and mineral lands throughout western Virginia and east Tennessee and build railroads to all the principal points to open them up to trade. It is said there are millions of dollars interested in the project. There are thousands of acres of the richest land in the world lying idle in this section because of the lack of railroad facilities. The Virginia Coal and Iron company is ostensibly at the head of this scheme to monopolize this land, but it is believed that northern and English capitalists are backing the company.

Funston's Early Training.
Fred Funston once worked in a country printing office, and doubtless acquired his reckless firing and bulldog tenacity, says the Chicago Tribune, in dunning delinquent subscribers.
